QUAKER CITY JUDGE BECOMES GOVERNOR OF PENNSYLVANIA AND OUTLINES HIS POLICY

BRILLIANT DISPLAY AT CAPITAL

Gov. Pennypacker's Declarations In His Strong Inaugural Address

Governor Pennypacker, as soon as inaugurated, delivered a notable address, declaring that:

There is too much legislation.

The modern tendency to create new crimes ought to be curbed.

Reform of the ballot law should not obliterate party tickets.

Legislation should provide for greater return to labor from the rewards resulting from business ventures.

No capitalist is strong enough and no laborer is insignificant enough to escape obedience to the law.

A tax should be imposed on state products to be used in providing good roads.

Historic buildings should be guarded and preserved by the state.

Legislation against yellow journalism should be enacted.

Citizens should dwell together in harmony and cities join in projects for improvements.

He will consult all citizens, including politicians, and desires more respect shown officials.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.

In the presence of a great concourse of people, amid the salvos of artillery, the music of bands and general applause, William A. Stone stepped down and out of office today and Samuel W. Pennypacker became governor. The wind was blowing and the snow was falling during the last 10 minutes of Stone's term, but as soon as the new governor had taken the oath of office and commenced to read his inaugural address the weather cleared up, the wind died down and the snow ceased to fall, for a while, and it was under these auspices, ominous of a peaceful and harmonious administration, that Samuel W. Pennypacker took up the reins of office.

Gov. Pennypacker had desired to be inducted into office with an almost Jeffersonian simplicity of outward forms, but his desire was not carried out, for there was a military and civic parade of goodly proportions. Although there has been more pomp and ceremony on other inaugural occasions, there was enough music to please and enough uniforms to cheer the Harrisburg populace, which had determined not to be cheated out of its quadrennial show, for there were, besides the chief marshal and his staff and aids, three entire regiments of the National Guard, four companies of the Fourth regiment and numerous political clubs marching to the tunes of many bands.

Everybody Turned Out.

The people turned out as numerously as on other inaugural occasions of greater pomp and ceremony and stood or sat through every word of Gov. Pennypacker's scholarly inaugural address. The new governor was as plain and unassuming in manner, speaking as governor of the state, as he was when campaigning for votes. In a most homelike way he pressed ex-Gov. Stone into service, handing to Mr. Stone, one by one, the sheets of paper on which his inaugural address was written as each sheet was perused.

The governor's campaign speeches had made the people aware that he has ideas

PENROSE AGAIN ELECTED TO REPRESENT THIS STATE IN UNITED STATES SENATE

COL. GUFFEY HONORED

No Disagreement Over Appointments Made by New Governor.

PRAISES HIS ADDRESS

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.

Boies Penrose was today re-elected to the United States senate by one of the most complimentary majorities ever given a candidate for this distinguished honor. He received 37 of the 40 Republicans votes in the senate, and 156 of the 158 Republican votes in the house, a total of 193 out of a possible 198.

The result exemplified the force of caucus obligations and developed the fact that the educational campaign of the past four years in its bearing upon the question of party regularity has borne good fruit. This also was the case with the Democrats, every member standing by the caucus nominee, Col. J. M. Guffey received the vote of every Democratic senator—10—and the vote of 42 of the 45 Democratic members, three being absent for good causes.

There was nothing spectacular in the senatorial election of today. Absolute harmony prevailed. Surprises were impossible for the reason that the public has known since election day just how every senator and every member would line up. Those who witnessed the Quay senatorial deadlock of 1899 and the contest which preceded his re-election two years ago, found little to interest them in the perfunctory movement of the fixed program. While the air for several days has been charged with rumors of impending strife and factional divisions, nothing has yet appeared on the surface and it is believed that the disappointments which always attach to the induction of a new governor will not survive a few days of sober rflection.

Two Figures Missed.

Two figures conspicuous in the councils of the Republican state organization were missed. Senator Quay, the leader, and Insurance Commissioner Durham could not be present. The statehood bill kept Quay in Washington and Mr. Durham is on a cruise to the Bermudas for rest and recreation. But their personal representatives were here and there was no clog in the legislative machinery.

Owing to the inaugural ceremonies at noon, the separate ballot for United States senator was not taken until 3 o'clock. The senate met a half-hour in advance of the time set, it being understood that Gov. Pennypacker would submit for confirmation the name of his private secretary—Bromley Wharton. The inaugural parade and an active sense of hunger due to his inability to lunch at his usual hour prevented the governor from communicating to the senate his recommendation until after that body had balloted for a senator and adjourned. His excellency, however, was not disappointed, and said tomorrow would do as well. He cannot be hurried.

Every senator except three—Emery of Mercer, Vare of Philadelphia, and White of Beaver—was in his seat when President Pro Tem Scott called the senate to order. The galleries and side aisles were filled with visitors, many women being present. Senator John C. Grady moved that a ballot for United States senator be taken. It was done. Chief Clerk Smiley announced 47 of the 50 senators present and voting. Boies Penrose received 37 votes and James M. Guffey 10.

The Three Absentees.

All of the absentees were Republicans. Had they been present they would have voted for the caucus nominee. Senator Emery is ill with pneumonia; Senator Vare, also ill, is with Commissioner Durham in the Bermudas, and Senator White had an imperative engagement which kept him in New York city. Upon the announcement of the result, President Pro Tem Scott declared the election of Boies Penrose for a term of six ylears, dating from March 4 next. An adjournment was then taken until 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

No less pronounced was the indorsement of Penrose by the house. An immense crowd had assembled in the big chamber, encroaching at times on the space for members. Senator Penrose received 156 votes and Col. James M. Guffey 4. There were 3 absentees; Two were Republicans, Palmer of Schuylkill, who is ill, and Hitchcock of Tioga, who declined to support Penrose. The Democrats were Schultz of Erie, who has sickness at

Senator Penrose gave The Gazette correspondent an interesting interview. While somewhat exhausted by his experience of the past few days, during which he has looked in the eye and grasped the hands of thousands of Keystone Republicans, the senator was in a happy humor. He gathered some consolation from the fact that six years must roll around before he must stand another senatorial siege, but he said he did not mind it. His only fear was that he would not be able to control his right arm while asleep, for some nights, at least, the habit having become mechanical.

"Ask The Gazette to express my sincere thanks to the Republicans who gave me their cordial and hearty support," said Senator Penrose. "I am deeply sensible of the great honor paid me. The vote today was fully up to my expectations.

"What about the rumor that because of some prospective cabinet appointments the relations between Senator Quay and Gov. Pennypacker, on the one hand, and yourself and Mr. Durham, on the other, have become strained, that politically you are at variance?"

"There is nothing in that story. It's absurd. No trouble exists."

"Have you called on Gov. Pennypacker?"

"I have seen him but once since his election. Here I have been too busy to call. Speaking of his inaugural address I regard it one of the ablest state papers I ever read. It is a scholarly production and contains many wise recommendations."

"What do you think of the Greater Pittsburgh bill?"

"I have not read it, but am for anything the people there want." Then, with a laugh, the senator asked: "Has it a ripper feature?"

"As to the Pittsburgh recordership fight you and Senator Quay are quoted as being interested in the success of Thomas S. Bigelow. Is it true?"

"I am taking no part in the Pittsburgh fight and have not authorized an interview to the contrary."

"When will the ballot reform bill be introduced?"

"The last step in that matter was the visit of David H. Lane of Philadelphia to Senator Quay. Chairman Quay, when I last saw him, purposed calling together the Republican state committee for the purpose of having the committee indorse a measure for reference to the legislature. This I believe will be done very soon."

"What about legislation desired by the anthracite miners and remedial in character as bearing upon the present hard coal famine?"

"That is not a party matter. Politics do not enter into it. The disposition of the senate and house leaders, as I understand it, is to await the decision of the Roosevelt commission, which is expected inside of a month."

"Do you favor the bill appropriating $6,000,000 for the improvement of country roads?"

"I favor a bill that will result in that end. The bill introduced I have not seen. As a general proposition I cordially indorse the idea. It is one that will appeal to the people of the state and its beneficient results can hardly be estimated in advance."

"Do you know if Robert McAfee is to be appointed banking commissioner?"

"I do not. I know nothing of Gov. Pennypacker's selections. Gen. Reeder called upon me this afternoon. He remarked to me that his term as banking commissioner had not expired. No, he did not say when it would expire, and I do not know of my own knowledge."

Gen. Reeder contends that his term will not expire until October 3, 1904.

Senator Penrose will probably remain here until Thursday, then go to Washington. He received many congratulatory telegrams this afternoon from colleagues in the senate and friends throughout the state.

PARTISANSHIP IS SET ASIDE IN OPENING OF CAMPAIGN FOR OFFICE OF CITY RECORDER

DECLARES HE IS NO MAN'S MAN

He Who Runs May Read the Bold Utterances of John C. Haymaker

It is a good thing that upheavals sometimes occur in politics, and it is the best thing that can possibly take place in a municipal campaign like this.

I can tell you that I propose being recorder in fact, as well as in name, and recorder in name, as well as in deed.

There are many people in this city and county who have known me officially. Let them point their finger to a single official act of mine in which I allowed politics to interfere with the discharge of my duties.

If it is a crime to have always been a Republican—if it is a crime to have stood by the party in adversity as well as in prosperity—then I have been guilty of a crime ever since I was 21 years of age.

There will be a great many things said about me during this campaign. I shall be able to answer every charge if it reflects on my official or on my private character.

If I go into the office of recorder of this city and I do not keep my word with the people, at the end of three years I shall go out of that office politically, professionally and socially damned.

No man or set of men shall dominate or control or influence me! And have I lived to this age that I shall go into that office and by my conduct and my acts demonstrate to the people that I am not a man of truth?

In the discharge of my duty it shall be done without favoritism to any and with fidelity to all!

It is my intention, it will be the ambition of my life, if I am elected, to give the people the cleanest government the city has ever had.

The Republican keynote in the contest for the city recordership of Pittsburgh was sounded in no uncertain manner last night at the opening of the campaign in the Kenwood Lawn auditorium. Twenty-first ward. Despite the inclemency of the weather 2,500 voters crowded the great hall and unexampled enthusiasm was displayed.

It was a meeting of the people. Partisanship was set aside and the voice of every speaker cried for the election of a man who would not be dominated by a boss, and who would be a credit to this great municipality. Democrats, men who had supported the Citizens party when its principles stood for honest government, and Republicans alike rallied around John C. Haymaker and urged his support as the only course open in the preservance of the morals, the integrity and the pride of the city.

Stengel Stands by His Principles.

Register George H. Stengel, a Democrat, one of the prime workers in the old Citizens movement, was one of the vice presidents of the meeting, and in answer to repeated calls, made a speech in which he stated that he would take the stump for the Republican candidate in the effort to continue his fight for true reform. The record of Candidate Haya was held up, and his cringing to Boss Bigelow was roundly denounced.

Rain and snow had converted the approach to the building into a pool of mud and slush, but notwithstanding the fury of the elements the seats in the hall were filled before 8 o'clock. The Second Brigade band played lively airs and the Harris

ENGINE BURSTS; KILLS FOUR MEN

Freight Locomotive Explodes on Panhandle Near Dennison.

ONE FATALLY HURT

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]
Uhrichsville, O., Jan. 20.—Two men were killed, one fatally injured and one seriously hurt and two trains were wrecked on the Panhandle, seven miles east of Dennison this evening as the result of the boiler of a locomotive exploding.

The Dead:

J. D. WARD, engineer.
J. G. MCURDY, fireman.
F. C. PETRY, fireman, of Dennison.
FRANK CLEMENTS, brakeman.

The Injured:

DANIEL O'DONNELL, engineer, fatally injured.

The boiler of the engine of an eastbound freight train exploded just as it was passing a freight train going west. The boiler struck the other train and 22 cars were wrecked. Engineer O'Donnell and Fireman Petry were blown from the engine and McCurdy and Clements were found under the wreckage.

The locomotive was hurled 60 feet in the air and crashed down upon a passing westbound freight train, smashing the second car behind the engine. Twenty-two cars were hurled down an embankment. Both tracks were torn up for 300 yards.

The dead and injured were taken to Dennison on a passenger train.

Mrs. Clements had supper ready and was sitting at the window watching for her husband, when she was told that he was dead. McCurdy was married only two weeks ago.

CARNEGIE OFFICIATES AT MEDAL PRESENTATION

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, Jan. 20.

At Carnegie hall this evening the presentation of a gold medal from the United States Volunteer Life Saving corps to Earl Gulick, 14 years old, who saved a man from drowning last summer, gave opportunity to Andrew Carnegie to compare hero worship of past times with the present.

Preceding and following the addresses of Mr. Carnegie and Lyman J. Gage announcement was made that plans have been completed for the establishment of a Young Men's Christian Association in Havana. "To do this $11,000 will be needed," declared William M. Kingsley. The collection taken up for this purpose exceeded $1,000. Mr. Carnegie whispered to his secretary, who handed him a roll of bills, which he threw into the basket without counting. Mr. Carnegie in presenting the gold medal to young Gulick said, in part:

"Perhaps there is no better test of the stage of civilization reached by a people than by noting the service rendered by those who receive popular recognition as heroes. A nation is known by the heroes it makes. The distinguishing feature of the hero of former days was that he had either killed or wounded other men, or had vanquished them in some physical contest.

"Enlightened man now begins to consider whether this or that one is worthy, and more are we coming to apply this crucial test in regard to heroes. Franklin wrote 'the worship most acceptable to God is service to man.'

"We are here tonight to give a young man the symbol of hero worship, a gold medal of the Society for Saving Human Life, because he has acted upon that truth. This young hero of civilization, differing from the hero of barbarism, has maimed no man; he killed no fellow being. This medal is given to him for the highest service to man. We know that 'greater love hath no man than this, that he should lay down his life for his friend.'

"I present this medal of pure gold, awarded to you, Mr. Gulick, by the Volunteer Life Saving corps, congratulating you with all my heart that you have had the opportunity and the heroism to embrace it to rescue from death one of your fellow men."

WOODBURN HAS A WARM REPLY

Wyman Attack Upon Him Is Torn to Pieces by Reformer.

NO CITIZENS PARTY NOW

The absence of many of the leaders, who were attending the inauguration exercises at Harrisburg, caused a lull in the political warfare on the North Side yesterday. The attack made by the Wyman party on Dr. S. S. Woodburn on Monday night, when a statement denouncing the former Citizens leader was made public, was about the only thing of interest discussed in political circles. Dr. Woodburn made a reply last night. He said:

"I am accused of leaving the Citizens party and allying myself with my old enemies. I did not leave the Citizens party. That party ceased to exist when the Wyman element got control of things. It is now the Wyman party. The statement that I was traitorous to my old friends is absolutely untrue. None of my friends, those who built up the old Citizens party and won the November battle, are identified with the present Wyman party, with the exception of Stephen G. Porter.

Citizens Party Is Dead.

"The original organization was headed by such men as W. T. Bradberry, D. B. Oliver, E. L. Braun, Frank Haller, A. W. Dravo, Robert McAfee, W. H. Knodell, Samuel Grenette, Maj. H. K. Tyler and Robert S. Orr. Not one of these is now in what is called the Citizens party. The men Wyman has around him have come into political prominence since the advent of Wyman as a candidate for recorder.

"E. J. McIlvaine, who is now vice chairman of Wyman's party, tried to become identified with us early last summer but failed. I have heard Maj. Tyler say that McIlvaine tried to intrude his presence on one of the earliest meetings of the original Citizens' meetings and was put out of the room by Maj. Tyler. Thomas Scandrett, who became chairman of Wyman's committee of 13, never had anything to do with the Citizens party until Wyman became a factor. This is true of all the others Wyman has about him now as his confidential workers and advisers.

"I am accused of flopping to the Republican party. I never was anything but a Republican. The old Citizens organization, of which I was chairman, worked as hard for the election of Gov. Pennypacker and the state ticket as did the straight Republicans in this county. The old organization never betrayed Republican principles, a thing Wyman and his crowd are now doing.

Allegheny Wants Reform.

"The charge that I am to be ruled by the old Allegheny organization leaders, in the event of my election, I think is absurd to any thoughtful person. I tried to make it clear in my statement to the public, following my nomination, that I was not the first choice of the old party leaders. The nomination of me to head the Republican ticket is simply evidence of the truth that Republican leaders realize that a man with reform ideas is demanded by the citizens of Allegheny. I owe nothing to any one and am bound by no pledges. If I am elected the municipal affairs will be shaped by my administration."

Ward organization in the Republican party will be inaugurated today. The city executive committee has appointed as ward committees the councilmanic and school director candidates on the Republican tickets. Each committee will elect its chairman and district workers will be enlisted. Arrangements are being made for one of the greatest speech-making campaigns that Allegheny has ever seen. Every ward is to be canvassed, and every voter spoken to. The speech-making campaign will be started two weeks before election day.

home. Sirne of York, who was kept home for the same reason, and Ikeler of Columbia, who sent no excuse.

Every member from Allegheny county, including those who failed to attend the senatorial caucus, voted for Penrose. There had been some speculation as to what course the Citizens members would take, but they came under the wire with the "regular" bunch.

Representative Edwards of Bucks county, who has acted with the insurgent Republicans for the past five years and whose name does not appear on the Republican roll, voted for Walter P. Ledoux, the well-known manufacturer of Bucks county. Mr. Leedom is a Republican. CHESTER D. POTTER.

ALLEGHENY COUNCILS MUST HAVE HEARING

North Side Will Be Afforded Opportunity to Be Heard on Annexation.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.

Senator John M. Goehring will not introduce the Greater Pittsburgh Bill until after he has submitted it to the councilmanic committee of the city of Allegheny. This he expects to do when he goes home this week.

"I do not wish to act hastily in this matter, its importance is too great," said Mr. Goehring. "Every step must be taken in the open and full opportunity for careful consideration given those whose interests are at stake."

That the Republican state organization is preconcedingly in favor of the consolidation of the two cities was indicated by the indorsement it received in the inaugural address of Gov. Pennypacker. This encouragement may result in the introduction of a bill other than that now in the hands of Senator Goehring. Here it is believed that the proposition of a Greater Pittsburgh will not be realized if the matter is left to a vote by the people of the city of Allegheny. On this point, however, there is a conflict of opinion, many holding that the majority sentiment now prevailing on the North Side is favorable to annexation. Unless this proves true it is unlikely that the present legislature will approve a bill providing for the consolidation of the two cities.

SOUTH CAROLINIANS OPPOSE COLORED MAN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—(Special.)—Senator Tillman today received notification that Mayor Smyth of Charleston, accompanied by a delegation of prominent citizens of South Carolina will arrive Thursday to appear before the senate commerce committee to oppose the confirmation of Dr. William Crum, colored, recently nominated for collector at the port of Charleston.

of his own, and the reading of his address, replete as it was with premonitory symptoms of recommendatory messages to the legislature, confirmed his hearers in their opinion that here was a governor who would be heard from in no uncertain terms when recommending legislation that he thought advisable or when condemning legislation that he might disapprove. Gov. Stone listened intently and received the sheets of the speech submissively, and nobody could tell by the expression of his face what he thought of it all.

Shortly before noon the chief marshal of the parade, Congressman M. E. Olmsted; Chief of Staff Richardson, Gen. John A. Wiley and the escort committee rode to the governor's mansion to escort him to the capitol. Gov. Stone sat in a carriage with Senator Focht, chairman of the inaugural committee, and Stone's private secretary, Mr. Gerwig.

Cheered New Governor.

Gov. Stone was picked up at the Lochiel hotel, where he took rooms after the Pennypackers had been installed in the governor's mansion the day before. Gov. Pennypacker stepped into the carriage and, preceded by the escort, rode to the capitol. On the way the new governor was loudly cheered and he doffed his hat many times in response to the applause. He was driven to the entrance in the rear of the reviewing stand and presently appeared in the front of the stand, where he was again heartily cheered. With him were Gov. Stone, the lieutenant governor-elect, William M. Brown; Lieut. Gov. Gobin and all the retiring and hold-over state officers. Mrs. Pennypacker, the Misses Pennypacker, Miss Biggar of Cleveland, their guest, and John and Isaac Pennypacker, the governor's brothers, were seated in the stand.

Senator Focht called the assemblage to order and read the program of the inaugural ceremonies, and the Rev. E. H. Leisenring of Chambersburg invoked the divine blessing on the incoming magistrate. Chief Clerk Edward Smiley of the senate then read the certificate of election of the governor and Justice Fell of the supreme court administered the oath of office. The oath was read deliberately by the justice, and the governor, while holding up his gloved hand, gave little emphatic nods several times and replied to the interrogatory form in which the oath is put, with a hearty "I do." Following the oath Lieut. Gov. Gobin announced that Samuel W. Pennypacker had been inaugurated as governor. The new governor stepped forward to make his inaugural and three cheers were given him. He then delivered his address, and at its conclusion was again cheered. Then Gov. Pennypacker and his party repaired to the governor's mansion, where he reviewed the parade.

Brown Succeeds Gobin.

The senate went into session immediately and Lieut. Gov. Gobin took his leave of the body over which he had presided. He called it the finest legislative body in existence. Then Mr. Brown was sworn in as lieutenant governor by Judge Wilbank of Philadelphia. Lieut. Gov. Brown then delivered an address.

Gov. Pennypacker stood out in the cold while reviewing the parade, but the marching columns were not long in passing his house, so that by the time he had warmed up and eaten luncheon the hour was late. It was 4 o'clock before he and his secretary, Bromley Wharton, reached the executive department for the first time. Judge John Weiss of Philadelphia and other friends of the governor stood on the porch ready to greet him. The governor shook hands with them and immediately went upstairs to his office. The doors were closed, and governor and secretary plunged into official papers.

GOVERNOR'S INAUGURAL A SCHOLARLY EFFORT

Says Pennsylvania Is Great State, but May Become Still Greater.

Citizens of Pennsylvania—The event in which we participate presents some unusual features. Your state has a population of 6,302,115, greater than that of England in the time of Elizabeth, twice that of Holland when the leading maritime power of the world, and twice that of the United States when Washington became president. Her resources are almost boundless. Her revenues amount to the annual sum of $47,000,000.

The floating indebtedness of about three and a half millions of dollars which existed four years ago has been paid off during the last administration and she is now substantially without debt of any kind. She pays each year for the maintenance of public schools and of charities more than any other American commonwealth.

The lands of her citizens are not taxed for her benefit and the tax rate in her large cities is less than in any other of the great municipalities of the country.

The governorship of Pennsylvania is an office, therefore, which is one of the great executive places of the earth. No man, whatever may be his capacity or what the manner in which he has been called, ought to approach it save with humble steps and with a grave sense of its importance and responsibilities. Relying upon Divine Providence, proud of the exceptional achievements of this forceful and efficient people and depending for support upon their virtue and intelligence, I have taken in your presence the oath of office, and I go forward to the performance of the duties and to see to it so far as I may be able that, under the constitution, the laws are faithfully administered.

Will Seek Information.

It is my wish always within reasonable limits to confer with all persons who may have facts to impart or conclusions to present, and it is my purpose to consult especially with those who in common parlance are called "plain people." There is no more dangerous public vice than the prevalent affectation of disrespect for those who are engaged in the performance of the work of the cities, the commonwealths and the nation. Because it is true that there is attack upon popular government, and its tendency is to undermine our institutions. There was a time when proper deference was shown even to those officials clothed in authority and the cultivation of a like spirit is a much-needed public virtue.

There is too much legislation. Sir William Blackstone said in 1758 that "The common law of England has fared like other venerable edifices of antiquity which rash and inexperienced workmen have ventured to new dress and redo with all the rage for modern improvements."

This truth needs to be reiterated. It is far better to leave the law alone unless the necessity for change is plain. Stability and certainty are more important than absolute accuracy. It is wiser not to disturb an imperfect rule to which business relations have become adapted than with the community has become familiar.

The purpose of the constitution in making the sessions of the legislature biennial instead of annual was that the bulk of legislation should be lessened and longer consideration given to it, and our duty is to heed the provision.

Too Many Crimes Invented.

The modern tendency to invent new crimes ought to be curbed. To obliterate the marked line which distinguishes between mere breaches of contract and crimes is to bring the law itself into disrepute. To threaten with imprisonment him who has filled a bottle entrusted to him, the contents of which he has bought, or him who sells a railroad ticket, the evidence of a right of transportation for which he has paid, is no doubt a convenience to corporations and others in enforcing their contracts, but it takes from the prison much of its effect as a restraint upon those who do evil.

Juries refuse to convict where they believe the charge ought not to be sustained, even though the facts come within the terms of a statute and the men are taught to disregard the law. The principles of right and wrong are immutable and as old as the human race, and extreme care ought to be exercised in adding to the list of offenses things done which were never known to be offenses until they became "statutory."

The constitution differs that at the completion of each United States census there shall be a senatorial and representative reapportionment of the state. There is practical difficulty in making a senatorial reapportionment in the manner directed by that instrument. If these difficulties prove to be insurmountable then the constitution must be interpreted like every other written instrument in such a way as to reconcile inconsistencies and carry out the purposes which it was intended to serve. A serious effort ought to be made to apportion the state according to its terms, and if there are any of the counties which cannot be made to fit into the scheme then such plan as will most closely approximate the required result ought to be adopted.

The present ballot law suggested in the interest of reform and adopted by the legislature in an effort for improvement, by the politicians has proven in practice to be both cumbersome and inefficient. It needs either careful amendment or reconstruction. Our system of government disfranchises the citizen who fails of every elector to vote according to his judgment and preference, without interference by or obstruction from any other persons or influence and that the votes of the voters accurately counted. In providing the necessary means it ought to be remembered that the more simple they are the more likely are they to be effective.

The great mass of voters have neither the time nor the inclination when they reach the polls to study the methods of voting, however meritorious they may be, and the plan adopted ought to be of the simplest and most understand. The thought that something ought to be done by means of the law to encourage independent voting and to make it difficult for the Prohibitionist, Socialist or Democrat or Republican to vote his full party ticket, if he so wills, is mere vicious theorizing and would be an interference with the right of the voter which should not be tampered.

In Pennsylvania, as in all of the other American states, the principles upon which the right of eminent domain is based have been too often strained in their application. The constitution of both the United States and the states protect the citizen in his individual right of property. But when there is public need for the good of the community the state may intervene, and, giving him compensation, compel him to surrender his individual right for the general welfare. The test is the public necessity, and the thought upon the part of corporations or individuals is if they can by their property they could use it to advantage is utterly foreign to the inquiry.

Lose Sight of Principle.

There ought to be some means provided for ascertaining the existence of such public need before franchises are granted giving the right of eminent domain. Yet under our general railroad law any nine or more persons may unite upon their own judgment of the profitableness of the venture to foul streams, cut through forests and destroy homesteads. Often they are mistaken both in the need and the profit, and this is learned after and not before the harm has been done.

Eminent jurists have doubted the constitutionality of the act, and the events its wisdom in this respect is more than questionable. In our haste to accumulate we are in some ways in danger of losing sight of manhood and even of fundamental and old principles.

In my view, before any franchise is granted, either by special or general law, involving a disturbance of the individual right of property and before any exercise of the enormous power of eminent domain by a private corporation there ought to be express assent by the state itself, based upon an ascertainment of the public need.

This would mean the employment of a competent engineer to give information to the proper department. If hereafter, in any way, the state is to exercise control over public roads there will be further need for such technical information.

In Pennsylvania conflicts between concentrated capital and organized labor are of frequent occurrence, and often result in cessation of production, loss of profits and earnings, violations of the law and disturbances and inconvenience to the community. These present some of the most difficult and complicated problems with which modern administration is confronted.

They occur more frequently here than elsewhere because of the great number of our industries requiring the employment of masses of men, many of them born in other lands, and some of them uneducated, unfamiliar with our language and indifferent to our institutions. While it is difficult to prevent these occurrences it is possible to assuage the wrought in the approach it sources, and while perhaps this method of treating them has not been unwise the query arises whether it would not be well to give heed to the future. The commercial idea put briefly and in gross is that forests, coal, oil and iron are to be sent into the market as soon and as rapidly as possible, in order that they may be converted into money and the men of today may live in luxury and enjoyment.

The duty of the statesman is to look beyond the indulgence of the time, to regard these resources as gifts of Providence, to be husbanded with care and used as need requires rather than wasted for the improvident, glutted markets, with a sense that when once exhausted they can never be restored. While it is a satisfaction to see libraries in England founded by generous gifts, the highest gift of every elector to vote according to his judgment from the outcome of the iron and oil of Pennsylvania, due primarily to her liberality, we may be pardoned a feeling of regret that so much of the wealth of that production is controlled and utilized elsewhere.

Tax on Productions.

I suggest that the legislature consider the propriety of imposing a slight tax upon some one of her productions, the proceeds to be applied to the betterment of our roads, such a tax as would not be a serious burden, but would result in securing for our own people a proportion of the benefit of the natural deposits. Upon all the tax so imposed should be so small as not unduly to add to the cost garded even by the producers themselves as fair and equitable.

No people are ever really great who are regardless of their shrines and have no pride in their achievements. The history of the world shows that a correct sentiment is a more lasting and potent force than either accumulated wealth or commercial prosperity.

The theses which Luther nailed to the church door at Wittenberg still sway the minds of men and the Pugnres disappeared when they died. What would there have been to the influence of Greece without the memories of Marathon or of England without those of Runnymede? Around Fort Duquesne in Western Pennsylvania at one time the greatest struggle in the world was to a large extent determined in the French and Indian war, the question whether the American continent should be dominated by Latin or Teutonic civilization. Inviting the nations of race, and around Philadelphia in Eastern Pennsylvania the real struggle of the revolutionary war occurred.

The great example set by Philadelphia in its care of independence hall and Congress hall should be followed by the state. The fields of Fort Necessity, where Washington first became known, of Bushy Run, where Bouquet won his important victory, and the camp ground of Valley Forge should be tenderly cared for and preserved. The state has appropriated a certain sum for the fields of Valley Forge, and much of the ground has been secured. The rest should be taken and the reasonable needs of the commission must be supplied.

There is one institution of learning which occupies a unique relation to the state. The constitution of 1790 for the first time in America made it the duty of the state to provide for higher education by the erection of a university. In accordance with this provision the state took hold of the college of which Benjamin Franklin was the founder, to which Governor John Smith the real founder and Benjamin Franklin an adjunct, about which citizens have assembled as well as the memory of George Whitefield, and made of it a university and continued to provide it by gifts of lands.

Control was assured under the act of 1791 by making the governor of the state president and requiring the trustees to report to the legislature the condition of its funds. In later years both duty and relation were forgotten and control was perpetuated by self-election. The university has become one of the most useful and efficient now existing. It shall be my effort to restore the relation of patronage and control, the outgrowth of changed conditions and made a constitutional requirement, and to regain and retain for the state the credit for this early and unprecedented recognition of the cause of learning.

Experience has shown that men are neither strong enough nor virtuous enough to be entrusted for any length of time with unlimited and irresponsible power. Institutions of the highest utility when established often become dangerous to the community. Even the church has been at times used for the worst of personal ends. The doctrine of the liberty of the press, conceived at a time when it was necessary to disclose the movements of arbitrary power has become in recent days too often a cover for base and ignoble purposes, and like the sanctuaries of old a place of retreat where any wrongdoer may secure immunity from punishment.

Sensational Journalism.

Sensational journals have arisen all over the land, the owners in concealment and the writers and purveyors undesignated, and they have thriven by propagating crime and disseminating falsehood and scandal, by promulgating dissension and anarchy, by attacks upon individuals and by assaults upon government and the agencies of the people.

They are a terror to the household, a detriment to the public service, and an impediment to the courts of justice. It would be helpful and profitable to regulable journalism if they could be suppressed. The time is near at hand and may have already come when society will find means to prevent this development of vicious life which constitutes the most conspicuous instance of existing ills.

I know of no reason why Pennsylvania, which has been foremost in so many directions in the past, should not take the lead in a needed effort to improve manners and morals by such a reform. Our constitution imposes responsibility for the abuse of the liberty of the press and I suggest for the consideration of the legislature whether or not it would be well to extend to such cases the law of negligence as developed by the decisions of our courts, so that there should be liability in damages for the physical and mental suffering caused by publications made without "reasonable care."

I further suggest for inquiry as to the propriety of suppressing the names and residences of the owners of newspapers to be published with each issue. It may be that on consideration the legislature in its wisdom will be able to devise some plan by which the protecting journals of good repute, will tend to eliminate the unworthy.

Citizens Should Aid Each Other.

Upon a like occasion in 1738, Andrew Hamilton, the eminent man who established the fame of the Philadelphia lawyer and who built the Pennsylvania state house since adopted by the nation, and called Independence hall, wrote: "We enjoy a greater share of civil and religious liberty than any of our neighbors."

Pennsylvania took from the cavalier the coat of mail with which the birth of the middle ages had encased and bound him. She taught the narrow and bigoted Puritan to be cheerful and liberal. She fixed in the national constitution those principles taught by William Penn two and a quarter centuries ago, which have come to be typical of American civilization. She needs to overcome certain tendencies to dissidence and dissension existing among her people. She wants to have no sects and factions and no traditions of Quaker and churchman to hinder her efforts or retard her progress.

There must be no separate interests of city and country. She wants to feel a real pride in the lives of Penn and Wayne, of Hittenhouse and Meade, and to still with her frown of displeasure those at home and abroad who cry aloud against her.

Pittsburgh must aid Philadelphia to find an outlet to the sea as Antwerp, Glasgow, Manchester and other inland cities have done before, and Philadelphia must aid Pittsburgh in her effort to unite the vast population about the headwaters of the Ohio and to outdo the chief city of the west, and both must be not for themselves alone, but for the good of the state and its people.

And then will soon be realized what has been prophesied by many clear-headed observers, and Pennsylvania will take her place, not foremost alone in achievement and traditions, but in wealth and population among the American states.

PASSING OF FLEITZ CAUSES DISCONTENT

Gov. Pennypacker Not Likely to Reappoint Deputy Attorney General.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.

The members of the Republican State League of clubs are up in arms over the prospective failure of the governor to reappoint Deputy Attorney General Fred W. Fleitz of Lackawanna. He was an active Elkin supporter and is marked for retirement.

The league has had headquarters at the Lochiel hotel since Sunday for the purpose of booming Fleitz. City Treasurer J. Hampton Moore of Philadelphia, who is president of the National League of Republican clubs, came here to help the state president retain his position. Mr. Moore has great faith in the political usefulness of the members of the league, and believes that Mr. Fleitz's position as head of the state organization should entitle him to some consideration at the hands of the governor.

Mr. Moore left for Philadelphia tonight almost convinced that Fleitz would not be retained. He was bitterly disappointed as he had served as chairman of the committees that revolted on the citizens meeting in Witherspoon hall, which endorsed Judge Pennypacker last May. It was reported that Mr. Moore had threatened to issue a statement, but he probably changed his mind and may do so later. CHESTER D. POTTER.

ELKIN PROVES HIMSELF LOYAL REPUBLICAN

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.

One of the features of the day which is tonight on everybody's tongue was the magnificent exhibition of party loyalty displayed by Attorney General John P. Elkin. Although Mr. Elkin failed for the gubernatorial nomination when it seemed to be within his grasp, and although it now appears that none of his friends will hold high places under the new administration, he takes his medicine like a man and goes out of official life with a smile on his face.

Mr. Elkin was the only member of Stone's cabinet who rode in the inaugural parade and occupied a seat on the stand when the oath of office was administered, an oath which he, for two years or more, expected to take today. If he felt a personal disappointment, it was not evidenced. His hat was in the air as he came at salute, and a happy smile on his face from start to finish. He compelled admiration. Crowds cheered him with enthusiasm. CHESTER D. POTTER.

EIGHTEENTH REGIMENT DELAYED BY WRECK

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
HARRISBURG, PA., Jan. 20.

Despite a railroad wreck in which it was caught, the Eighteenth Regiment displayed its usual soldierly qualities in the parade today and received plaudits all along the line. To look at the springy step of Company F, no one would have thought that a few hours before the hour in which the members were dozing had been thrown from the track, the soldiers having a narrow escape from death, although not one of them was even bruised.

The accident happened at 7 o'clock, about 20 miles out of Harrisburg. The train consisted of a sleeping car, 17 passenger coaches, a commissary freight car and two locomotives. It had been running at the rate of 40 miles an hour, but when the accident happened it had slowed up to about 20 miles an hour to take water from one of the tanks between the rails. Suddenly a jolt was felt all through the train and the train stopped, but not before the second locomotive jumped the track and the car behind it, Company F's car, was also derailed.

The entire company was awake in an instant and after the first scare had subsided and it was found that no one was hurt, the situation was investigated. Both trucks of the car had left the rails, and the car was standing across the rails, one truck on either side of the track.

Company I was transferred to another car and another engine drew the train away, leaving the derailed engine and car behind and passing the wreck by a switch. It is surmised that if the train had not slowed up to take water, many more than one company would have been killed or wounded.

Col. Rutledge and his officers put a novel commissary plan into execution on this trip. On previous inaugural occasions the men took a few rations along and in Harrisburg ate at restaurants. This time a freight car was fitted up with stoves and ham and cheese and bread in quantities was taken aboard. The rations were served last night and all day today the men could eat without patronizing the restaurants. The coaches were kept warm all day, so that the men had a comfortable place in which to eat and sleep. J. D. IHMSEN.

PITTSBURGHER OFFERS ARBITRATION MEASURE

Provides for Commission to Adjust Disputes Between Capital and Labor.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.—In the house this morning Mr. Weaver of Pittsburgh introduced a bill providing for the organization of a board to arbitrate questions between capital and labor. The board is to be composed of three members, to be commissioned by the governor. One is to represent capital, the other labor, and the third to be selected by the two. They are to be clothed with authority to make investigations. For each day employed the commissioners will receive $5 and expenses.

Mr. Moore of Philadelphia put in a bill which means an increase in salaries for the judges of the state. Those in Allegheny will be raised to $8,000 a year. The chief justice of the supreme court would receive $12,500 and the other members $10,000. The superior court judges' salaries are increased to $10,000.

Among other bills introduced were the following:

Mr. Scott of Allegheny, appropriating $184,500 to the Western Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf and Dumb.

Mr. McWhinney of Allegheny, making it lawful for building and loan associations to make loans to members without bidding for the same in the order of application and to authorize a stated premium for such loans.

Mr. Cook of Allegheny, making it lawful for second class cities to purchase and hold land included within their corporate limits, but wholly within the county in which such cities may be situated for the purpose of erecting and maintaining a hospital for contagious and infectious diseases.

Mr. Moore of Philadelphia, fixing the annual salaries of judges of the supreme court at $12,000; judges of the superior court, $11,000; judges of the Philadelphia common pleas court, $10,000; judges of the Allegheny common pleas courts, $8,000; judges in the various other districts of the state, $5,000, with the exception of the judge of the Twelfth district, who shall receive $6,000. All districts having a population exceeding 90,000 and having but one judge the salary shall be $6,000.

In the senate the nominations of Paul W. Houck, Shenandoah, and George W. Davis, Scranton, as members of the state pharmaceutical board were confirmed. W. G. Minnich of Allegheny, the proposed third member of the board, is objected to and his name was not called up.

M'AFEE'S APPOINTMENT SUBJECTED TO DELAY

Failure of Gen. Reeder to Resign Banking Commissionership the Cause.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.

While Gov. Pennypacker still refuses to give any information bearing upon his cabinet, those close to him predict that he will tomorrow send to the senate for confirmation the following names: Secretary of the commonwealth, Frank M. Fuller of Fayette; attorney general, Hampton L. Carson of Philadelphia; insurance commissioner, Israel W. Durham of Philadelphia; superintendent of public buildings and grounds, James Shumaker of Cambria.

It is quite generally conceded that Robert McAfee of Allegheny will in time be tendered the portfolio of banking commissioner, but it is not believed that his name will be submitted at this time. Gen. Frank Reeder, the present banking commissioner, is not, it is said, disposed to resign, and it will require pressure to change his mind. That this pressure will be brought to bear no one doubts. The burning question is, When will the governor act? This information is not officially available. CHESTER D. POTTER.

WOMAN'S CLASP HELD HIM IN FIERY TORTURE

With her clothing in flames and frantic from pain, Mrs. Sarah Mullen, 35 years old, dashed out of her house at No. 74 Fifty-fourth street, yesterday afternoon, and threw her arms about Edward Moan of No. 5402 Berlin alley, and implored him to put out the fire. He was unable to break away from her, and the more he struggled the tighter she held. Moan's clothing caught fire and both fell, burned and unconscious, in the street.

Mrs. Mullen was taken to the St. Francis hospital and is in a serious condition. Moan was taken to his home. His right ear is burned off and he will lose his sight if he lives, which is very doubtful.

Mrs. Mullen was sitting in front of the grate in her room making a quilt. In some way her dress caught fire, and instantly she was in flames. The woman ran from the house into the street, screaming and pulling at her burning clothing. Moan was walking past the house and Mrs. Mullen ran at him. She threw her arms about his neck and begged him, in a most frantic way, to help her.

Moan tried to push her away. She embraced him tighter. In spite of his efforts Moan was unable to push the pain-crazed woman from him. His clothing caught fire and, screaming with pain, both fell to the pavement unconscious.

The screams of the couple attracted the neighbors. Their burning clothing was pulled from them and they were carried into Mrs. Mullen's house. Dr. H. C. Cooper of No. 7221 Butler street was summoned, and he ordered Mrs. Mullen to be removed to the hospital. She will die. Moan was taken to his home. His condition is critical.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(Special.)—An aged and apparently refined woman was arrested this afternoon on a charge of attempting to steal two veils from a Twenty-third street department store. She gave the police the name of Lizzie Wallace of 441 West Sixteenth street. The police do not think this is her right name. She said she is 71 years of age.

Paine's Celery Compound stands unequaled as a cure for all the varied forms of rheumatism. At this season its good work is apparent in thousands of American homes. Men and women, lame and crippled, and utterly helpless from the terrible disease are being restored to activity, health, and strength. Paine's Celery Compound is the only medicine that rescues and saves the despairing victim who is told that he or she is incurable. Mr. L. A. Fleshman, Gap Mills, W. Va., writes about his happy experience with Paine's Celery Compound; he says:—

"I had rheumatism in my left arm and shoulder, could not sleep, and had no appetite. I visited my sister who lives in Frankford, and she told me that she had been afflicted just as I was and Paine's Celery Compound had done her more good than anything she had tried, and she advised me to use it. I got one bottle and used it, and the result was I slept well, had a good appetite, and the pains of rheumatism left me and I have not felt them since; in fact, it has cured me and I feel like a new man."

quartet was on hand to furnish entertainment. The stage was thronged to a standing room state, and the aisles of the floor were filled by those who were unable to obtain seats. On a corner of the stage was the famous old blue banner of the Twentieth ward Republican organization, covered with a legend lauding Haymaker for the recordership.

Men who in the past had affiliated with various political faiths were there in a common accord. Jacksonian Democrats, Municipal leaguers, former members of the Citizens party, and Republicans sat side by side. On the stage among the vice presidents was Maj. R. H. Long, known in Pittsburgh as one of the original Fremont Republicans in this section.

Great Ovation for Haymaker.

The appearance of Mr. Haymaker was a signal for a wonderful outburst of applause. The popularity of the district attorney was shown to be with all classes. Men sprang upon their chairs and waved their hats in a stirring greeting to the man who is to lead in the fight against bossism, scandal and corruption.

In accord with the reversing of partisanship, the addresses universally were in support of choosing man before party. Mr. Haymaker struck the keynote of the campaign when he promised that his administration as recorder should be "without favoritism to any and with fidelity toward all."

"Any citizen, rich or poor, high or low, white or black," he said, "will always find the doors of the recorder's office open to him when he comes to discuss matters of import to the proper management of the city's affairs.

"If I do not keep my word with the people, at the end of three years I would go out of the office politically, professionally and socially damned."

Mr. Haymaker declared that he stood ready to refute any charge that the opposition might make against his character, private or public. He decried a personal campaign, and throughout his speech made no reference to the character of his opponent.

Many Stirring Key-Notes.

"I shall go down in a political wreck," he said, "before I shall use my voice to fan the flame in any contention between myself and my opponent."

Dr. T. D. Davis in calling the meeting to order congratulated the voters who had turned out to grace the opening of a campaign begun under auspices so favorable for a Republican victory—a victory which meant the triumph of the true principles of the party over the corrupt rule of a boss. Maj. A. P. Burchfield was announced as the permanent chairman of the meeting.

Maj. Burchfield said he had attended the meeting guided by the same motives as many others who were in the hall; he attended as a business man and not as a partisan worker. He said that in municipal elections he had not always believed in party politics. Continuing, he said in part:

"I want to say that I am independent in politics. When, however, a party indorses a man with a spotless record and the brains to fulfill the duties of the office, I will cheerfully grant my support if his platform is one that I can conscientiously stand upon. I congratulate the Republican party in selecting Mr. Haymaker. When I was approached prior to the city convention and tendered the nomination not a string was tied to it. My health did not permit my acceptance of the honor. I am sure that the same free hand was given Mr. Haymaker when he was given the nomination.

Man of Honesty and Morals Needed.

"Our city is destined to become one of the greatest municipalities in the world. No man can prophesy Pittsburgh's greatness 25 years hence. We must have as our executive head a man whose intellect, honesty and morals will be in proportion to the responsibilities of his office. Such a man we have in Mr. Haymaker."

Attorney J. McF. Carpenter was the first speaker. He said that he had known John C. Haymaker through three generations and spoke of the candidate's pedigree and of his devotion to his home and family. When Mr. Carpenter took up the Bigelow candidate and weighed him in the balance against Mr. Haymaker, he was interrupted by continued applause and laughter.

Mr. Haymaker was followed by William M. Hall, who was called upon to speak in the absence of J. M. Shields. Mr. Hall made a reference to Register Stengel and was interrupted by a cry, "Hurrah for Stengel." The cry was taken up on every side. "Yes, hurrah for Stengel," added Mr. Hall, "and for every Democrat who has the courage of his convictions and who can stand up for the right when he sees his party prostituted to a boss."

Samuel Hamilton was introduced as a citizen of Pittsburgh who was not a speechmaker, but nevertheless a staunch supporter of honesty in the city government. Mr. Hamilton was asked to come to the front of the stage and bow to the audience, but he fooled those who thought he would pay his allegiance with a nod, for he spoke for five minutes, lauding Mr. Haymaker and pointing to the number of prominent men who had braved the storm to add their voices to the appeal for good morals and good government.

J. M. Shield's Declaration.

Maj. Burchfield read a lengthy letter from Attorney J. M. Shields, who was to have spoken, but was absent on account of a death in his family. Mr. Shields was one of the organizers of the municipal league. In concluding his letter Mr. Shields wrote:

"I believe that the efforts of the Municipal league have borne fruit in the present platform of the Republican party. It's candidate and his letter of acceptance, and I do not wish to take a step backward. For these reasons I shall at this time vote for John C. Haymaker for recorder."

Register Stengel was called to the stage. When he had concluded his eloquent appeal for true reform, Councilman J. C. Wasson of the Twentieth ward received an ovation.

Mr. Wasson walked to the front of the stage displaying a resolution which had been passed by the Twentieth ward Citizens organization denouncing the nomination of Hays. All but himself and three of his colleagues, he said, had gone back on that resolution and had gone over to the Bigelow camp.

Maj. Burchfield announced that the meeting was over, but the crowd refused to leave the hall and called for Max G. Leslie, chairman of the city Republican committee. Mr. Leslie responded briefly and the meeting adjourned with three hearty cheers for Haymaker.

HAYMAKER SOUNDS CAMPAIGN KEYNOTE

Republican Candidate Repeats the Ringing Declaration that He is No Man's Man.

Mr. Haymaker's introduction was followed by a tremendous outburst of applause. Maj. Burchfield's address in presenting the candidate was brief. "You all know Mr. Haymaker," he said, and the handclapping immediately commenced. When silence had been obtained one enthusiast in the front row sprang up and shouted: "You're all right, John." Mr. Haymaker's speech follows:

Mr. Chairman and Fellow Citizens—I regret tonight that I do not possess that wealth of words by which I may entertain you in proper words for this more than magnificent demonstration in my interest, considering the inclemency of the weather. There is no man so much hampered in a political campaign as a speaker, as the man who is a candidate for office. He must not laud his good qualities, and so far as I am concerned, personally, I shall go down in a political wreck before I use a breath, personally, against an opponent of mine.

It is a good thing that upheavals sometimes occur in politics, and it is the best thing that can possibly take place in a municipal campaign like this. It brings out the citizen, and arouses him to a sense of duty to his city and to his family and home.

There is nothing that is so demoralizing to the interests of the city as the apathy of the people who vote. Because if the citizens do not turn out the affairs of the city gradually but surely pass into the hands of a few people, and when these are in power and see that they are watched by the people, that the people turn out and vote, they will always keep before them the interests of the people, because the people will make them answerable for their actions at any time.

Nomination Was Unsolicited.

It is unnecessary for me to say that at Old City hall I was nominated by a convention, which, for independence, has never been exceeded by anything that has occurred in that place for many years. There was the professional man, there was the artisan, there was the man who earned his bread by the sweat of his brow, and there was not a man in that entire audience who could stand up and say that I ever solicited or asked any one of them for his support for that nomination.

It is admitted by the opposition that if it were a question between me and my opponent, that there would be no question of the result next month, but they attempt to bring into this campaign the alleged fact that I shall be influenced by men who have long been in politics. There is no man who ever became a candidate for public office who can prove to the people in advance, in any way, what his official conduct will be after he gets into the office.

I can tell you that I propose being recorder in fact as well as in name, and recorder in name as well as in deed. I have been your district attorney for seven or eight years. If there is any office in the county of Allegheny in which it requires a man to have courage, if there is any office in this county which requires independence, it is in that office.

Politics Never Interfered With Duty.

Nearly every time that I tried a man of influence—a man of influence in his ward, a man of influence in his district, a man who may have had some interest in politics, a man who might be able to carry his district—when any such man was being prosecuted during the term of office of others they have always had their friends, their political friends and their personal friends, asking me to dispose of their case according to their liking.

There are many people in this city and county who have known me officially. Let them point their finger to a single official act of mine in which I allowed politics to interfere with the discharge of my duties!

They say that I have always been with the Republican organization. They say it is not a question of personality between the candidates, but that it is a question as to whether or not I shall be controlled by a higher power. They say that I have been a politician, that I have been check by jowl with the organization, but let me tell you, gentlemen, that at no time was I taken into the inner councils with reference to the politics of the city of Pittsburgh. I was never consulted about who would be nominated, I was never talked to about who the candidates might be.

I discharged the duties of my office until the campaign became warm and then I took the stump for the Republican party. If it is a crime to have always ben a Republican—if it is a crime to have stood by the party in adversity, as well as prosperity—then I have been guilty of a terrible crime since I was 21 years of age. (Applause.)

Ready to Answer All Charges.

I saw it asserted in a paper tonight and was also informed that there was in circulation a report to the effect that I, as district attorney of the county, issued a letter or threat to the people of last election day that any man who undertook to vote without he himself having paid a state or county tax within two years would be prosecuted. I want to say to this magnificent audience, and I challenge any man to prove to the contrary, that I never issued that letter. That letter was issued on the Saturday preceding the election, and the election was on the following Tuesday. I repudiated it in the newspapers and no man can charge that against me.

There will be a great many things said about me during this campaign. I shall be able to answer every charge if it reflects on my official or on my private character. No man knows what will be charged against me and I do not know. When a man runs for office he becomes a target for all kind of political malice.

I want to say to you, the people of Pittsburgh—I want to make this assertion, in full confidence that you will believe what I tell you, keeping before me all of these facts—that if I go into the office of recorder of this city and I do not keep my word with the people, at the end of three years I shall go out of that office politically, professionally and socially damned.

No Man Can Control Him.

In my letter of acceptance I have said that no man or set of men shall dominate or control or influence me. I say that tonight. I will say that every night for the next 30 days. And have I lived to this age that I shall go into that office and by my conduct and my acts, demonstrate to the people that I am not a man of truth? I am not here, gentlemen, for the purpose of portraying to you the crimes in politics that the other side has been guilty of—you will hear that from other people later on. I am here to give you my word that in the discharge of my duty it shall be done without favoritism to any and with fidelity to all.

If I am elected to that office I shall be glad to meet all the people. It shall be the people's government of the city of Pittsburgh, and there is no man, be he rich or poor, white or black, that cannot come to me with his complaints; and any body of citizens can always find admittance to my office for the discussion of what is best for the interests of the city of Pittsburgh.

What evidence have you that I will keep these promises? What evidence have you that I am telling you the truth? You have but my word, and in addition to that you have my life and official record, and beyond that I can give you nothing more. It is my intention, it will be the ambition of my life, if I am elected to this office of recorder, to give the cleanest government the city has ever had. I shall endeavor to demonstrate to the public that this is a government of the people, by the people and for the people.

STENGEL APPEALS FOR TRUE REFORM

Former Citizens Leader Will Take the Republican Stump in Behalf of Haymaker.

After Register George H. Stengel was spied upon the stage there were cries for him to speak. Finally the shouts, "Stengel, Stengel, Stengel," proved irresistible, and Maj. Burchfield called the plucky Twentieth ward citizen to the platform. Mr. Stengel handled the bosses without gloves. He said:

Mr. Chairman, My Republican Friends and My Fellow Citizens: Nothing was further from my mind when I came to this Republican meeting, through this Democratic weather, than the making of any remarks to this magnificent audience. Nothing was further from my mind than that I should find such an audience here, on a night like this.

I am here tonight because I am true to the principles I have been following for the past seven years. Friends of mine and friends of honest municipal government, have advocated my election on the platform of honest municipal government, and in order to show the people that, so far as I am concerned this was no baseless or hollow pretense. I am here tonight to advocate the election of the candidate nominated in a Republican convention, because he is the only fit candidate.

I am grateful to the people of Pittsburgh and to the people of Allegheny county who have honored me far beyond my deserts, and I will show to them that I will be true to the principles on which I was elected. I owe my election to no single man, and I owe my nomination to no single man, and under the providence of God I intend to demonstrate to the whole people that I will conduct my office in a way to show that I am grateful to them.

I advocate the election of John C. Haymaker, whom I know to be an honest, independent man. Having said so much I will say no more on this occasion, but will appeal to every Democrat who may be here, as I propose to appeal to every Democrat in the city of Pittsburgh between now and the election, to repudiate the action of the convention held in the West End. I was present there. I had the evidence of my own eyes; I have the evidence of W. J. Brennan, that with his own eyes, he saw two Democratic delegates receive money on the floor of that convention. He got up and denounced it, but now he says that he will go along with them. But I will not.

I am going to advocate the election of John C. Haymaker, because I know that when he says he will not be dominated in the discharge of the duties of his office by any politician, it is the truth. I cannot claim to be a personal friend of Mr. Haymaker, my acquaintance with him is merely that of one member of the bar with another, but I have observed his course as district attorney and no man could have fulfilled the duties of that office in a more efficient manner. I was a member of the municipal league from the time of its organization; I was a member of the Citizens party from the time of its organization. I was present at the meeting when both of these parties were organized. And I cannot repeat it too often, that every good citizen and every good Democrat, and every good Republican, and every citizen of Pittsburgh who loves his city, and loves his home, must vote for John C. Haymaker. (Great applause.)

FROM STANDPOINT OF BUSINESS MEN

Maj. Burchfield Tells Why He Will Support the Republican Candidate and Platform.

The crowd was anxious to do honor to the man who had been first considered for the nomination, and when Dr. Davis introduced Maj. A. P. Burchfield a hearty greeting was extended. "You have heard the story of the gallant division in the Union army that assaulted the famous stone wall at Fredericksburg," said Dr. Davis. "Well, Maj. Burchfield was among those brave men 40 years ago, and he never shirks a fight." Maj. Burchfield said:

Fellow Citizens: Called on to preside here tonight I want to thank you for the honor. I want to congratulate, first, the party that has put in nomination so magnificent a man as they have for the position of recorder of this city. I want to congratulate you, when on such an inclement night as this, you have come out to this meeting to show your interest in the election of an honest man.

I am not here as a politician; I come as a plain business man. I come feeling what the necessities of the city of Pittsburgh are, as a business man. I know this, as a taxpayer in the city of Pittsburgh, and when I tell you that the taxes paid by the corporation I am interested in, city, county and state, amounted to $40,000 during the past year, you will know that I have some interest at least in having a good man at the head of the government of the city of Pittsburgh.

I am not here for the purpose of traducing any man who is up for public preferment. The man who is opposing the candidate who sits upon this platform tonight, may be as pure as the driven snow. I do not know, personally, of anything against him, but I want you to come to a logical conclusion about him. When the party that put him in nomination will arise and revolt against him there must be something in the objection made to his nomination.

Logical Conclusions Drawn.

Secondly—When that candidate has not been agreed upon by those who are supporting the party that he is connected with, and when another man could have been proposed who would have met all the conditions that were necessary, I want to say that I believe that there is something more behind that candidate than the mere fact that everyone wanted him, for they didn't. There must be something behind that man; some one is pushing him for the position; they want to control him when he gets into that position. That is the logical conclusion.

I want to say I have been identified in politics for a number of years and when I found that there was anything in the Republican party that I did not think was right I was independent. I want to say here tonight, before I say anything more, I do not indorse the first plank that was put in the platform. There has been a great deal done by the Republican party in the city of Pittsburgh during the past 14 years that I do indorse, but I know it for a fact that there have been other things done in the past 14 years that I cannot indorse. I want to say here tonight that I never went out of the Republican party except when my conscience dictated. But when that party comes back to its true allegiance, and when it is ready to give me a platform I can stand upon, I am ready to support it. I want to say that it is now my party and my platform.

I want to say further that when you put up a man of the character that you have on that platform and whose manly utterances in his letter of acceptance have been put before the people of Pittsburgh, it is an honor to the Republican party to have such a leader as John C. Haymaker.

Honest Government Wanted.

Now that is just where I stand. I want an honest government. I want the best interests of the city of Pittsburgh fostered. This city is growing in a marvelous manner. We cannot tell what its growth will be in the next 25 years. There are many things wanted, and we need a good, honest man in the chair of recorder to push these things along.

As a business man I want to plead here tonight for better transportation, not only for roads seeking entrance to Pittsburgh, but I want those now entering here to have every facility possible to move all the commerce coming into the city, and the manufactured stuff are going out of it. We all agree, I think, upon this, that if our city is going to remain as she is, the industrial center of the world, we must give to her all the facilities that it is possible to have. I might go on to speak upon all these subjects that will come before us in the next year for settlement. I will leave that for the man who is going to speak to you tonight, who is up for recorder. I want to say from all I know about that man, and I have heard a great deal about him, that you have the right man for the right place.

ONLY ONE SIDE SHOWN OF CITIZENS BANNER

J. McF. Carpenter was warmly applauded when introduced to the audience. When silence has been restored he gave three reasons why Haymaker should be elected:

First of all and above all others, is the fact that his record is clean—through all the years in which he has represented our county as district attorney not one hint of personal wrongdoing has been heard. His personal and official records are absolutely free from taint.

Second, and perhaps, I should have placed this first—John C. Haymaker is an honored and beloved husband and father. To him this relation is most sacred. With such principles to guide him and such influences to control him he cannot go astray. Faithful in the discharge of every duty, ambitious to do right, he is and will continue to be a manly man of whom we may well be proud. Stand by him to the end.

But one more word about our candidate—he is no man's man—he is simply the candidate of a great party whose sole aim will be to do right. We may depend upon him to do right. He is worthy.

DEMOCRATS LAUDED BY ATTORNEY HALL

Attorney William M. Hall stated that he had seldom taken part in political campaigns, but when a contest was being waged which vitally affected every citizen of the city who has its best interests at heart he was glad to have a voice in indorsing an honest candidate. He said in part:

Why did Mr. Shields come out for Mr. Haymaker? Why does John Eaton come out for Mr. Haymaker? They are honorable, honest men. Mr. Eaton is the head of a large business concern. He is at the head of the Municipal league. Why did Mr. Gaffey, the anti-L. man, come out for Mr. Haymaker? I see by the papers that the ministers are largely for Mr. Haymaker. Now when I see these things I conclude that Mr. Haymaker is a great deal bigger man than the whole organization. We want to convince them that we mean business of giving to the people an honest and honorable government, and it seems to me that Mr. Haymaker is the man.

THERE are people who object to the use of any proprietary medicine, on the suspicion that spirits may have been used in its manufacture.

Even Peruna has not altogether escaped such criticism. But people who have taken Peruna, who have known of the benefits of Peruna by actual experience, know how utterly unfounded such notions are concerning Peruna. When the treasurer of the National Prohibition Voters' League comes out in a public statement to the effect that words fail to express his praise for Peruna, and for the manufacturers of Peruna, it must appear to every candid mind how utterly irrational it is to suppose that any objection could be raised against Peruna from the standpoint of temperance.

Every great success is sure to make enemies. Peruna is a great success, and through jealousy and envy much has been said calculated to prejudice the public against it.

But those who have taken Peruna know better. The vast multitude of people who have been cured of catarrh in some form by Peruna, will never cease to praise Peruna for the benefits received.

Hon. Geo. W. McBride, ex-U. S. Senator from Oregon, from the Dewey Hotel, Washington, D. C., writes: "The excellence of Peruna for catarrh and colds has been so satisfactorily established by many of my acquaintances who have been relieved by its use, that I unhesitatingly indorse its curative qualities."—Geo. W. McBride.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—"I cannot think of words that will express my praise for your most wonderful remedy, Peruna. It is beyond a doubt the most wonderful cure that long sufferers from catarrh can find.

"I have suffered from this dread disease more than twenty years, and was only induced to try your remedy against my will after having spent hundreds of dollars in every possible channel seeking relief, as some of my intimate friends had been cured by it.

"I am most pleased to tell you that I am today a perfectly well man who cannot help but praise the manufacturers, for the everlasting benefit I have received from your remedy.

"With hopes for your greatest success, I am,

Sincerely yours to command,

C. L. POLSTON.

Peruna has among its friends many of the leading temperance workers in this country, who give it unstinted praise, and do not hesitate to indorse it by the use of the most extravagant language.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

They are guaranteed to wear 25 years; many of the earliest made are still in constant use; thousands have been worn continuously for over 35 years. The imitations are also guaranteed for 25 years; but none of them have been made long enough to prove that they will wear so long; some of them are bound to disappoint those who buy them. Aguinaldo's scheme for the relief of the Philippines is rather more comprehensive than the modest suggestion of Secrtary Root. Yet it has points of merit. The principal objection will not be to the nature of his plan, but to the size of it. The Philippines are not in need of such a very large sum as $100,000,000 in gold or its equivalent, and it is to be feared such a large loan would cause serious inflation and a train of evil consequences. But the Philippines are in need of relief and it cannot be extended too soon.

John Uppermann's select council committee inspected the route of the Brilliant cut-off yesterday and as far as can be learned found it satisfactory. Even more important is the promise of the committee to consider both the Pennsylvania and Wabash ordinances on Friday, with a quite positive assurance that both will be reported affirmatively to councils. There is certainly no sense in a further holdup and councilmen have been given to understand what public sentiment on the subject favors. If they desire to represent their constituents they will act accordingly.

It must have been quite a shock to the dignified house of representatives at Washington when an English young woman denounced Representative Cochran's assertion about Canada as a "lie." Mr. Cochran was merely excrcising a time-honored prerogative to twist the British lion's tail. The lion is accustomed to it and not very sensitive. This sort of statesmanship is usually described as "playing to the galleries," but after the episode of yesterday there may be some doubt whether the galleries always take the expected view of the matter. Absolutely in this one instance the gallery not only resented the imputation, but denounced it in manner more forcible than polite. However, aside from jarring the sense of propriety of the house, no harm was done.

At least two bills of immediate interest to Pittsburgh have appeared at Harrisburg. One originated in Philadelphia and aims to repeal the act prohibiting the erection of any hospital in built-up sections of a city. The other presented by Representative Cook, bears the innocent title of "An act authorizing cities to purchase and hold title to lands not within the corporate limits," though in reality it is the bill to enable cities—possibly to require them—to locate and maintain hospitals for contagious diseases outside the city limits. The repealer ought certainly to pass. The other if it proves merely an enabling act may be regarded as harmless, but if it proposes to compel cities to locate their pesthouses beyond their boundaries it should be defeated. It is born of a wrong idea about the spread of contagion, anyway.

President Roosevelt's speech before the assembled guests of the Young Men's Christian association at a banquet in Washington celebrating the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the local association was thoroughly characteristic of the man. In an address concerning the young manhood of the country, its perils and opportunities, the president finds ample scope for that broadminded, vigorous mentality that adds such force and charm to his utterances on the most shopworn themes. That he should make the demand for decent, clean manhood the key of his address to the young men of a great moral organization is, therefore, to be expected, but in this particular speech he has shown a knowledge of human nature and an appreciation of the forces at work to create a higher and stronger type of manhood that prove him a student of the moral, as well as the material and political conditions of the country.

Controller Larkin is consistent in his strenuous efforts to hold down appropriations so they may be covered by a thirteen-mill levy, but he is not always logical. The cost of maintaining any particular bureau in Cleveland or Cincinnati is worth something for purposes of comparison, but cannot be taken as a hard and fast limit for covering somewhat different conditions in Pittsburgh. Wages in general are somewhat higher in Pittsburgh than in either Cleveland or Cincinnati and the cost of living is slightly higher here owing to circumstances over which Mr. Larkin has no control. It follows naturally that Pittsburgh firemen should be paid slightly more. Economy is a good thing and a dollar is worth saving wherever it can be cut out without impairing efficiency of service. But horizontal cutting of appropriations or tariffs is not economy, but a blind attack upon existing conditions.

Representative Weaver of Allegheny has the credit of introducing the first arbitration measure at Harrisburg. It is a good bill as far as it goes, but judging from the incomplete text at hand contains no provision for arbitrating any disputes unless the commission be invited by the disputants to take a hand. In this respect it falls short of the Adams proposition, elucidated before the Civic federation, to compel submission of evidence before an arbitration commission, but leaving the finding noncompulsory. The point is that disputants who are ready to call in an official board of arbitration do not need one. They may easily agree upon nonofficial arbitrators. If there is to be law upon the subject it ought to go at least far enough to provide compulsory investigation of the causes leading to strike or lockout and publicity of the facts. Little good can be accomplished by less than that.

In the construction of another line across the state following a route farther north and converging to a juncture with the present main line at Harrisburg, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has undertaken an immense improvement, but one that is made necessary by the enormous growth in freight traffic from the western side of the state in recent years. The proposed new line will traverse a route longer than the present main line system, but it will tap a country rich in freight products. The great advantage, however, and the real object involved in the vast outlay required is to relieve the rapidly increasing freight congestion of the main stem. The new line will be used principally for freight traffic and will be a long step toward solving the problem of traffic congestion that has grown beyond all ordinary methods of modern railroad management in connection with the present track facilities from the extreme points in the state east and west.

Mr. Hanauer's strictures upon the street car service in Pittsburgh and Allegheny are not much beyond the mark. The humane societies would not permit shippers to pack cattle in cars in the manner humanity is packed in trolley cars about the time the downtown crowd is trying to get home for the evening meal. He also makes a good suggestion for immediate mitigation pending the larger relief of elevated and underground transit. That is the operating of trains of trolley cars during the busy hours. By use of the multiple unit system trains are easy of operation and crowds of almost any proportion can be accommodated at slight additional inconvenience to other traffic and with greater safety to patrons of the trolley roads. The suggestion has been made before and it is worthy of careful consideration. The Pittsburgh public is goodnatured and tolerant to a greater degree than in any other center of population, but even its patience may be worn out by persistent disregard for its health or comfort.

CANDIDATES IN CONTRAST.

Day after day it becomes more apparent that the candidacy of John C. Haymaker for city recorder is the new rallying point of a real citizens movement for the better government of Pittsburgh. His indorsement by the Democratic executive committee of the Twentieth ward, including Wesley S. Guffey and George H. Stengel, preceding on Monday night the indorsement by the Jacksonian Democrats last night, and the indorsement from John H. Eaton, president of the Municipal league, is proof that Mr. Haymaker is no less the candidate of the decent people than he is the nominee of the Republican party. The resolutions of the Twentieth ward Democratic executive committee conclude by adopting John C. Haymaker as their candidate "as a man of well known morality, honesty and independence, in whose hands the honor of the city and its people will be secure."

The Democracy of Wesley S. Guffey and George H. Stengel is as strong and sincere as is the Republicanism of John C. Haymaker, and we have no doubt that the other members of the Twentieth ward executive committee are men of the same Democratic stump as Guffey and Stengel. When they can put party differences aside to give their support to a stanch Republican in words so emphatic as those quoted, they silence the tongue of opposition by revealing the subject of the indorsement on the sure ground of solid qualities that make for public good. The accompanying characterization of the candidacy of Hays furnishes the dark background of the picture against which the complete acceptability of Haymaker appears in bright relief. Of Hays the Twentieth ward Democrats say they "heartily indorse the resolution unanimously adopted by the Democratic city executive committee at its meeting on December 26, 1902, declaring the nomination of William B. Hays unacceptable to the Democratic party and to the decent citizens of Pittsburgh;" also that they "heartily indorse the editorial utterances of all the newspapers, condemning the nomination of William B. Hays for recorder, as one unfit to be made, and calling upon the boss who nominated him to replace him with a man of ability and one who measures up to the standard fixed by the platform of the Citizens party;" also that they "denounce the methods involving fraud, forgery, perjury and open bribery upon the floor of the convention" in the West End by which Hays was nominated "over that sterling and loyal Democrat, George W. Guthrie," and they "repudiate the action of said convention and declare that it has no binding force on the conscience of any honest Democrat."

The repudiation of Hays by the Democratic city executive committee after his personal selection by Thomas S. Bigelow and the unanimous condemnation of the selection by the newspapers of Pittsburgh continues to have force and effect in the minds of men of all parties that will inspire them to support Haymaker for the recordership, as it has inspired the Twentieth ward Democrats and the Jacksonian Democrats. Nothing has occurred to alter the aspect of the Hays candidacy and the longer it stands in the light of publicity and the longer it is contrasted with the merits of Haymaker and his candidacy the more offensive and objectionable it appears. The longer Mr. Haymaker is under public inspection the stronger do his "well known morality, honesty and independence" commend him to the public conscience as the one "in whose hands the honor of the city and its people will be secure." When his acceptability and fitness as a man and as a citizen are so strongly asserted by Democrats of party and public standing, in opposition to the action of the convention of their party, which they assert was brought about by "fraud, forgery, perjury and bribery," there can be but one thought among people who believe that the ten commandments ought to have force in public affairs, and that thought is to vote for Haymaker for recorder of Pittsburgh.

RECIPROCAL RELATIONS.

It was declared in the United States senate by Mr. Dolliver during the debate on the coal tariff, that in framing the present tariff law Mr. Dingley had purposely made some duties high to afford a margin for reductions through reciprocal arrangements with foreign governments. The statement was not contradicted by other Republicans, though it was resented by several. As Mr. Dolliver was a member of the house and of its ways and means committee in 1897, he is in a position to speak with authority on the subject of the making of the tariff. He did not, however, rest the declaration with his mere assertion, but backed it with a quotation from a speech of Congressman Hopkins, delivered in the house of representatives on March 27, 1897, in which Mr. Hopkins defended high rates and gave the reason for them. The particular thing that called out Mr. Dolliver's statement on last Tuesday and his quotation of the Illinois congressman, who has been just elected to the higher branch, is of little moment; the important point is that he made it and that it is uncontroverted. Mr. Hopkins, as quoted by Mr. Dolliver, defended the policy of establishing high duties by act of congress to be decreased by treaties negotiated for the purpose of obtaining special advantages for American products in foreign markets, and pointed out the advantages that might be gained by a policy of maximum and minimum rates on all our manufactured products. In quoting Hopkins and in representing Dingley's position to be similar, Mr. Dolliver approved the policy he attributed to them as a proper principle for building up of trade relations, and one that has been adopted by nearly every government of the world. It is well understood, as a matter of fact, that reciprocity is provided for in the Dingley act. It could not have been provided for had all tariff schedules been arranged to provide for protection and nothing more. All this was well to the front when the Dingley act became law, but the memories of people and of congressmen are short. The provision for reciprocity treaties was well understood and approved by President McKinley, and under his direction a number were negotiated by John A. Kasson as special commissioner for the United States, but the senate has not taken kindly to them. These treaties were well under way toward formulation at President McKinley's death, and almost with his latest breath at Buffalo he advocated the principle and policy of reciprocity as the handmaiden of protection, and after him President Roosevelt advocated reciprocity. The senators, indeed—even some who resented Mr. Dolliver's references—do not oppose reciprocity as a principle. It is when they are confronted with reciprocity in the concrete that they balk. Perhaps it would be different if our tariff law had set forth a specific maximum and a specific minimum, instead of providing one rate and leaving the other to be determined at the moment. The question of reciprocity is given new importance just now, not so much because of what was said in debate in the senate, but by reason of the statement on the same day in the German reichstag by the German secretary of the interior, Count von Posadowsky-Wehner, that the United States by its own course and its interpretation of the most favored nation clauses in treaties is no longer entitled to the most favored nation treatment in Germany. "Accordingly," said he, "when we make new treaties, the United States will not enjoy the advantage thereof without rendering an equivalent on its part." It is remarkable and significant that this official declaration should be made in the parliament of the German empire on the same day that in the United States senate Republican senators were airing differences of opinion among themselves concerning our tariffs and reciprocity.

GOVERNOR'S INAUGURAL.

Gov. Pennypacker has taken the reins of government and his inaugural address, delivered yesterday, indicates the spirit in which he is prepared to discharge the grave duties entrusted to him. The address is more negative than positive. The new governor declares emphatically that society suffers from too much legislation; that contempt for the law is bred by hair-splitting enactments. In this he speaks as one of experience and training upon the bench. Some new laws, he says, are needed and he is very positive in regard to their character.

More attention than necessary was given in the address to the sensational press. As one accustomed to delve in history and analyze it, Gov. Pennypacker has apparently only recently become well acquainted with the yellow journals and probably imagines their influence greater than it is. As a matter of fact they wield very little power. Those in the Quaker City, for example, are so unstable in their views as to have practically no influence upon public sentiment. They amuse, they cater to an innate human love of excitement, but they do not educate or imbue the people with fixed views.

Gov. Pennypacker's administration starts with very favorable prospects. He holds plain and matter-of-fact views of how government should be conducted. He has ideas of his own. In the legislature he has a good working majority. The assembly will naturally desire to soar beyond the limitations the executive would set, and so while he proves a restraint upon its exuberance, it will react to prevent anything like stagnation. The state is prepared for a good, old-fashioned administration, with every act measured by fixed standards of morality and legal wisdom.

Gov. Pennypacker has offended some of the politicians, particularly in Philadelphia. In their pique they have passed criticisms upon the Pennypacker family leaving home for Harrisburg carrying parcels wrapped in newspapers! Such criticisms give evidence of statesmanship of a high order—of inability. The newspaper covered parcel never before was made a political issue, and inasmuch as Gov. Pennypacker has been elected and is not eligible to re-election for another eight years, it is not now likely to become a campaign slogan. Were the conditions otherwise the new governor would be more likely to gain than to lose on the package policy. Of course, the ultra fine-haired politicians of the Quaker City may take umbrage at such a democratic action carrying a parcel wrapped in a newspaper instead of having it franked through by express and delivered by a flunkey in livery. But the masses have other views. They will have a fellow feeling for the man who takes a sandwich, or an extra pair of comfortable old shoes wrapped in a newspaper, and admiration for the courage that is not coerced by foppery.

Alabama Republicans are booming Senator Hanna for the presidency. Meantime the senator is too busy with other matters to become fussed up over the compliment.

The reported discovery of anthracite coal in large quantities in Nebraska adds another interesting item to the prevailing coal news of the day.

Of all the bother makers on the face of the earth the fellow who is told his troubles by "a well known party leader" is the greatest nuisance.

The change of crews on the ship of state at Harrisburg yesterday was effected without the slightest sign of unseamanlike conduct.

From being a mere question of Hays the local political situation has developed into a regular Democratic and Citizens fog.

The obscurity into which the Hon. David B. Hill has fallen seems to be of the regular three-ply Harveyized variety.

It is quite characteristic for the political following that hasn't any to sneer at the value of moral support in a campaign.

It is quite evident that Pennsylvania's new governor is able to make history as well as recall it.

Evidently the Olney presidential boom has been carefully put back into the camphor balls.

Uncle Sam's Gunners.

From the Indianapolis News.

The "man behind the gun" seems to be coming on stronger than ever. The other day an account was given of intended target practice off San Francisco, where a raft was towed out three miles as a target. The practice ended at the second shot, "the man behind the gun" knocking the target to flinders. Now it is said that the boys of the battleship Kentucky have broken the record for speed and accuracy. In one string of twenty-two shots nineteen hit the target. Kentucky folks always did know how to shoot.

Too Hard for Gotham.

From the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Boston newspaper has compared Bill Devery to Anteeus. This is the way Boston is always plaguing and mystifying New York.

STRATAGEMS AND SPOILS IN GOTHAM

Numerous Tales of New Political Deals Foreshadow Events of Importance.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square.
NEW YORK, Jan. 20.

Politics is getting warmer day by day. It revolves about the police situation, as has been the case in this city for many a long year. It is recognized by both sides that the party which gets the police influence next municipal election is likely to obtain control of Greater New York at the end of the present administration. So rumor is busy night and day. The favorite suggestion is that Mayor Low, Gov. Odell and Police Commissioner Greene held a secret meeting recently and decided that it would be well to have a bill introduced at Albany creating the office of chief of police. There has never been a chief since Devery was ejected. The most famous chief of police New York city ever had was Tom Byrnes, and it is declared that part of the agreement reached by the triumvirate at the meeting spoken of was that the position should be offered to him. It is maintained that Byrnes controlled the criminal element with greater success than any other man, and that his name became a terror to evildoers. Others have tried it, but never with as much success. Of course, the idea of getting Byrnes back to the head of the police department under the commissioner is only part of the project. It is said that a bill will be introduced in the legislature making the term of police commissioner nine years. This is not a new rumor. It has been floating up and down Broadway for weeks, but has always been denied by those personages that might know something about it were it well founded. Still another rumor, which, however, is foolish on its face, is that there may be an agreement between the police and the liquor dealers so long as there was no disorder or flagrant violation of law they would be allowed to sell liquor on Sundays. With all these stories thrown into the pot, it is easy enough to keep its contents bubbling.

Laura Biggar's Will Power.

Laura Biggar, playing at one of the "continuous" theaters in this city, looks well as she sweeps along in a cab to and from the theater. It is said by her press agent or somebody that she is so weak as to be able to act only by "will power." If this is the case, it must be of a good brand, for she goes through her work on the stage as well as ever she did. By the way, there does not seem to be so much curiosity to stare at her as one might expect. The audiences evidently look on her as an actress, rather than a curiosity, and fortunately, she is a clever enough performer to be able to hold her own in the former character.

Capt. O'Reilly to Be Transferred.

The Tenderloin does not know whether to be pleased or sorry. It is reported that Capt. O'Reilly will soon be taken away from that command and someone else put in his place. No one knows why. It is supposed that O'Reilly has been acting with sufficient sternness to set all the tough characters by the ears. Evidently there are two sides somewhere. For the commissioner's disappointment is apparent. Very few captains can fill this Tenderloin billet so that there is no grumbling, and O'Reilly will have the comfort of knowing that he is only one of a dozen captains that have "fallen down" in the white light district.

Autos Are in Demand.

There are more than the usual number of automobiles in the streets this week. This is traceable directly to the automobile show in Madison Square garden. Everyone possessing an auto feels that he must show it, while others who generally ride in cabs insist that their vehicles shall be of the horseless variety. So Madison Square garden is thronged with automobile cabs and up and down Fifth avenue the hoarse grunt of the automobile horn is more frequent than street car gongs in Broadway.

Limit to Immunity.

Even a $12,000 automobile cannot rustle along Fifth avenue just as its driver pleases. This fact was brought home today to Donald A. Dodge, a wealthy young broker, and he and his wife appeared together in the Harlem police court to answer a charge of scorching. They were tearing along the avenue in Harlem in their big machine this afternoon intending to take lunch at the Ardsley casino. But a matter-of-fact bicycle policeman saw them and caught them before they had proceeded very far. The worst of it all is that Mr. and Mrs. Dodge had been estranged and brought together by this new automobile, as is a matter of court record of a few days ago. Now there may be more trouble, although the court released them this time.

Plays for the Boys.

Charles T. Vincent, the playwright, is rehearsing two of his own dramas in New York. One is "A Boy of the Streets," which will be produced in Boston next Monday, and another, "Old Sleuth," founded on the stories of that name, which will have its first presentation in Yonkers about the same time. Mr. Vincent is well known in Pittsburgh as the author of "Gentleman Jack," in which J. J. Corbett played for several years; "Sport McAllister" and many other plays which have delighted Pittsburgh audiences in the last 15 or 20 years.

Happy in the Amen Corner.

There is rejoicing in "Amen corner" tonight. Thomas C. Platt has been reelected United States senator in spite of a futile bolt by three of his erstwhile supporters. While no one supposed there was any doubt that he would be chosen to keep his place in the senate, it is felt in the "corner" that the occasion quite warrants a decorous celebration in exchanging congratulations.

Triumph of Miss Metcalfe.

Pittsburgh knows and likes Susan Metcalfe, the talented mezzo-soprano. She gave her first song recital of the season at Mendelssohn hall this afternoon before a very large audience, which testified its approval in unmistakable manner throughout her performance. As showing the range of her repertoire her program today embraced selections by Mozart, Bach, Beethoven, Rameau, Schubert, Schumann, Mendelssohn, Chaussons, Brahms, Saint-Saens and a few other composers that she sang in four languages—Italian, French, German and English. She was in splendid voice, and when she had given the last number she was in danger of being mobbed by the eager throng of admirers who gathered in front of the platform and applauded until their arms ached. Pittsburgh will hear Miss Metcalfe in the course of the winter, I understand.

Kocian and His Fiddle Busy.

Kocian, the Bohemian violin virtuoso, is very much in New York society this month. He played at William C. Whitney's residence last Sunday for the entertainment of Peter Finley Dunne, C. D. Gibson and a few other favored guests. Now he is to perform on Thursday evening at Mrs. George J. Gould's New York home, at the musicale she has arranged to give. He will appear in this city for the last time at the Metropolitan on the 1st of February, but in the meantime will play at several private entertainments in swelldom.

Sad News of Clara Morris.

The rumor that Clara Morris is so ill that she may die has caused a painful sensation in New York. It was known that she was sick, but no one supposed until the last day or two that she was actually in danger. Her distress over the mortgage on her home at Riverdale, which she feared would be foreclosed, has been allayed, the mortgage having been taken up by a well-known Wall street financier, who always has admired her talent. It is possible that a benefit will be given for her at one of the Broadway theaters.

Munroe Needs "Civilizing."

Jack Munroe, the miner pugilist from Butte, Montana, says he cannot understand the ways of New York. His own expression is that "things seem to be upside down." He does not comprehend why men sit in public conveyances and allow women to stand, and declares that if men treated women as unchivalrously in Butte as they do in New York, there would be five or six killings a week. The untutored Montana miner evidently has something to learn about the etiquette of real civilization. He will get it hot from the griddle in New York "L" trains and trolley cars.

Wagon Came Too Late.

Two dozen billposters had a battle royal at Forty-first street and Broadway this afternoon. This spot is in the heart of the Rialto. The contending forces were the Herald Square theater men and the Empire Theater attaches. The cause of the trouble is rivalry between the two sets of operatives, on account of some technical difference, and the Herald Square gentry went up Broadway six blocks to have it out with the enemy. Boots, gloves, paste brushes and buckets, rolls of paper, clubs, and, in fact, every street weapon except guns and knives were employed, and there was a row for half an hour which might have wakened every policeman in the Tenderloin. It did wake the police at last, but too late. A patrol wagon with about 20 officers in it dashed up 10 minutes after the fight was over, and by that time not a billposter was in sight.

Transit Problem Again.

Moving platforms are recommended for the Brooklyn bridge by Commissioner Lindenthal, and now it is said that the railroad commission will insist that the Brooklyn Rapid Transit put more cars into use. The crush on the "L" and trolley lines has been not quite so bad since Christmas, and public sentiment has died down to some extent. The Merchants' association in Manhattan and the Manufacturers' association in Brooklyn, however, keep the matter warmed up, and perhaps when next Christmas time arrives it will be easier to travel about by public vehicles, even if the Rapid Transit tunnel should not be in operation by that time.

Death Ended His Spree.

The story told of Capt. Flanagan, the wealthy man of affairs who died in a hotel on Washington Heights on Sunday, has caused a sensation, and the police are looking into the cause. Flanagan was a friend of President Roosevelt, and in his sober moments was a shrewd man of business. He went on a spree at the end of last week, bringing up in a Coney island saloon where there was a piano and mixed society, musculine and feminine. He died at last so suspiciously that the police thought there might be something criminal connected with his taking off. They feared it was a parallel case to that of Nicholas Fish, the multimillionaire, who was killed outside a saloon in Thirty-fourth street a few months ago, with the consequence that a man is under sentence for causing his death. It appears now, however, that death came from natural causes to Flanagan, although they were aggravated by alcoholism.

PERSONALS

The Hon. S. M. Jack, congressman from the Twenty-first district of Pennsylvania, accompanied by his wife and Alvin Evans, congressman from the Twentieth district, and Mr. Evans' daughter, arrived in Pittsburgh last night from a 30-day trip in Cuba, Yucatan and Mexico. "I am well pleased with my trip," said Congressman Jack at the Union station last night. "Cuba is about the only island of any we visited that would be of any great use to the United States. It is the most important, and from a commercial standpoint is of great value to this country. I talked while in Havana with many of the principal men of affairs of Cuba, and they seem very anxious for annexation to the United States."

"Why don't you use smoke consumers in Pittsburgh?" was the query of Bishop William Hare of the Protestant Episcopal church of South Dakota, who spent some time at the Union station last night en route to Philadelphia on a business trip. "I have been in Pittsburgh for several hours," he continued, "and I have been unable to see anything but smoke. There is a smoke-consuming system in good effect in St. Louis, and I do not see why it could not be used to excellent advantage in this city." Bishop Hare is interested in the work of briquetting machines, which are manufactured in Pittsburgh, and inquired particularly as to their success in this section.

The Tyrone, the private car of Henry W. Oliver, left the Union station last night bound for Lexington, Ky. It had on board Mr. and Mrs. Oliver and H. R. Rea and family. The party will witness the wedding today in Lexington of Henry Oliver, a nephew of Henry W. Oliver, and Miss Lily Robinson of that city. The party leaves tomorrow night for Palm Beach, Fla., to spend the remainder of the winter.

The third annual banquet of the Booksellers and Stationers' association of Pittsburgh was held in the dining rooms of the Monongahela house last night. The affair was attended by about 50 members of the order and representatives of eastern publishing houses, who were the guests of honor of the occasion. After the banquet H. B. Mason, Jr., presided and informal talks were given by many of the banqueters.

Selwyn M. Taylor, Mrs. Taylor and Mr. Taylor's sister, Mrs. Pohl, and family went south on Mr. Taylor's private car last night. The objective point of the party is Miami, Fla., where they will remain at the winter home of the Taylor family until the middle of April.

THE DEATH ROLL.

Mrs. Emily Delaney.

Mrs. Emily Delaney, aged 89 years, died at her residence, No. 2417 Center avenue, on Monday evening. She had been ailing for several months past, and, while her death was sudden, the family was prepared for it. She was the daughter of Capt. Peter Perchment, a revolutionary hero, who served under Washington and Wayne, and was badly wounded by the Indians at Logstown, a short distance down the Ohio river. Her father was a trader at the posts on the Ohio and Allegheny rivers, and for many years carried on his business while the Indians were prowling in war parties. Peter Perchment was born in 1756 and her mother in 1770. They located in what is now called Wilkinsburg, when that borough was a wilderness. The redman had his trail through the place and the women had often to take refuge in the old-time block houses. On

MRS. EMILY DELANEY,
A Daughter of the Revolution.

July 12, according to the old family Bible, her father died, and was escorted to his resting place by his comrades of the previous war. He was followed in 1770 by his faithful wife, and they now sleep together in Beulah cemetery. Mrs. Delaney was one of a family of 12 children. Her early life was spent in the neighborhood of Wilkinsburg. She was married to William P. Delaney October 14, 1839, and afterward removed to the settlement in what is now known as Pride street. After a few years spent there the couple returned to the old farm near Wilkinsburg. She saw the century grow and her children space with it. When the angel of death appeared she was willing to leave her earthly home to those she loved in the great beyond. Surrounding her bier last night were five generations of her family. Bowed and weeping with sorrow were her sons and daughters, while her great, great grandson, J. Nelson Johnston, an infant of 8 months, crooned and laughed in his mother's arms while the tears coursed down her cheeks. When the announcement of the death of Mrs. Delaney was received the Hotel Delaney was closed and mourning placed on the doors. The patrons of the house stood silently about the place, but left when they saw the crepe fluttering in the wintry wind. All arrangements for the funeral were completed last night. Services will be conducted at her late residence by the Rev. J. Leishman McGuire, chaplain of the Fourteenth regiment, and the Rev. N. L. Brown. Later the remains will be interred. Mrs. Delaney is survived by her sons, Thomas of the Hotel Delaney, James, William P., who is employed with the Westinghouse Electrical Machine Company, and Mary and Sarah Delaney.

Henry W. Byers.

Henry W. Byers, for many years connected in an official capacity with the Pennsylvania lines, died yesterday at his home in New Castle, Pa., of lung trouble, aged 68. Mr. Byers was from boyhood a close personal friend of James McCrea of Pittsburgh, first vice president of the Pennsylvania lines. For many years Mr. Byers was engineer of the maintenance of way department of the Erie & Ashtabula division. He later became superintendent of the Cleveland, Akron & Columbus, which position he held at the time of his death. He is survived by his widow, who was Miss Jennie Markell of Monongahela, Pa., and the following children: John and McCrea and the Misses Jennie, Emily, Marion, Margaret and Catherine, all of New Castle.

Harry N. Stewart.

Harry N. Stewart, a young medical student, died yesterday afternoon of consumption at his father's residence at Indiana, Pa. He was a student at the West Penn college, and had studied at Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia. He was a son of former County Register and Recorder of Indiana County James N. Stewart, and was a clerk under him until a year and a half ago, when his father went out of office. Then he took up the study of medicine. His brother, Dr. C. R. Stewart, is a prominent physician at Millvale. He will be buried from his late residence on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

William McClay, Sr.

William McClay, Sr., an old resident of Pittsburgh, died yesterday morning of paralysis at his home, No. 222 Dinwiddie street. He is survived by his widow and seven children, James B., William, Jr., Jennie, Carrie, Mrs. Henry Young, Mrs. Louis Tomer and Mrs. George E. Meyers.

Englebert Schneider's Funeral.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at the Most Holy Name of Jesus Roman Catholic church, Allegheny, over the remains of Englebert Schneider, superintendent of the pattern shop of the Wilson & Snyder Manufacturing Company.

A Haymaker Suggestion.

From the Pittsburgh Post.

The Pittsburgher on his travels for business or pleasure should be enabled to surmount his proud citation of the facts that make this city an industrial center with the capsheaf item that its head magistrate is a type that argues the finest and best of its citizenship. He should be a man who typifies all the push and the enterprise of Pittsburgh, and is able to stand as a human symbol of the vast enterprises located in this region.

CAPITAL STORIES.

Washington Correspondence New York Herald.

Secretary of the Navy Moody, a bachelor, occupies a house in K street, just around the corner from the Cochran, where "Uncle Joe" Cannon lives, the latter being a widower. With Mr. Moody resides Representative Frederick Gillett of Springfield, Mass., also a bachelor. The three are on very neighborly terms.

"Uncle Joe" looked out of the window of his corner room in the hotel a few evenings ago, when it was rainy and dreary in Washington, to see if there was a light in the window at Secretary Moody's. There was, and he hied himself over, but found the secretary and Mr. Gillett at dinner, having with them Mr. Gillett's brother and another visitor from Boston. "Uncle Joe" picked up a pack of cards and passed his waiting time with solitaire. Presently the dinner party came out and the visiting Mr. Gillett displayed interest in Mr. Cannon's playing.

"Ah, ha!" said "Uncle Joe," "I knew you. Regular card eye and card sense. I understand there is another brother of you handy at the game, too. Should hate to buck up against you three in a game of draw."

Next day, in the capitol, Mr. Cannon inquired of Representative Gillett: "I say, Fred, I'd like to sit in a game with that brother of yours. Does he do anything else but play cards?"

"Oh, yes," was the reply, "when he isn't playing cards he's a professor of theology at Harvard."

NO TIME FOR BACK NUMBERS.

A certain member of the house from Michigan who was defeated for reelection had for four years as a favorite one of the little pages of the house. The member was constantly doing little things to please the boy, of whom he was very fond.

When the member returned this winter the page seemed to be unaware of his existence. He never visited him, and failed to take luncheon with him, as he had often done. The member, mystified, called him one day and inquired the reason for the breaking off of the friendship.

"Well, it's this way," replied the page. "You have been defeated and I am only playing favorites, so you see I can't be bothered with you any more."

A RISKY JOKE.

There is a newspaper man in Washington who has had a habit of dropping a roll of bills at the feet of a person with whom he is talking, and then pretending to find the money, to the amusement of the bystanders and the discomfort of his auditor. Representative Taylor of Ohio has cured him of this habit, and the newspaper man spent a wretched 15 minutes tha other day when Mr. Taylor laid claim to the roll. The two were talking. The roll was dropped, and the newspaper man stopped, and, picking it up, said: "Just look what I have found."

"That is mine," exclaimed Mr. Taylor, as he grasped the roll. "I had a roll just like it," quickly running his free hand through his pockets, "and it's gone."

"Indeed, that's not yours," pleaded the newspaper man.

"I think it is," persisted Mr. Taylor, "but I will go up to my committee room and see if I can find mine."

They took the elevator and went to the committee room, on the gallery floor. Mr. Taylor looked high and low for his money, but it could not be found. As a last resort the newspaper man suggested his overcoat, and a search revealed the money.

"I nearly had heart failure. I will never be funny any more," was the pledge of the newspaper man.

WORTH WATCHING.

A treasury official was fortunate enough the other day to get half a ton of coal. The precious fuel was deposited on his sidewalk late in the afternoon and a colored man agreed to put it away for a quarter. When he had finished the job the man presented a bill for 35 cents.

One Car Drives Another 100 Feet Away Into a Ditch at Munhall.

SERIOUS INJURY TO ONE

Mrs. James Quinn Was the Only Passenger in One Car and Her Condition Is Critical—Inexperienced Man Said to Be at Fault.

With terrific force a Monongahela division traction car swept down on a Second avenue car standing in its way at Munhall junction yesterday evening and drove it 100 feet away into a ditch. Mrs. James Quinn of Pittsburgh, the one passenger of the Second avenue car, was seriously injured and her condition is critical. A score of occupants of the other car were more or less injured. The injured include:

MRS. JAMES QUINN, Carson street, South Side; fearfully cut about the head, back and shoulders and badly shocked; condition serious; taken to her home.

MRS. MARTIN M'NALLY, Eleventh and Washington avenues, Braddock; right leg badly sprained and cut and bruised about the arms and face; taken home.

MIKE MAYAR, Baltimore street, Rankin; cut and bruised on the left leg, face and hands. Taken home.

JOHN MATSEN, motorman of the Monongahela car, severely cut on the face and hands by flying glass and strained through the body.

CHARLES M'GRAW, conductor of the Monongahela car; slightly bruised and cut.

G. M. WRIGHT, motorman of the Second avenue car, who was hurled into the ditch with his car, painfully bruised about the head.

About 10 others were much shaken up and somewhat bruised.

Only One on the Car.

The accident occurred at 5:15 o'clock yesterday evening. The Second avenue car, No. 24, had stopped at the crossover, where it was to be sent to the city-bound track. The conductor had gotten off to throw a switch when the Monongahela car came crashing into it. The only occupant of the car, Mrs. Quinn, was about to get off when the accident happened. The stove, in which there was scarcely any fire, was thrown from its place and struck her when the car was driven from the tracks into the ditch. The car was turned end over end and so badly wrecked that it was five hours later before it could be placed on the tracks and returned to the barns.

John Metsen, the conductor in charge of the Braddock car, No. 1026, is said to have been doing his first day's work on the line. Passengers of his car declare that at the head of the grade, where a safety stop is usually made, the car sped on, and it was difficult to control it on the down grade and over the slippery rails. The vestibule of this car was crushed and it is miraculous that the motorman was not killed.

Escaped in Nick of Time.

Conductor J. Conway of the Second avenue car, which was hurled into the ditch, was in the vestibule and saw the other car coming upon him just in time to jump and probably avoid fatal injuries. He had not time to turn the switch, which would have prevented the accident.

The victims of the accident were taken to the office of Dr. J. F. McNally nearby, where their injuries were dressed and all but Mrs. Quinn were taken home in street cars. She was taken home in a carriage. The division officials of the traction company spent five hours, with gangs of men, clearing the wreckage. The Homeville branch of the line was blocked for five hours. The main line was soon cleared, the Monongahela division car resisting the collision with compartively little damage, although it was thrown from the tracks.

WANT RAILROADS TO LIFT GRAIN EMBARGO

Pittsburgh Brokers Appoint Committee to Wait Upon P. R. R. Officials.

To find out what measures can be taken to end the embargo against grain on the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh grain and flour exchange yesterday, through its board of managers, appointed a committee to wait upon the officials of the Pennsylvania company. The members of the committee are L. S. McKallip, W. W. Beatty and W. A. McCaffrey, the last being president of the exchange.

"We wish to find out the precise situation, see how soon the embargo can be lifted, and obtain all other available information regarding the conditions," said Philip Geidel, Jr., who served as secretary of the board, yesterday. "We know that there is little hope of immediate relief, but we wish to keep close to the matter.

"There are now en route to Pittsburgh about 280 cars of grain on the Fort Wayne, 80 on the Panhandle, and 120 on the Baltimore & Ohio and the Lake Erie. There is no fright over an immediate grain famine, although the prices have gone up. Oats, for instance, have risen from 40 cents to 45 cents a bushel since the embargo was announced, and corn has gone up a cent and a half. Most of the dealers have fairly large stocks on hand.

"The consumption in Pittsburgh is about 75 cars a day, so that the amount on the road will not last long, but with that and the present stock we hope it will outlast the embargo.

"The dealers are losing heavily just at present on account of shortage. The market has been unusually good. The total grain business in Pittsburgh amounts to about $10,000,000 per annum."

By the president and secretary the board yesterday signed the Wabash postal card to councils asking for the immediate passage of the ordinances allowing the Wabash entry.

Mexico and California Tours.

Raymond and Whitcomb Co., the pioneers in operating personally conducted tours in this country, announce two very attractive tours to leave Pittsburgh, February 10, going via St. Louis and New Orleans, with two days' sojourn in the latter city during the Mardi Gras festivities, and arrangements are made for members to see all the parades, both day and evening, from private galleries. Leaving New Orleans the route west is through Louisiana and across Texas with a halt at San Antonio. At Spofford Junction the party for Mexico will diverge, going south to Eagle Pass, where we cross the Rio Grande and enter Old Mexico for the grand sightseeing trip of that interesting country. The party for California will proceed west to El Paso, where ample time will be given to visit the City of Jaurez, across the border in Old Mexico. All the principal cities and places of interest in Southern and Central California will be visited. From San Francisco the return route is over the Sierra Nevada Mountains and the Rio Grande Scenic route, with stops at Salt Lake City, Manitou, Cripple Creek and Denver.

LARKIN'S SCHEME IS REPUDIATED

Finance Committee Rejects Controller's Thirteen Mill Campaign Plan.

UPBRAIDS COUNCILMEN

Tax Levy Will Remain at 15 Mills — Committee, Although Friendly to Larkin, Refuse to Adopt His Ideas.

Controller Larkin has met with dismal failure in his efforts to make votes for William B. Hays by reducing the tax levy to 13 mills at the expense of the public service even with the aid of a friendly finance committee of councils and a bond issue into which the controller proposes to throw all items that he can induce the committee to take from the regular appropriations. It was demonstrated conclusively last night at the meeting of the sub-committee on finance, which is preparing the appropriations for next year, that a 13-mill tax levy is an impossibility even with a bond issue unless the public service of the city government is impaired to an extent that would render it practically useless.

It was "a condition and not a theory" that confronted the controller last night, and a condition that he could not surmount. So plain and convincing was this condition that the members of the committee, who agree with the controller politically, refused to obey the demands of Mr. Larkin and adopted, practically, the recommendations of Director A. H. Leslie, whose proposed appropriations for the bureau of fire were under consideration.

Controller Harangued Committee.

The controller was so deeply affected by the committee's refusal to do his bidding that he asked for a private conference with the Citizens members after the committee adjourned. The conference was held behind closed doors, but even at some distance from the room could be heard the controller in loud and angry tones haranguing the councilmen.

Assistant Controller Morrow withdrew to the outer room. Those present with the controller in the star chamber conference were J. P. Shaw, chairman of the committee, a Citizens member; W. C. Reitz, a Citizen member, and Jacob Soffel, Jr., another Citizens member.

These councilmen listened with patience to the controller, but were not convinced that it would be good policy to cripple the service of the city in order to benefit the political fortunes of Bess Bigelow. It is the opinion of the members of the committee that, with all the possible retrenchment that can be made in every department the tax levy cannot be lowered and it will remain at 15 mills.

Larkin's Plans Impracticable.

The impracticability of the controller's plans has been disclosed in the discussion of the estimates for the single bureau of fire, which took place in the open meeting of the committee.

Director Leslie's estimate of expenditures for this bureau for 1903 was $702,382. The controller proposed that $150,000 be cut out of this amount. The director and the members of the committee pointed out to the controller that this would be impossible, for the salaries alone amounted to $512,012, and if the appropriation was reduced $150,000 that only about $40,000 would be left for the maintenance of the bureau for the entire year.

The controller's proposition raised the ire of Director Leslie, who said, addressing his remarks to the controller: "What nonsense this is for a man occupying your position. If you cut $150,000 out of this appropriation you would have only the salaries left, without anything for running the bureau. Why, the horse feed alone would consume almost $40,000, which would be all that is left over after paying the salaries."

The committee agreed with the director and fixed the total appropriation for the bureau at $687,000, which allows $512,000 for salaries and $155,000 for maintenance. The director's estimates were reduced slightly by striking out the items for several hose wagons and third-class engines, which the director admitted were not urgently necessary.

Controller Was Exasperated.

Mr. Larkin was exasperated at the action of the committee. He said: "If you keep this up you will have to have a 16 or a 17-mill tax levy." He did not attempt to analyze the items or show how or where his proposed reduction of $150,000 could be made. He tried to justify his demand solely upon statistics of the cost of operating fire departments in other cities, similar to Pittsburgh in area, population and number of men employed. The director met these arguments by contending that the fire service and equipment in Pittsburgh is superior to cities in the class of Pittsburgh and that its peculiar topography, its congestion and large business required greater facilities for fighting fires.

The expenditures fixed by the committee for the fire bureau are $22,000 less than last year, the appropriations for 1902 being $679,000. The appropriation for the bureau of building inspection was fixed at $13,799, the amount asked for by Director Leslie. The appropriation last year was $13,900. The committee adjourned to meet on Thursday night to take up the estimates for the bureau of police, electricity and health, which will conclude the appropriations for the public safety department.

POINT OF LEGALITY.

County Commissioner Mercer Objects to Salary Board and an Opinion Is Called For.

County Commissioner J. Carson Mercer at a meeting yesterday of the county salary board raised the question of the board's legality since the passage of the act of 1887, providing for such a board in all counties having a population under 500,000.

Since Allegheny county has passed out of this class, Mr. Mercer holds that the salary board should be abolished. He stated that his objection to its existence rested on the fact that all the onus for creating new positions was placed on the county commissioners, when this blame, if any existed, should be placed on the heads of county offices.

The meeting was called by Controller R. J. Cunningham for the purpose of securing a record of the names and salaries of each employe, to be used in checking up the January payroll. County Solicitor G. P. Murray was called in and will prepare an opinion for the board to consider at its meeting Thursday morning.

CHURCH MEETING POSTPONED.

Action by Second Presbyterian Congregation Delayed.

The scheduled meeting of the members of the Second Presbyterian congregation, to have been held in the church, Penn avenue and Seventh street last night, had to be postponed until February 4, as it was discovered that the charter of the church required a 10-days' notice of a congregational meeting at which the sale of church property is acted on.

There was some informal talk as to the final disposition of the property before the assemblage dispersed last night, but there were many differences of opinion.

J. O. U. A. M. SCHISM REACHES COURT

Insurgents Ordered to Show Why They Should Not Be Barred from State.

LEGALITY IN QUESTION

W. U. Hensel and Alexander De Haven, Attorneys for National Council, Secure Quo Warranto Writ from Judge Wilson.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Public Ledger Building.
PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 20.

The dissension in the Junior Order of United American Mechanics reached the common pleas court today, when Alexander De Haven and W. U. Hensel, attorneys for the national council of the order, secured a writ of quo warranto from Judge Wilson directed against the alleged insurgents who are carrying on the benefit association. Attorney General Elkin, after a thorough hearing of a similar complaint at Harrisburg, approved the quo warranto proceedings.

The defendants named are George W. Harris, president; Harry H. Powers, vice president; C. L. Cadwallader, secretary; Gustav Bacharach, treasurer, and Frank A. Sorber, Theodore P. Rose, William A. Pike, Lewis E. Singer, Robert Carson and George W. Elbert, board of managers of the benefit association.

Since the break in the organization, it is asserted, the defendants have been conducting an illegal insurance business, their association being voluntary and unincorporated, although they are exercising the privileges of the national council's charter.

They are charged with having adopted by-laws admitting subordinate councils of the order to their association, whether they maintained or lost their good standing in the order, and complaint is made that the insurance is payable absolutely to the councils and not to the families or heirs of the deceased members.

The defendants are required to appear in court and show cause why the benefit association should not be denied the privilege of doing business in the state.

HOSPITAL MUST STAY WITHIN CITY LIMITS

Director A. H. Leslie declares that Representative Cook's plan to establish pest houses outside of the corporate limits of the city, as provided in a bill which Mr. Cook intends to introduce in the legislature, is totally impracticable. The bill is said to have been framed at the instances of residents of the Thirteenth ward, who are fighting to have the Municipal hospital removed from their ward.

"There are several reasons why the plan is not feasible," said the director last night. "In the first place there is a law which enables townships and boroughs to quarantine against infection from any outside locality. The city could not put a pest house outside of its limits without the consent of the township or borough into which it was to be located, and it is practically certain that this could not be obtained.

"In the second place there is a law against transporting infectious and contagious cases through other localities. If the Municipal hospital were put out of the city limits the patient's life would be endangered by the long trip.

"I understand that one plan proposed is for the city to have a street car adapted for that particular purpose and to locate the hospital near a car line. This is also impracticable, for there are many cases where a patient could not be reached or transported by a street car. The city would have to own a car, employ men to operate it and have a barn to house it in."

Organ Recitals on Sunday.

The board of trustees of Braddock Carnegie library have decided to give the free organ recitals on Sunday afternoon hereafter instead of holding them on evenings during the week. This change has been made in the hope of securing larger audiences at the recitals of Organist Walter E. Hall. The Braddock pipe organ cost $13,000, and is one of the largest in Western Pennsylvania. The first afternoon recital will be given next Sunday.

Charged With Stealing Iron.

Two negroes are in the Braddock jail charged with stealing iron from the McVay & Walker foundry in Braddock. Iron has been missed from the works for several weeks, and a pile of it was found hidden in a vacant lot. A watch was kept on the place and the two negroes were found acting in a suspicious way in the vicinity and were arrested. One has confessed.

FOOD vs. DRUGS.

A Drug Man's Wisdom That Counts.

It's a shrewd man who, while in the drug business, learns that although drugs are all right in their place, the use of proper food will make medicine unnecessary in the majority of cases.

"Traveling through various towns," writes a drug salesman from Lancaster, Pa., "drinking different waters to which I was not accustomed, eating strangely-prepared meals at irregular hours, I contracted dyspepsia, accompanied by nervousness, loss of sleep and consequently loss of energy. I often had the 'blues,' that indescribably tough feeling which makes one look on the dark side of every picture, and see the shadows of life rather than the substance, imagine the thousand calamities that were never in existence, and so render life almost unbearable. Many thousands of men under the circumstances would have resorted to stimulation from drugs or liquor.

"I happened to read an article on Grape-Nuts about a case similar to my own and determined to give the food a trial. It agreed with me from the start and the miserable distress that usually came after eating did not manifest itself when I ate Grape-Nuts. I asked for this food at every hotel at which I stopped and made it the principal part of the meal. My stomach soon got so that I could eat any kind of rich food in connection with Grape-Nuts without it distressing me. My dyspepsia and nervousness disappeared and life looked bright and happy once more. I am now well, healthy, happy and able to work 16 hours out of the 24 and can sleep like a healthy child the other eight hours.

"My family soon tires of mushy cereals, but we never tire of Grape-Nuts. The children thrive on it and enjoy it. You may publish this if you think it will encourage others to try Grape-Nuts instead of medicine or spiritous remedies that stimulate the system for a time but do not build it up." Name given by Postum Cereal Company, Battle Creek, Mich.

TOO GREAT EXPENSE

Not the Reason.

It is not because Pyramid Pile Cure is so expensive that many people decline to give it a trial, but because they find it too great a tax on their credulity to believe that the published letters bearing testimony to the merit of this remedy are genuine and bona fide; especially those who have realized the suffering incident to piles is it incredible that anyone who has been afflicted twenty-five and thirty years with the worst forms of protruding and bleeding piles should be cured by the application of a simple remedy, when their physician has assured them that the only relief is in a surgical operation.

This is rightfully viewed with dread by all those afflicted, as it means at the least a great shock to the nervous system, with more than a possibility of utter collapse and death; in the majority of cases, too, there is a return of the complaint, owing to the fact that the cause is not removed.

The proprietors of the Pyramid Pile Cure agree to forfeit one thousand dollars to anyone who will show a single published testimonial to be not genuine and unsolicited; this latter feature is most gratifying, inasmuch as these letters are written solely out of gratitude, and with the hope that those who are afflicted as the writers have been, may learn that relief is at hand, at a comparatively trifling expense. Pyramid Pile Cure is for sale by druggists at fifty cents a package, or will be mailed by the makers to any address upon receipt of price.

Mr. Wm. Lichtenwalter, head of the largest printing house in Canton, O., says: "It is with the utmost pleasure and satisfaction that I can say I believe I am cured of protruding and bleeding piles, after suffering more than twenty-five years. I have been in bed for two weeks at a time. I have not suffered in the least for over a year, and I used only three fifty-cent boxes of Pyramid Pile Cure.

"I advise every person suffering with this distressing and painful complaint to give this remedy a trial. I have every confidence in it." Write the Pyramid Drug Co., Marshall, Mich., for their book on the causes and cure of piles.

PEABODY REFUSES TO CALL ON GUARD

Says Police Will Keep Peace Among Warring Members of Colorado Legislature.

TELLER GETS VOTES

Only One Needed to Make Him Senator and That Is Likely to Be Had Today—The Governor Keeps Hands Off.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

DENVER, Jan. 20.—Both houses of the general assembly balloted for United States senator at noon today, and Henry M. Teller received 50 votes, one less than is needed to elect. Senator McGuire, a Democrat, refrained from voting, but he has frequently said he would vote for Teller if it should appear that he could be elected.

Only two Republican senators were in the senate chamber when the vote was taken, and they did not respond when their names were called.

Soon afterwards the nine Republican senators, besides the two who were expelled by the Democratic majority and the eight contestants who were sworn in on the steps of the capitol last night, assembled in the lieutenant governor's room and formed a separate organization. Senator M. Z. Farwell was elected president pro tem, C. E. Hogan secretary and Thomas McMahon sergeant-at-arms, the senate officers previously chosen being ordered removed.

A ballot was then taken for senator. A resolution was adopted that the senate had reorganized and was ready for business.

Subsequently two of the regularly elected Republican senators, Drake of Laramier county and Cornferth of El Paso left the Haggott senate and returned to the senate chamber, where they announced that they would act with the "regular senate" and would no longer participate in a "farce." Under the constitution Lieut. Gov. Haggott is the presiding officer of the joint session, which is to meet at noon tomorrow to vote for senator. He will insist that the body over which he presided today was the regular senate, and that its vote for senator should be accepted. The speaker of the house will then be called upon to decide which senate shall be recognized as regular. Comparison of the journals will show that no one has been elected. It will then be correct for the joint body to ballot until a senator shall be chosen.

If the Democratic senate shall be recognized and the house remains with its membership, as seems likely, Senator Teller will be re-elected. On the contrary, if the Republican senate shall be recognized there is likely to be no election and the balloting will continue indefinitely.

Edward O. Wolcott, leading Republican candidate for senator, and his followers are urging the governor to call out the militia to place Haggott and the Republicans in possession of the chamber.

Gov. Peabody said today that he would not interfere. His friends are advising him to keep his hands off, and they declare that if he shall recognize the Haggott senate no legislation can be enacted at this session and the state government must go without funds for two years, as appropriation bills could not be legally enacted.

The Republican leaders in the house today refused to carry out the Wolcott program and unseat the 14 Arapahoe Democrats. The senate remains in continuous session, but will not remove Republicans pending further aggression by the house. When asked today regarding his attitude with reference to the split in the senate, Gov. Peabody said:

"I am the governor of the whole people and not subservient to any clique of any political party, and I will be guided by the law and constitution in deciding which side of the senate shall be recognized. I don't contemplate calling out the militia. I think the Colorado national guard too dignified a body to do police duty, and that is all that is required. There is no occasion for bayonets. I think that the police can keep order."

UTAH SENDS MORMON TO SENATE CHAMBER

Reed Smoot Has Overwhelming Majority in Both Branches the Legislature.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

SALT LAKE, UTAH, Jan. 20.—Reed Smoot was this afternoon elected United States senator from Utah to succeed Senator Rawlins. The vote in separate session was as follows: Smoot, 10; Gov. Wells, 2; Rawlins, 6. House, Smoot, 36; Wells, 4; Rawlins, 4. Mr. Smoot's election will be ratified tomorrow at a joint session of the legislature.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., Jan. 20.—Congressman Albert J. Hopkins was today elected United States senator to succeed Senator Mason. The senate gave him 36 votes to 15 for Congressman Williams. The house vote was: Hopkins, 88; Williams, 62; Woolley, 2; not voting, 2.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Jan. 20.—Former Gov. William Joel Stone, candidate of the Democratic caucus today, received a majority of the votes cast in both houses for a successor to United States Senator Vest, whose term expires March 3, 1903. The Hon. Richard C. Kerens was given the solid vote of the Republicans.

LITTLE ROCK, ARK., Jan. 20.—Both branches of the legislature balloted at noon today for United States senator. In the senate the Hon. James P. Clarke received 19 votes and James K. Jones received 14 votes. In the house Clarke received 56 votes, Jones 36 and H. L. Remmel (Rep.), 2 votes. Clarke thus has 77 votes on joint ballot, nine more than necessary to elect.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20.—The two houses of the legislature in separate session today selected Senator Thomas C. Platt to succeed himself as United States senator. Three Republican senators voted for Elihu Root, secretary of war. The joint meeting to elect Mr. Platt will be held tomorrow.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Jan. 20.—The house and senate met today in separate sessions and re-elected United States Senator Charles W. Fairbanks. The Democrats voted for B. F. Shively of South Bend.

LANSING, MICH., Jan. 20.—Gen. R. A. Alger, who in ad interim appointment of Gov. Bliss succeeded the late Senator James McMillan in the United States senate, was this afternoon elected to fill out the unexpired term of Senator McMillan.

CONCORD, N. H., Jan. 20.—The two houses of the legislature in separate session today re-elected Jacob H. Gallinger to the United States senate.

HARTFORD, CONN., Jan. 20.—The general assembly today re-elected Orville H. Platt to serve as United States senator for a fifth term.

PIERRE, S. D., Jan. 20.—A. R. Kittredge was re-elected to the United States senate today. The total vote in both houses was: Kittredge (Rep.), 110; Bowler (Dem.), 15.

BISMARCK, N. D., Jan. 20.—In the legislature this afternoon Senator H. C. Hansbrough was re-elected, receiving the unanimous vote of the Republican members.

OLYMPIA, WASH., Jan. 20.—The result of the first ballot on United States senator in separate session was as follows: Levi Ankeny, 48; Harold Preston, 41; John L. Wilson, 12; George Turner (Dem.), 23; scattering, 10.

THIEF SECURES $4,000 IN JEWELS

PUZZLE TO DETECTIVES

Suspicion Seems to Point to House Servant, but Evidence Is Difficult to Secure—Left Gems Worth $3,000 in Drawer.

Mrs. Rody P. Marshall, wife of Attorney Marshall, is loser about $4,000 by the act of a thief who entered her room on Saturday afternoon, December 27. Mrs. Marshall was in Pittsburgh at the time the robbery was committed and did not discover the loss of her diamonds and other precious stones until the following Monday. The gems taken were a diamond brooch set with five large diamonds, valued at $1,500; a ring set with three diamonds, valued at $1,000; Mrs. Marshall's wedding ring, set with a sapphire and two diamonds, and another ring set with 12 small diamonds. The jewels aggregate about $4,000 in value.

A peculiar feature of the robbery is that the thief left in the drawer from which the gems were taken about $3,000 worth of diamonds and other stones and $10 in gold. Why the entire lot was not taken, along with the money, is puzzling Mr. Marshall and Roger O'Mara, who is handling the case.

Despite the fact that the family and the detectives are almost certain as to who committed the theft, nothing but the slimmest circumstantial evidence has been secured. Roger O'Mara has been to New York seeking evidence, but got little reward for his efforts.

When Mrs. Marshall left her home the day of the robbery the only person remaining in the house was her maid, whose name Mr. Marshall will not make public for several reasons. The key to the drawer in which Mrs. Marshall kept her jewels was in her room. Her maid knew where it was kept.

The girl told Mr. Marshall that she left the house for about two hours on the afternoon of December 27, but refuses to tell where she was during her absence. The mother of the girl is said to be a fortune teller in New York city, and it was for the purpose of trying to ascertain whether or not the jewels were sent there that Roger O'Mara went to that city.

The possibility that some one broke into the house and took the diamonds is said to be unlikely, as the key of the house was in the hands of the coachman, who has been in the employe of the Marshall family for many years. None of the doors or windows was forced.

The girl upon whom suspicion seems to fall is still in the city and is said to have engaged an attorney. She professes to be innocent and declares she will fight the case in the event of her arrest.

COSTA RICO PLACES LOCOMOTIVE ORDER

H. K. Porter Co. Will Build Them—Has Girdled Globe With Engines.

The H. K. Porter Company has just taken a locomotive order in Costa Rica. The company is crowded with business, and a goodly share of it is for export. Aside from the mechanical advantages of the product of the company's Pittsburgh shops, its specialty in the manufacture of light locomotives draws to it much of this foreign business, the locomotives used on foreign railroads being as a rule of much lesser proportions than the American railway standard. The track gauge of the Costa Rican order is 42 inches.

A few days ago the company started to New York a shipment of two locomotives for export. One of these goes to Venezuela.

Aside from its heavy domestic trade for locomotives for mining operations, narrow gauge roads and for their special services, the production of the Porter company has gone to nearly every country on the globe. In 1902 the company shipped eight engines to Spain. These were of the usual European standard, although not nearly so powerful machines as the standard of American railroads.

Japan, Australia, South Africa, Russia and practically all the European countries, various states of South America and Canadian provinces have received numbers of the Porter company's locomotives.

SPRING SUITS AT CAMPBELL'S.

They're Ninety Days Ahead of the Robins This Time.

Every year the spring garments show up earlier than the preceding season. One reason is because so many folks travel and want advance styles to wear in warmer climes.

Already the new spring suits can be seen at "The People's Store." They are black, blue and brown cheviots and broadcloths, at $20, $25 and $35. See them and get your first glimpse of the coming mode and a lesson in the economy of ready-to-wear garments at the same time.

MISS MARTHA HOY BECOMES THE BRIDE OF MR. ROGESTVENSKY.

(Special Telegram to The Gazette.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—At noon today an orthodox Greek church marriage was celebrated at the residence of Capt. and Mrs. James Hoy, in Connecticut avenue, their daughter, Miss Martha Hoy, being wedded to Pierre Rogestvensky, second secretary of the Russian embassy. The service was performed by the Rev. Father Gerovitsky, pastor of the St. Nicholas Greek church of New York. Only personal friends of the couple were present.

Pierre Rogestvensky.

Mrs. Pierre Rogestvensky.

Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, acted as "parent of honor" to the groom, who received the bride from the hand of her father. Miss Hoy was unattended, but had as witnesses Maj. Charles McCawley, John Woolsey and John Van Ness Phillip, the groom being represented by Capt. Raspopow. Mr. Hanson and Mr. Routhowsky, all of the embassy staff. No wedding trip will be taken until May, when the couple will go to Europe for the summer. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Rogestvensky drove to their cottage at Chevy Chase, where they will keep house.

THE wedding of Miss Elizabeth Chambers and William Nimick Murray, yesterday afternoon in the First Presbyterian church was one of the handsomest Pittsburgh has ever seen. The marriage was solemnized a few minutes after 5 o'clock and the church was well filled with one of the most representative and fashionable gatherings of the season. The wealth and social prominence of both the bride and the bridegroom made the wedding one of the most distinguished of the year in Pittsburgh.

It is also one of the very last to take place in the historic old First church in its present location. For a century the church has been the setting for handsome and notable weddings. The decorations yesterday were superb. Tall, stately palms stretching toward the vaulted roof were massed upon the pulpit platform, while smaller palms and ferns were banked before it. Southern smilax clambered along the side galleries and followed the lines of the supporting pillars, spreading palms surmounting them, while loops of laurel hung below the railing. Tall white wicker standards, four on a side, filled with ascension lilies, guarded the middle aisles, down which the bridal party passed.

The bride is one of the beautiful women of Pittsburgh. At her wedding yesterday she was attended by her two sisters and several school friends at Farmington, Conn., among whom are some of the handsomest and smartest girls in the city. She was given away by her father, James A. Chambers, and her maid of honor was her sister, Miss Marion Chambers. The bridesmaids were Miss Rebecca Darlington, Miss Madelaine Laughlin, Miss Virginia Bughman, Miss Louise Wood, formerly of Pittsburgh but now living near Philadelphia; Miss Martha Chambers, the schoolgirl sister of the bride, and Miss Estelle Barbour and Miss Grace Hinchman of Detroit. Frank M. Carnegie was the best man, and the ushers were William J. Patton, Dallas C. Byers, Thomas O'Connor Jones, William B. Scaife, Harry D. McCandless, Allan D. Wood of Philadelphia and Edgar Lackland of New York.

A slight innovation in the entrance of the bridal party was the appearance of the six of the maids, dressing from the pulpit platform and passing down the side aisles of the church to the rear, where, preceded by the ushers and the seventh maid, and followed by the maid of honor and the bride, they passed up the middle aisle to be met by Mr. Murray and his best man. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Maitland Alexander. The service was largely choral.

The bride and her maids were beautifully gowned, the bride wearing a robe of white crepe meteor, with a full train and fashioned on long simple lines. A round cape effect of pointe lace formed the yoke, a spray of orange blossoms making an effective trimming. Lace composed the sleeves, close fitting to the elbow. The bridal veil was fastened with orange blossoms. This distinguishing note of beauty and charm, however, was the large muff of real white Palma violets, which the bride carried instead of the conventional bouquet.

The maids were gowned alike, wearing cream lace coats, three-quarters length, over accordion pleated skirts of cream liberty peau de sole. The maid of honor wore a white hat with cream white trimming, while the bridesmaids all wore large black hats with black ostrich plumes. The maids carried huge muffs of red roses, from which long stemmed roses hung almost to the hem of their gowns. The fragrance of the roses was no less noticeable than the chic note of color against the exquisite gowns of lace and silk.

Following the marriage ceremony at the church was the reception given at the residence of Mr. Chambers and his daughters in Ridge avenue, Allegheny. There the wedding supper was served. The house has recently been remodeled and enlarged. Mr. Chambers and his mother, Mrs. Alexander Chambers, and the bride and bridegroom received in the long drawing room, where beautiful decorations of immense tropical plants and red roses prevailed. Red and white were the wedding colors, but the flowers throughout the house were red roses, save in the breakfast room, where the bridal party had supper. The table was exquisitely decorated with a centerpiece of white lilacs combined with white ribbons and maidenhair ferns. The guests were served at small tables in the large dining room, and in several rooms on the second floor, and at each table the decorations were masses of red roses.

During the evening Mr. Murray and his bride went away on their wedding trip. They will spend the winter in the south, and will be at Palm Beach for a part of the season. Mrs. R. H. Munson of Michigan, an aunt of the bride, came on for the wedding and is staying at the Chambers home in Allegheny. Mrs. John Rodgers, wife of Commander Rodgers of the U. S. N., in charge of the cruiser Albany, and her little son, Robert Rodgers, are here from Annapolis, and are staying with Mrs. Rodgers' mother, Mrs. Alexander Chambers, in Fifth avenue, Shadyside.

The wedding yesterday was the most brilliant of the winter season and the gowns seen throughout the church were noticeable for their richness and beauty. The smartest and latest effects in fur and lace were to be seen, while the prevalence of white in silks and velvets produced an unusually interesting picture.

Mrs. Alexander Chambers, the bride's grandmother, wore a beautiful black lace gown over white silk, while Mrs. Munson was gowned in white crepe accordion pleated and having many tiny tucks. It was trimmed with heavy white lace and with it she wore a large black hat with ostrich plumes.

Mrs. Benjamin Thaw wore a striking gown of ecrue lace, the skirt being trimmed with two broad bands of ermine. An eton jacket of ermine with long stole effects and an ermine muff with a large broad flat white hat completed her costume.

Mrs. A. E. W. Painter was gowned in heavy white silk with duchess lace. Mrs. Park Painter wore a handsome gown of black net covered with sequins, and Mrs. Burrows Sloan, who came on from Philadelphia for the wedding, wore white gauze with tiny black dots over blue chiffon, her hat being white trimmed with white plumes.

Mrs. Harmar D. Denny appeared in a velvet gown of rich seal brown with sable furs and her brown velvet hat was trimmed with sable tails. A white lace gown and a broad flat hat covered with white lace were worn by Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., her cloak being delicate black lace over white. Her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Burd Thaw, wore ecru lace with a boa of ermine with long stole ends reaching almost to the floor and carried a huge ermine muff. Miss Ada McCrea was gowned in white silk and lace with a crush belt of rose panne, her hat having a fall of exquisite lace over the broad brim.

One of the most handsomely-gowned women in the church and later at the reception was Mrs. Joseph R. Dilworth, who wore white silk and lace with ermine boa and muff, finished with long sable ends. Mrs. Dilworth wore a superb necklace of diamonds, emeralds and rubies. Mrs. Sproull, who was with Mrs. Dilworth, wore black lace over white silk, and a large black picture hat. Miss Bessie Howe also wore white silk trimmed with beautiful lace, and her hat of white velvet, was trimmed with white plumes and bands of black velvet. Miss Mary Speer was smartly gowned in white silk and carried a muff of white chiffon. Mrs. J. Ramsay Speer, one of the striking young matrons, appeared in black lace over white, with her costume completed by a large black hat with drooping black plumes.

Two of the young brides were among the smartly dressed women. Mrs. Oliver P. Nicola, who was Miss Josephine Phillips before her wedding in the fall, wore an exquisite gown of blue peau de soie, finely tucked and having insets of cream lace. She wore a blue hat. Mrs. Edward Balken Duff, formerly Miss Lois Bailey, was gowned in white peau de soie, elaborately trimmed with duchess lace. Miss Marguerite Singer was exquisitely gowned in white lace and a hat trimmed with white plumes and lace. She wore a collar of pearls.

Handsome pointe lace was the trimming on the rich black lace and silk gown which Mrs. Charles C. Scaife wore yesterday. Her daughter, Mrs. John H. Ricketson, wore pearl gray peau de soie, trimmed with white lace and a white lace hat. Mrs. B. F. Jones wore a heavy white silk gown and white bonnet, and her daughter, Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., also wore white silk with lace trimmings. Mrs. William M. Robinson, a bride of last summer, wore a beautiful lace gown with a large white hat trimmed with ostrich plumes and lace.

Card Games in Sewickley.

There were three honor guests, the hostess' mother, Mrs. Edward Graft, who will spend the remainder of the winter in Florida; Mrs. Ellen C. Hoods, who will start on a Mediterranean trip, and Mrs. Edward Woods, who goes to California this spring. There were 60 guests present, all from the valley, and the house was very tastefully decorated, yellow tulips being used. Mrs. Tener had as aids Mrs. George H. Christy, who poured coffee, and Mrs. Archibald George, Mrs. Charles McKnight, Mrs. Theodore Nevin, Mrs. Robert Wardrop, Mrs. Dale Tate, Mrs. Samuel Semple and Miss Mary Campbell.

In Honor of Miss Reppert.

The guest of honor was Miss Reppert of Chicago, who is visiting Mrs. Hammond. Six-hand euchre was the game played and after the conclusion of the game supper was served, followed by a dance. The house was very handsomely decorated, the flowers in each apartment harmonizing with the tones of the furnishings. In the drawing room were clusters of pale pink roses while white roses and lilies appeared in the music room. The decorations of the library were also white flowers, and in the hall were red roses and lilies. A centerpiece of red carnations adorned the table in the dining room.

The Brighton Country club gave one of its series of winter subscription dances last evening at the club house.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Gausman of Allegheny entertained at cards last evening in honor of Mrs. Ralph Brown.

In Woman's Realm.

For a young girl nothing could be prettier than this empire frock. It is made of light blue crepe de chine, exquisitely embroidered with silver on the front of the bodice and down the center of the skirt. A long, drooping fringe of the silver descends from the short sleeves on the outside of the arm. The silver embroidery adorns the deep foot flounce and the skirt above it, a very broad band of the same being carried up the center of the back and front. The upper portion of the decolletage in front is of soft white.

Girlish Evening Frocks.

Another girlish gown is of white muslin, with a light blue yoke, the same color trimming the sleeves and side of the front. Narrow white ruching outlines the lace applique. The blue and cream revers are singularly stunning. A blue sash ties around the waist. It is a simple dress, but very telling.

Exquisite color combinations are seen in some of the latest picture hats, and the designer may indulge her tastes to any extent in these creations, the beauty of which lies in the drooping brim. Long, sweeping plumes form the chief trimming, and never before has there been such variety in color effects as is exhibited this season. The pure white plumes shading toward the tip to black or some delicate color are extremely effective and novel, while two or more shades of one color produce a result that will especially appeal to those seeking novelty. Another innovation is the use of two or more plumes of contrasting but harmonizing tints on the same hat. This idea is particularly pleasing when the fashionable green and blue shades are used. For instance, a rich shade of blue velvet or felt may be employed to make the hat, with shaded-green plumes for the trimming; or the hat may be of pale-gray or white beaver, with a green and a blue plume and a knot of blue and green velvet for ornamentation. The right shades of these colors must be used together, or the effect will be inharmonious. Parrot or emerald green and marine or sapphire-blue are the correct shades to combine.

The Picture Hat.

No child needs more careful attention and training than the nervous child. His whole future welfare and usefulness depend upon it. Every child will think and act and displays some form of nervous force just as naturally and surely as his heart beats and he draws the breath of life. It is impossible to stop brain action. The task in hand is to teach the child to control and exercise it aright. It is to this end that most of the studies in school are directed. The child is taught to control his muscles that they may come under the guidance and direction to respond quickly to the voice of command. This gives him speedy control of his nervous machine, for daily and hourly in after life arises the necessity of promptitude of action. He learns to give attention, he cultivates his memory that he may retain impressions, the amassing of which is his great object in life, for it is the wealth of these in the storehouse of his brain that constitutes his knowledge, and according as his wealth is in these stored impressions, so is his power. A child whose nervousness takes the direction of great display of brain action, has, if carefully trained in the exercise of it, the chance of greater attainment than others. The quickness and variety of his thought remove him from the ordinary. It is out of such material that the poets and geniuses are made.

OBVIATES MUCH AMERICAN NOISE

Scheme to Lift Anchors of Men-of-War or Wind Tiny Watches Silently.

BY NOISELESS RATCHETS

Dr. Bryson, the Pittsburgher Who Plans to Harness the Ocean Waves, Devised This Thing. Has Manifold Adaptability.

Dr. David K. Bryson, the Pittsburgh inventor, who plans to gather for commercial utility the force of the ocean waves, has devised a noiseless ratchet. It is a simple thing in itself, but its application will be the means of eliminating a great amount of American noise. Deacon Jones or anybody else may wind his Waterbury watch or any other watch in church without awaking those nearby or disturbing

DR. DAVID K. BRYSON.
He has invented a device to harness the ocean waves, and another to make ratchets noiseless.

the pulpit orator. The great man-of-war of the American squadron may lift anchor and silently start a maneuver before the watchful command of the craft of the possible enemy a half mile away knows anything about it.

Everybody knows what an awful thing it is to give the Waterbury or any other watch a few turns of the stem-winder in church, and some people know what a noisy operation is the lifting of an anchor of a great ocean greyhound or man-of-war. The operation of the capstans with the great dogs governing the ratchets on ponderous ocean craft may be heard miles away.

With the application of the invention of the Pittsburgh dentist these things need not be heard at all. Harvesting machinery may move along noiselessly, hoisting devices, steam dredges, steam shovels, typewriting machines, phonographs, cinematographs and an endless number of other devices, including the new mechanism which is to demonstrate that the force of the ocean waves may be harnessed, will drop all of the nerve-trying noises that accompany the movements of their ratchets. Dr. Bryson conceived the idea because his wave-motor mechanism was too noisy to suit him, having four ratchets connected with a single buoy or float. He has arranged a simple and secret device which obviates the ratchet spring that bears down on the dog. This thing never before prompted science to be rid of it. In taking away this spring the cogged wheel, played on by the dog, is not touched and the cogs and the dog itself will thereby never wear out.

The inventor will not make this new invention the subject of a big stock company. He will hold it as a means of profit to himself. It will be offered for a royalty, of course, to those who deem its utility an advantage. The inventor has it in his model wave-motor device and in the works of a clock which he carries in his pocket. The clock works show how they may be wound up without all occupants of a house knowing it.

Secretary Moody of the navy department and Secretary Root of the war department have been advised of the utility of the device and each has referred the matter to the proper bureau. Just as the gigantic man-of-war may lift anchor to start maneuvers without letting the enemy know of its purpose to change position, the 30-foot toy yacht may get away by noiselessly lifting its anchor by the hand windlass.

GAVE TALK ON NAPOLEON.

Prof. Wilcox Outlined Career of Europe's Great Soldier.

William Craig Wilcox, A. M., professional lecturer in history, delivered a lecture in the Allegheny Carnegie Music hall last night on "The Era of Napoleon, 1790 to 1815." The lecture was given under the auspices of the University Extension society of Chicago. Prof. Wilcox took up Napoleon's life in different periods and lectured separately on each one.

He described the first 25 years of the little corporal's life, reviewing his ancestry, early environment and his education. Then the campaigns of Napoleon were discoursed upon. The lecturer carefully reviewed each campaign, from the first, the Italian, to the campaigns of liberation in 1813-1815, which ended in the great general's overthrow and his exile to Elba and St. Helena.

Mr. Wilcox then spoke of the causes of Napoleon's success for 15 years and told of the elements of his greatness. He discussed at length the reasons for Napoleon's ultimate failure. The permanent benefits conferred by Napoleon upon France and upon Europe, he claimed, were legion.

EAST END ROUTE IS LOOKED OVER

BOARD OF TRADE HEARD

Wabash Ordinance to Be Taken Up Friday—Action on Electric Light Ordinances May Possibly Be Delayed.

The special, or "rump," committee on corporations of Pittsburgh select council, John Upperman chairman, yesterday afternoon inspected the route of the proposed East End branch of the Pennsylvania railroad, from the main branch at Fifth avenue to Brilliant station, to connect with the Allegheny Valley road, cutting through Highland park and running parallel to the Beechwood boulevard.

John Benz was absent. W. E. Sankey was present when the committee assembled at city hall, but did not go along. The members who made the trip were Chairman Upperman, J. W. Ruhlandt, James W. Platt, George S. Wilson and John H. Voskamp.

A dispute exists between Platt and Sankey as to which one of them was appointed on the committee by President Lambie to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John Paul. Each claims President Lambie appointed him, and both serve.

John A. Murphy said he was familiar with the route of the East End branch and would not go with the committee. The councilmen were accompanied by C. E. Clarke, an engineer for the Pennsylvania railroad.

East End Residents Interested.

Representatives of the East End board of trade met the committee when it arrived in the East End and pointed out the property of the Pennsylvania company which the board of trade insists shall be condemned by the city to widen Fifth avenue from Penn avenue to Frankstown avenue. The Pennsylvania company owns the old stockyards which lie west of Fifth avenue.

When the committee went over the route of the proposed railroad branch it was made known that two long switches, in the form of a Y, are to be laid east from Fifth avenue and west from Dallas avenue. Connecting with the main line near Lincoln avenue the road tunnels the hill and comes out near Larimer avenue, and then continues on the surface to the Allegheny river.

While the road parallels Beechwood avenue, it was stated by the Pennsylvania engineer that the cars will not be visible from the boulevard owing to an intervening hill.

The committee will meet Friday afternoon at city hall to consider the Pennsylvania ordinance and also the Wabash ordinance. John A. Murphy stated yesterday that he had been assured that the Wabash ordinance would be adopted by the committee on Friday afternoon, and that it and the Pennsylvania ordinance would be presented to select council and passed on next Monday.

Probable Action of Select Council.

Mr. Murphy also stated that he believed select council would pass the electric light ordinances now pending in common council. These ordinances have been before common council on several readings, and after being amended two or three times their final passage was blocked Monday night by the minority faction, which voted against the suspension of the rules.

It is claimed that the City Electric Company does not want a 5 per cent tax clause inserted in its ordinance, and that it wants all ordinances held up until after the election in order that the tax clause may be stricken out. It has been openly asserted that if the electric light ordinances are not passed before the election they will never be passed, except possibly the ordinance of the City Electric Company, which is supported by the Bigelow faction.

Nervous Prostration.

A New Cure Never Known to Have Failed.

There is a limit to brain and nerve force, and when we overstep the limit, nervous prostration is the result. The common causes which exhaust nervous energy are overexertion, overwork, worry, abuses and excesses of all kinds. Those who have used Dr. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer write that nothing equals it for curing this, as well as all nervous troubles. It not only cures but cures quickly and permanently. Sometimes a single bottle will make a perfect cure. Others require more, but the result is always successful. Those who have taken Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer for nervous prostration are absolutely sure of a perfect cure.

MRS. ADA SHERTUM, HOLSTEIN MICH. MRS. MARY LINSEA, CHARLOTTE, MICH.

"I was stricken with nervous prostration and severe irritation of the spinal nerves so bad that I was confined to my bed; could neither eat nor sleep. It was necessary to inject liquid food into my body to keep me alive. The many physicians who treated me were unable to help, and finally gave me up to die. While in that condition, and waiting for death, I was advised to try Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer. I could feel the good effects of the third dose, and the first bottle helped me so much that my friends could hardly believe so much benefit could be derived from so little treatment. After using three bottles I was entirely cured, and was my healthy self again. Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer certainly saved my life, and I can recommend it to any one afflicted with any nervous trouble." Mrs. Mary Linsea, Charlotte, Mich.

"About two years ago I was stricken with apoplexy. I also suffered for years from another complaint, so that my trouble became very complicated. I tried all the doctors within my reach, but they failed to help me. I was finally stricken with nervous prostration, was a complete physical wreck. The doctors advised me to go to a Grand Rapids hospital for treatment, which I did. I gained but little under their treatment. I became discouraged and gave up in despair, and no one knows what that means except those who have suffered as I did for eight years. I was urged to try Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer and did so. To my utter astonishment, I soon began to improve, after taking less than half a bottle. I could sleep soundly, was gaining strength, and a few bottles cured me. My mental and physical troubles have entirely disappeared. I cannot praise that great medicine enough. I take pleasure in certifying to its wonderful value." Mrs. Ada Shertum, Holstein, Mich.

Wheeler's Nerve Vitalizer is sold at $1 per bottle by the druggists or sent prepaid by the J. W. Brant Co., Ltd., Albion, Mich., who will give free advice to all who write and more proof of its cure.

NEGRO PROMISES TO PROVE MURDER

RECEIVES BOX OF SAWS

Alleged Attempt to Throw Discredit Upon Testimony of Cantrell, Chief of Ghouls—Now Says He Will Tell Secret.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Jan. 20.—Another mysterious phase in the investigation of the wholesale grave robberies occurring in the vicinity of Indianapolis was developed today when Rufus Cantrell, chief of the ghouls, received in his cell at the jail a box containing a number of saws and files. The box bore the postmark of New Albany.

Detectives look upon its receipt as another link in the scheme on the part of the physicians and surgeons implicated in the scandal to cast discredit on Cantrell and his testimony.

The receipt of the box caused Cantrell to fly into a rage. He asserted that he would remain silent no longer and declared that he would give information that would lead to many more arrests.

Cantrell declared tonight that the information which he will now furnish the police will develop facts that will result in the charges of murder being filed against prominent physicians. He mentioned several individuals who have mysteriously disappeared from the city and declared that they had met with foul play.

LABOR TEMPLE PROJECT.

Matter to Be Considered at Meeting of Bridge and Structural Workers.

A meeting will be held this evening at the headquarters of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, No. 510 Wylie avenue, at which plans for a labor temple will be considered. It is possible that the union will authorize an expenditure of not less than $500,000 for a building that will cover all the needs of labor organizations in this vicinity. Three sites are under consideration. The miners may be asked to devote the $75,000 they are raising for a temple on the lot given to them under the will of Karl Rueber.

A committee consisting of C. Fitzgerald, chairman; W. F. McCoy, secretary, and John Wing of the Structural Iron Workers' union, will present the plan for the approval of the general committee.

AGUINALDO ASKS FOR 100 MILLIONS

Suggests Loan and Credit to Develop Agriculture in Philippines.

WOULD FOUND A BANK

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 20.—Secretary Root today transmitted to the senate and house copies of a petition received by him, through Gov. Taft, from Aguinaldo, the late insurgent leader in the Philippines.

The petition is a remarkable presentation of the conditions now existing in the Philippines and Secretary Root hastened to send it to congress because it went a long way toward supporting the statements he had made to the committees of that body and also demonstrating the necessity for prompt and exhaustive action on the part of congress to prevent disaster and distress in the archipelago.

The petition says:

Profoundly impressed by the sorrows and calamities which afflict my people, and bearing in mind the good intentions which have inspired the acts of the civil commission, I have taken heart to present a project of a purely economic character, which, in my opinion, would remedy, if not completely at least in great part, the precarious situation in which we all find ourselves.

I propose to the honorable civil commission to obtain from congress a United States treasury loan of $200,000,000 gold, in cash, and also a credit of $80,000,000 gold, which will guarantee the issue of paper to serve as money in the islands. This sum shall be used for the development and improvement of Philippine agriculture, and shall be paid within 20 years, the payments being made in three installments at the end of ten, fifteen and twenty years respectively, and at the rate of $25,000,000 at the end of the first period, which would cancel so much of the credit, and $25,000,000 and $50,000,000 at the end of the two remaining periods. The amount of the credit would not be taken out of the United States treasury like the loan, and both would be without interest, and could never be transferred to any other foreign nation.

When the loan and credit were approved and above mentioned sum here in the Philippines, a bank would be opened which could be called "United States of America Agricultural Philippine bank," and which should be under the inspection and supervision of the insular government.

After the civil commission had dictated the proper regulations and established all the necessary safeguards for the security and stability of the bank, the bank would begin to operate, making available for the agriculturists such sums as they should ask for, in compliance with the necessary formalities, at the annual maximum of 4 per cent, payable semi-annually.

From the $100,000,000 capital would be subtracted $2,000,000 for the construction of buildings for branch banks throughout the archipelago, and for other necessary preliminary expenses.

Subtracting from the annual income of $3,920,000 the annual expense for salaries and other necessary expenses of the bank, which may be reckoned at about $700,000, there would remain a net annual income of $3,-220,000, which, added to the capital at compound interest, under the same conditions during the following years, at the end of 16 years would free both the actual capital and the supplementary credit. That is, the bank would have liquidated its debt to the United States treasury and there would remain a balance of at least $40,000,000 for the continuance of its work. Allowing four more years for ample time makes the 20 years mentioned.

By the time that the United States treasury has been repaid at the end of the stated period of 20 years, the Philippine treasury would have at least $50,000,000, which would serve to guarantee the issue of paper money to that amount.

In case the Filipinos should wish to acquire the bank by making of it a joint stock company without otherwise altering its organization and methods, the government would concede to them the title, without prejudice to its right to require repayment of the amounts incurred by the foundation of said bank or other necessary expenses.

It may be that when this project is known I shall be called an enthusiast and a dreamer, and it will be said that I ought not to involve myself in matters that force me out of the retired life which I have intended to follow since my imprisonment, and which, as I believe, nothing that I have done has broken into until the present time. But the contemplation of the bitter misfortunes which oppress the suffering people, abused by evils and calamities without number, obliges me to leave my retirement to fulfill what I believe to be my duty.

Respectfully,

EMILIO AGUINALDO FAMY.

WOMAN KILLS ASSAILANT IN ARMSTRONG COUNTY

COLLEGE STUDENTS FIGHT ON A TRAIN

Washington and Jefferson Boys Have a Lively Mixup at Station.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, PA. Jan. 20.—The freshmen and sophomores at Washington and Jefferson college had a fierce class fight on a Pennsylvania passenger train at this place this evening. Every year the sophomore class gives a banquet, usually in Pittsburgh. The sophomores, to deceive the freshmen decided to board an evening train, hoping that the "freshies" would think that they were leaving for Pittsburgh and would rush them.

As the 5 o'clock train on the Chartiers road left the station nearly the whole sophomore class got aboard. There were a large number of freshmen at the station, and jumping to the conclusion that the "sophs" were on their way to Pittsburgh to hold the banquet, boarded the train and attempted to rush the second year men. The sophomores held the car door and the freshmen on the platforms at each end of the car attempted to break in the door.

One door was partially demolished, but the sophomores were able to hold their ground, and when a suburban station was reached they left the train and returned to their rooms. The "freshies" threaten vengeance for the hoax.

BEGGAR BEQUEATHED $40,000 BUT PROPERTY IS LACKING.

IRWIN, PA., Jan. 20.—(Special.)—George Plant of Irwin, who for years existed by begging, caused quite a stir in the Cottage hospital in Connellsville by disposing of $40,000 worth of property which he alleged was owned by him in this town.

Plant left here some weeks ago on one of his periodical jaunts and a few days ago he was seriously burned while sleeping in a coke oven near Connellsville. He was taken to the hospital in a critical condition and made a will disposing of his property. Hospital attendants were left sums ranging from $600 to $1,000 each. A goodly sum was left to his mother and sisters; the hospital came in for $500 and the balance was left to the Rev. John Burns of the Immaculate Conception church of Connellsville.

After the contents of the will became known benificiaries began an investigation in Irwin. They soon learned that Plant never had a cent's worth of property here or elsewhere. On the borough records he is down as a tramp. By his companions he was regarded as quite a humorist.

ATTEMPT WAS MADE TO WRECK FAST TRAIN

Three Men Arrested and One Is Alleged to Have Confessed Crime.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

GREENSBURG, PA., Jan. 20.—But for the timely discovery of an attempt to wreck passenger train No. 32 on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad between Webster and Monessen yesterday the train with its 100 passengers would have plunged over an embankment on a sharp curve into the Monongahela river. Mike Scrochman, John Lonzon and John Schlok, Slavs, are prisoners in the local jail, charged with having plotted the wrecking of the train. Scrochman, it is alleged, has confessed, implicating the others.

As a hand car propelled by four trackmen shot around a curve midway between Webster and Monessen a big piece of slag was discovered tightly wedged in the switch leading to a siding on the river bank. The men threw their combined weight on the brake, but were unable to stop the car, and it hit the obstruction, hurling the car over the embankment into the river. The trackmen saved themselves by jumping. The three Slavs were seen along the river bank, and when the trackmen started in pursuit of them they took to their heels. They were captured and locked in a nearby tool house, where, it is alleged, Scrochman confessed.

The work of removing the slag was completed just as the train swept around the curve. Scrochman, in his confession, it is alleged, said that Lonzon was the instigator of the plot. Lonzon is only 17 years old and has been in this country only about a month. The men had been unemployed. Scrochman gave no reason for the attempted crime. The prisoners were brought to Greensburg in irons. They are charged with malicious mischief by Special Detective S. J. Dugan of Pittsburgh.

CHARLES C. RODGERS,
Republican Nominee for Burgess of Irwin, Pa.

IRWIN, PA., Jan. 20.—(Special.)—Charles C. Rodgers nominated for burgess of Irwin by the Republicans, without opposition. Mr. Rodgers was elected burgess three years ago and made a splendid record. His resignation was sent to council last Monday evening and accepted. He then announced his candidacy and no other name was presented. A nomination on the Republican ticket in Irwin is equivalent to election.

Mr. Rodgers is a young man. He was one of the former proprietors of the Irwin Standard. He is manager of the printing department of the Republican-Standard.

HOUSE INTERRUPTED.

Young Woman from Spectators' Gallery Calls Mr. Cochran of Missouri a Liar.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The house today passed the District of Columbia appropriation bill and subsequently began consideration of the Philippine coinage bill. The general debate on the District bill was largely devoted to discussion of the Alaska boundary line dispute.

Mr. Cochran (Mo.) denounced as "a cowardly surrender," the course of the state department. Mr. Hepburn (Iowa) took up the challenge and countered with the charge that Democratic administrations had surrendered the territory between latitudes 49 and 54:40 and also the republic of Texas.

While Mr. Cochran was speaking of the "truckling policy of the United States to Great Britain," a stylishly dressed young woman in the gallery leaned forward and cried out, "You lie." She then left the gallery.

The senate today passed the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bills.

THEORIES ABOUT FOOD.

Also a Few Facts on the Same Subject.

We hear much nowadays about health foods and hygienic living, about vegetarianism and many other fads along the same line.

Restaurants may be found in the larger cities where no meat, pastry or coffee is served and the food crank is in his glory, and arguments and theories galore advanced to prove that meat was never intended for human stomachs, and almost make us believe that our sturdy ancestors, who lived four score years in robust health on roast beef, pork and mutton must have been grossly ignorant of the laws of health.

Our forefathers had other things to do than formulate theories about the food they ate. A warm welcome was extended to any kind from bacon to acorns.

A healthy appetite and common sense are excellent guides to follow in matters of diet, and a mixed diet of grains, fruits and meats is undoubtedly the best.

As compared with grains and vegetables, meat furnishes the most nutriment in a highly concentrated form and is digested and assimilated more quickly than vegetables and grains.

Dr. Julius Remmson on this subject says: "Nervous persons, people run down in health and of low vitality, should eat meat and plenty of it. If the digestion is too feeble at first it may be easily corrected by the regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after each meal. Two of these excellent tablets taken after dinner will digest several thousand grains of meat, eggs or other animal food in three hours, and no matter how weak the stomach may be, no trouble will be experienced if a regular practice is made of using Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets because they supply the pepsin and diastase necessary to perfect digestion, and every form of indigestion will be overcome by their use."

That large class of people who come under the head of nervous dyspeptics should eat plenty of meat and insure its proper digestion by the daily use of a safe, harmless digestive medicine like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, composed of the natural digestive principles, pepsin, diastase, fruit acidis and salts which actually perform the work of digestion. Cheap cathartic medicines, masquerading under the name of dyspepsia cures, are useless for indigestion, as they have absolutely no effect upon the actual digestion of food.

Dyspepsia in all its many forms is simply a failure of the stomach to digest food and the sensible way to solve the riddle and cure the dyspepsia is to make daily use at meal time of a preparation like Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, which is indorsed by the medical profession and known to contain active digestive principles.

John C. Haymaker was last night made the candidate of the Jacksonian party for recorder of Pittsburgh. The Jacksonian committee of 38 met in the office of Charles A. O'Brien, its chairman, at Grant street and Fourth avenue, and adopted a resolution playing in nomination the Republican candidate and strongly opposing William B. Hays. A resolution was also adopted setting forth the platform of the party and roundly scoring Bigelow, the Citizens party and the Democratic party, for nominating Bigelow's candidate.

The Jacksonian party effected its organization a week ago tonight, and a committee of 38 was appointed to select a candidate for recorder and to draft a platform. The party is made up of the honest element in the Democratic party, who refused to swallow the nomination of Hays, when Bigelow captured their city convention. The entire body was present at the meeting.

Chairman O'Brien presented the following nomination resolution, placing Haymaker's name in nomination:

Urge Haymaker's Election.

Whereas, The so-called Citizens committee of 38, through its chairman, Thomas S. Bigelow, has nominated for recorder of Pittsburgh W. B. Hays, whose character and record are not such as to command our support for this high office; and,

Whereas, Said Bigelow, through improper and objectionable influences of every kind, has procured an indorsement of his said candidate, Hays, by the Democratic city convention, all of which proceedings have been denounced by the entire press of our city, now therefore, be it

Resolved, By this meeting that we repudiate the nomination and candidacy of W. B. Hays for recorder, and earnestly urge the election of John C. Haymaker.

Some discussion arose as to the feasibility of nominating a Republican on the Jacksonian ticket. It was claimed that a Democrat should receive the nomination. It was pointed out, however, that the Democrats had no claim on the office, having acted so disgracefully in nominating Hays.

A ballot was taken as to whether the Jacksonian party should nominate Haymaker, and it was decided that they should by a vote of 35 to 3. The three refusing to vote for Haymaker's nomination stated that they would not vote for Hays and were in no sense in favor of his election, but thought a Democrat should receive the Jacksonian nomination.

Declarations Strong.

The following declarations, addressed to the "decent and honest Democrats of Pittsburgh," and drafted by the committee appointed to prepare a platform, were presented by Chairman O'Brien and adopted:

The undersigned have filed in court papers under the ballot act to patent the appellation of "Jacksonian Party," for the purpose of putting in nomination, by nomination papers, candidates for recorder of Pittsburgh at the coming February election. This has been rendered necessary by unexpected and unusual political events of recent occurrence.

As is well-known, all real Democrats of this city, during the past year, have cooperated in two campaigns with the Citizens party for the overthrow of boss rule and the establishment of good government. This was done unselfishly at the sacrifice of party interest and from pure and honest motives only.

These Democrats were ready for a third battle for the same principles and the same ends, but when the Democracy was prepared to enter this great contest, conceding the Citizens party the right to name the candidate for recorder, to the utter amazement and disgust of all good citizens and the entire press of the city, T. S. Bigelow, chairman of the Citizens committee, arrogantly refused all negotiations and discussion and defiantly nominated for recorder W. B. Hays, whose associations are totally repugnant to the pledges and the principles upon which our recent victories have been won.

Mask Was Thrown Off.

By the nomination of this candidate, Bigelow, who has assumed undeserved credit for past successes, has admitted sham and hypocrisy on his part in all his professions of reform, which our people so earnestly desire, and misjudging conditions and events, throws off his mask and reveals his contemptible design of establishing bossism of a worse and more dangerous character than any that has hitherto existed.

With unbounded faith in the power of corruption, this recreant leader, whom the people trusted and to whom he has proven false, after nominating Hays by his single act, proceeded to debauch the Democratic convention into the shameful act of betrayal and treachery in indorsing Hays—thus repudiating all promises, pledges and principles solemnly given and declared to our people to obtain their confidence and support at the polls.

We refuse to be bound and disgraced by this corrupt action of corrupt leaders and ignore the right of organized political bandits to control our votes, simply because they have stolen the party machinery at the behest of Boss Bigelow on a promise of plunder as a reward of their treachery to party and people.

Party Ties Are Broken.

Those controlling the Democratic organization have heretofore traded and bargained to the party's detriment and injury, but in rejecting a Democrat of high reputation and ability and nominating W. B. Hays at the sole dictum of Bigelow, they have certainly reached the climax of infamy and absurdity, and all honest Democrats are absolved from party fealty. There is for them no party flag to follow, but only a dirty pirate rag, held out to mislead and decoy the party voter.

If membership in the Democratic party is not to constitute a humiliation and reproach, this treachery, denounced by the party organ, the Pittsburgh Post, in most scathing and eloquent terms the day of its perpetration, must be condemned; let all honest Democrats unite in rebuking and resenting this outrage of the Bigelow boodle combination in the most effective, emphatic and courageous way possible by voting for John C. Haymaker for recorder of Pittsburgh.

The declarations were signed by Chairman O'Brien and 35 of the committee.

Haymaker will have the hearty support of this organization, which is sure to be a factor in local politics. The fight will be waged hardest by them in the Twentieth ward, where Bigelow's agents are very active. Five headquarters will be established there, and an earnest effort will be made to defeat the Citizens candidate. In other wards, where there will be a warm fight the Jacksonians will take up the cudgels for John C. Haymaker and honest government.

PROPOSES STATUE OF LEE ON FIELD OF GETTYSBURG

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, HARRISBURG, Jan. 20.

Representative Cooper of Delaware will introduce tomorrow a bill which, he says, was prepared by Col. A. K. McClure, to appropriate $20,000 for a bronze equestrian statue of Gen. Robert E. Lee, to be located on Seminary hill, on the battlefield of Gettysburg.

The bill provides that the work shall be performed by a commission to consist of the governor, adjutant general and five union soldiers of the rebellion, to co-operate with a like commission representing the state of Virginia.

The act is to have no effect unless the next session of the legislature of Virginia shall appropriate $20,000 also for the erection of the statue.

INVADES CLOSE TRADE IN WOVEN WIRE FENCE

$300,000 Concern Formed in Pittsburgh to Operate a New System.

The Rotary Woven Wire Fence Company is a new concern formed in Pittsburgh which promises to become a lively competitor of the Page Woven Wire Fence Company, which, with its extensive plants at Monessen and at Adrian, Mich., has developed a tremendous business in this line.

The Rotary Company starts business with a capital of $300,000. Its first plant will be located at Columbus, O. The company will not only manufacture the woven wire fence, but will make an important branch of its operations the making of machines for the manufacture of this product.

As it is now, the Page Company has the field practically to itself. When the Page Company reorganized a few years ago, after passing out of a receivership, it did so with a capital stock of $7,000,000, of which $1,000,000 is 7 per cent non-cumulative. Last year the company issued $2,000,000 in 5 per cent bonds to take care of large extensions to plants and to provide additional working capital. The Adrian plant has a capacity for producing 65 tons of woven wire fence a day, and the Monessen plant produces 150 tons of galvanized wire a day, having looms there for converting most of this into the woven fencing.

It is understood that the new company will not at once manufacture its own steel as the Page Company does. A steel, rod and wire drawing plant will be erected later on. The new Rotary Company has organized by electing Adolf Boes, president; G. Langer, vice president, and G. Yaeger, secretary and treasurer. All are from Monongahela City. The company was incorporated in New Jersey through the Pittsburgh office of the News Jersey Corporation, Guarantee and Trust Company, Attorney G. K. Wright acting as solicitor.

WOMEN OWE MEN SOME RETURN FOR CHIVALRY

Miss Helen Gould Makes Remarkable Address at Y. M. C. A. Meeting.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—In connection with the golden jubilee of the local branch of the Young Men's Christian association the National Women's auxiliary of that organization held a meeting today, at the home of ex-Secretary of State John W. Foster.

Miss Helen Gould of New York spoke of the work in New York and Brooklyn and urged that the auxiliary establish a branch at every army post and naval station. She said that the privileges, opportunity and protection accorded to women in the United States, such as are accorded nowhere else in the world, came through the chivalry and ardent self-sacrificing labor of the men of the United States, and that it is peculiarly appropriate that the women of the country should show their appreciation by devoting some of their time and thought to movements that benefit men.

Ex-Secretary Foster spoke of the fruitless efforts of some scientists to disprove Christian doctrines. A number of other addresses were made.

FRANCHISE TAX LOST

New York Law Is Declared Unconstitutional on Ground That It Violates Home Rule.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 20.—The appellate division of the supreme court, third department, today handed down a decision declaring the special franchise tax law unconstitutional.

The main point upon which the law is declared unconstitutional is that it violates the home rule principle of the Constitution in giving the state tax commission power to assess local franchises, taking that power from the local tax boards.

The case will be carried by the state to the court of appeals.

BOGUS COLLECTORS SECURE ABOUT $1,500

Squirrel Hill and Hazelwood Tenants Victimized by an Old Game.

Residents of Hazelwood and East End have recently been successfully swindled by bogus rent collectors. Yesterday Supt. McAleese received a complaint from H. O. Hornberger of No. 4737 Second avenue, and Saddler, Martin & Evans, of No. 610 Penn avenue, that three men, representing themselves as their agents, have been collecting rents from their tenants and have secured about $1,500 during the last 10 days.

The men visited the Squirrel Hill district yesterday and collected various amounts from the tenants. The last victim was Mrs. Charles Fay of Fays Row, who gave one of these men $20 on account for her next month's rent. Detective Superintendent Demmel is now making an investigation of the case.

The game worked by the swindlers is an old one. These men go among the tenants and ask them to pay part of their next month's rent in advance for business reasons. In return for this they agree to make certain repairs the tenants desire.

Some 20 houses of the Saddler, Martin & Evans firm were visited during the last 10 days and about $900 was obtained from their tenants. About $600 was collected from Hornberger's tenants. Amounts ranging from $2 to $50 were collected.

The swindlers were not discovered until Monday. Several of the tenants went to the offices of the real estate firms to inquire when the repair work on their houses would be started. The agents immediately notified all their tenants, but yesterday the swindlers were working again in the Squirrel Hill district. A description of the men has been given to the detectives.

PRESIDENT DECIDES TO APPOINT JUDGE DAY

His Elevation to the Supreme Bench to Be Announced at McKinley Banquet.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CANTON, O., Jan. 20.—There is a report current in this city that Judge Day's appointment to the supreme bench will be announced by President Roosevelt at the McKinley banquet to be held in Canton Tuesday evening, January 27.

The story is that as the late president had intended this promotion for his distinguished friend that no more fitting opportunity to announce the fulfillment of these plans could be found than at the celebration of McKinley's birthday in his home city.

Washington dispatches state that the appointment has been duly determined upon and that it will, in a short time, be given out with the name of Judge Day's successor upon the circuit bench. The fact that Judge Wing of Cleveland, who is upon the United States district bench, will be present at the banquet, has given rise to the report that when the announcement of Judge Day's elevation is made Judge Wing will be made to succeed to the circuit bench.

WABASH WILL MERGE WITH TWO OTHER LINES

With Ann Arbor and Wheeling & Lake Erie, New System Will Be Formed.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CLEVELAND, Jan. 20.—The report is abroad in official circles that a holding company is to be formed before the year is out to take over the securities of the Ann Arbor Railroad Company, the Wheeling & Lake Erie Railroad Company and the Wabash Railroad Company, and thus consolidate them into a single system.

The consummation of this plan will mark one of the biggest financial transactions of the year and is of more than ordinary importance because of the opposition which it will afford to other big companies in the east.

It is now said that the name of the new system will be the Pittsburgh & Chicago Railroad Company, and that it will have a capitalization of $200,000,000, with a bonded indebtedness of something over $100,000,000. On what basis the new stock will be issued in exchange for the old securities is not told, but it is expected that there will be not any great difficulty in persuading the present holders to accept the change since none of the stock in question has paid a dividend for years. The capitalization will be large, but the mileage will be immense.

It is said that the organization of these companies into a single compact body will necessitate a complete change in the method of operating the system. It is reported that there will be one central government stationed at St. Louis. This will include the principal traffic officials of the system. Auxiliary offices will be established at Pittsburgh and Cleveland.

WARM DEBATE ON STATEHOOD BILL

Quay Compels Its Opponents to Come Out and Show Their Hands.

HANNA TO THE RESCUE

With His Fighting Blood Up He Brushes Beveridge Aside and Demands Time for Debate. Beaver Man Gives Notice.

Senator Beveridge admitted today that the omnibus statehood bill has a majority of one vote and he did not conceal the purpose of the opponents of the bill to talk it to death. But he met his master in Senator Quay, who, after asking for four different dates on which to take a vote and objection having been made by Mr. Beveridge, served notice that he may move tomorrow to keep the senate in continuous session until all who want to speak on statehood are heard.

Mr. Beveridge, who has been in charge of the opposition, was stood aside and Senator Hanna took his place. Senator Quay opposed to statehood had only hinted up today they regarded the methods employed by Senator Quay to pass the bill as a violation of senate traditions and courtesies. So quietly had the Pennsylvania senator acted that no senators except those invited to his dinner last night knew that it was to be held. But the compact formed last night was revealed today, and it became apparent that the fight was to be made in earnest, not only for the passage of the omnibus statehood bill, but for the overthrow of the senate coterie of omnipotence.

Mr. Foraker's speech yesterday paved the way for the developments today. While Mr. Beveridge was on his feet trying to prove that the advocates of statehood were the real obstructions, Senator Quay arose and asked that he might interrupt.

Beveridge Wouldn't Yield.

Mr. Quay started to read a request for a vote upon any one of the four dates. Mr. Beveridge knew what was coming and would not permit the interruption. When Mr. Beveridge had concluded his remarks Mr. Quay read his schedule after questions. He was slow and deliberate. A half dozen senators attempted to interrupt him. Some of them were friends of the bill, others were opponents. He refused to yield to anybody. He said that it had been charged the friends of statehood were obstructing legislation. Would the senate take a vote on the statehood bill Saturday, next?

Senator Beveridge started to make another speech. Mr. Quay would not permit this. He demanded an answer to his question. Beveridge said "No; a number of senators wanted to talk."

Mr. Quay then wanted to know if the senate would consent to vote on Friday, January 29. Beveridge again attempted to speak. Mr. Quay stopped him with the demand:

"I am asking the senate for a vote. Will we get it?"

Again Beveridge answered no. Mr. Quay then asked for a vote to be taken Wednesday, February 4. Beveridge said "No." Then can we have it on Tuesday, February 10?" asked Mr. Quay. Again Beveridge said "No." Then I ask for a vote February 16, which is only two weeks before adjournment," said Mr. Quay. Beveridge still protested he could not fix a time.

Quay Serves Notice.

"Well, then," replied Mr. Quay, "I serve notice on the senate I will call up this bill at the completion of the morning hour tomorrow, and may move that the senate remain in continuous session until it is disposed of."

Everybody had come to understand now that Senator Quay and his friends considered themselves strong enough to take control of the senate and that an agreement had been reached to prevent any legislation until the statehood bill was disposed of.

Senator Burnham was to have been the next speaker, but he gave way to Senator Hanna. The hammering of Senators Foraker and Quay at those Republicans who had refused to comply with their platform pledges demanded a reply from some one who represented more in a party way than Beveridge. Mr. Hanna performed the duty. He was as solemn about it as a Methodist exhorter. He insisted that the Republican party in its platform of 1896 was the true test, and that it only promised to act with due regard for the people of the territories and the union. Public sentiment was crystalizing around the opposition to the statehood bill and demanded a full discussion. He then told of the importance of the question and the necessity for a full debate.

"Do I understand the senator to say," interrupted Mr. Burton of Kansas, "that we are never to get a vote on this bill."

Hanna Is Crusty.

"The senator understands nothing of the kind," snapped Hanna, "but I do not propose to be intimidated or coerced."

In his solemn way Mr. Hanna caused it to be understood that if necessary he would fight to the adjournment of the session. Neither Cuban reciprocity treaties, nor anti-trust legislation, nor appropriations, nor any other measure will be permitted to sidetrack the statehood bill unless the Quay combination is broken. By the steps taken today the advocates of statehood have made it apparent that the responsibility for failure to accomplish legislation must rest with those who fight the admission of the territories to statehood.

The prospect of a congestion of business in the senate is such that the senators constituting the Republican committee on order of business met today to adjust the claims of conflicting measures. There was a unanimous agreement to give precedence to appropriation bills and conference reports over all other matters. Beyond this it was decided that the statehood bill should continue to occupy the position is now holds as the unfinished business of the senate and that the Cuban reciprocity treaty should be given second place.

LUMBER DEALERS IN SESSION IN THE CITY

The Union Association of Lumber Dealers, composed of the retail traders in Pennsylvania, Kentucky, West Virginia and Ohio, began its twenty-first annual convention at the Hotel Henry yesterday morning. There were 300 delegates in attendance. The address of welcome was delivered by T. R. Babcock, chairman of the local reception committee, and in response B. F. Weybrecht of Alliance, O., president of the association, spoke of the growth of the lumber trade and the importance of Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania in its development.

The morning session, which began at 11 o'clock, was devoted mainly to the reading of the officers' reports. The report of Secretary F. M. Smith showed that the association now numbers nearly 10,000 members. F. D. Torrance, of Xenia, O., is treasurer. The president's report suggested that an amendment be made in the constitution so as to enforce uniform rules throughout the states and to provide for the representation of all districts in the supreme council.

E. F. Perry of New York, secretary of the National Wholesale Lumberman's association, made an address to the convention on the general work of his association. No effort will be made by the Union association to merge into a national body. Conferences will be held and it will work in general co-operation with other associations.

At the afternoon session an address was made by John E. Williams of New Orleans, publisher of the Lumber Trade Journal, on "What Are We Here For?" A. C. Davis of Newark, O., spoke on "Buying and Selling from a Retailer's Standpoint," and J. H. Hastings of Pittsburgh on "Classification." All the papers were discussed by the members.

The delegates were the guests of the firm of Coyle & Munn at a theater party at the Bijou in the evening. The performance of "The Governor's Son" by the Four Cohans was heartily enjoyed by the delegates. At the close of the performance an organization of the association, known as the Tri-State Hoo-Hoo Concatenation, held forth for several hours in the Hotel Henry.

Today's meeting will begin at 10 o'clock and a number of addresses will be made. In the afternoon, at 1 o'clock, the delegates will visit the Carnegie steel works at Homestead as the guests of the Pittsburgh Wholesale Lumber Dealers' association. In the evening at 8 a smoker and "surprise party" will be held in the assembly room of the hotel. The convention will adjourn tomorrow afternoon.

WISHES BILL CHANGED

Appropriation of $500,000 to Enforce Sherman Anti-Trust Law Unnecessary — Smaller Sum Spent in Clerk Hire.

The appropriations committee of the senate and house each has received a letter from Attorney General Knox suggesting a change in the appropriation of $500,000 to be expended under the direction of the attorney general in the enforcement of the Sherman anti-trust act, and laws amendatory thereof, which passed the house on December 17 last.

Instead of using this large amount in the employment of special counsel, etc., to conduct proceedings under the anti-trust act, the attorney general suggests that an act be passed increasing the permanent official force of the department of justice. He recommends that authority be granted for the appointment of an assistant to the attorney general, a new office, one additional assistant attorney general and two expert and confidential stenographers and typewriters. With this additional force Attorney General Knox believes that a much smaller sum than $500,000 would be adequate for the purposes intended and that the results would be in every way more satisfactory than could be obtained through the bill as it now stands.

ALLEGHENY FACES INCREASED LEVY

Indications Point to 15 Mills for Coming Year—Estimates Call for $2,000,400.

The tax levy in Allegheny for the fiscal year, beginning March 1, will be at least 14½ mills and probably 15 mills. This conclusion was reached at a meeting of the councilmanic sub-committee on finance appointed to consider the appropriation ordinances held yesterday.

City Controller James Brown submitted estimates from the several city departments calling for $2,000,400 of appropriations, and if these estimates are approved nothing short of a 15-mill levy will suffice to run the city during the coming year. The present tax rate is 13½ mills.

At yesterday's meeting Thomas McHenry suggested that $17,500 for parks and $5,000 for the Carnegie library be lopped off Director D. L. Fulton's public works estimate, but this was not done. Mr. McHenry suggested that judicious cutting be done in regard to all department estimates, so that a tax rate of 14½ mills may be made possible.

The matter was referred to a committee composed of Messrs. McHenry, Trimble and Sauers. The complete list of estimates of receipts and expenditures for the coming year has not yet been finished by Comptroller Brown.

SCHOOL CHILDREN SEE WOMAN'S TRAGIC DEATH

She Dashes Out Into Street With Clothing Aflame and Falls Dead.

Hundreds of school children this morning witnessed the tragic death of aged Mrs. Sarah Gummere as they were on their way to school. A few minutes before 9 o'clock, when Marlborough street was thronged with pupils, they were horrified to see the woman dash down the street completely enveloped in flames.

She was a veritable human torch, and the children fled in all directions as she ran blindly among them. Policeman Burgess ran to the stricken woman's assistance. Just as he reached her she fell to the sidewalk dead, her body burned from head to foot.

All these details were witnessed by the school children. Many of them were so horror-stricken that they could not pursue their studies and were sent home.

Mrs. Gummere was about 76 years old. This morning she was alone in the house, and it is supposed an oil stove in the kitchen exploded, setting fire to her clothing.

WORKERS SHOW LIVELY INTEREST

DESERTIONS FROM HAYS

Dismay Reigns in the Lair of Scheming Democrats and Apathy Has Struck the Camp of Boss Bigelow.

The recently enlarged Republican city campaign committee held its first meeting yesterday afternoon in the Sixth avenue headquarters. There was a big attendance and the liveliest interest was manifest in the discussion of campaign plans.

The strength of the men who left the Citizens party because they could not stomach Hays' nomination is fully recognized and their services will be in demand during the campaign. City Chairman Max G. Leslie has appointed the following to membership in the campaign committee in addition to the nine already announced: D. A. Wilber, Harry F. Davis, G. L. Holliday, Dr. Cadwalader Evans, W. I. Muxlin, J. C. Wasson, S. J. Wainwright, Jr., W. C. McEldowney, S. D. Warmcastle, William Palmer, Adolph Edlis, Samuel Hamilton, Dr. J. P. Kerr, James H. Laughlin, John B. Barbour, Jr., James Francis Burke and W. A. Larimer.

It was decided to have the committee divided into about six sub-committees, and have each assigned to a certain feature of the campaign work throughout the city. The manner and membership of these sub-committees will not be announced before Thursday, when the campaign committee will meet. It is expected that by that day the membership of the finance and other important sub-committees will have been settled.

Many Are Deserting Hays.

Throughout the day word of more desertions from the Citizens and Democratic ranks reached Sixth avenue headquarters. The Democrats seem especially disgusted with the boss-ridden nomination and do not hesitate to say that when it comes to a choice they are for Haymaker. A week ago Hays was conceded one-half the Democratic vote; now it looks as though James A. Clark and his aids could scarcely deliver one-third of the party vote to Boss Bigelow's candidate.

At the Citizens headquarters the hand of the master-boss is badly needed. Matters are becoming more involved every day, and the ward leaders are sitting around idle, waiting for the reappearance of Boss Bigelow. They lack the hurry and bustle that have made them conspicuous in the neighborhood for the last year.

The Democratic menagerie attached to the Bigelow political side-show will begin operations next week. Recordership candidate W. B. Hays will be carried on a whirlwind tour of the city in order to become personally acquainted with the men who are counted on to help in his campaign.

The workers of neither old party know Hays. In Citizens headquarters he was frequently seen during the fall and spring struggles last year, but had nothing about him in particular to distinguish him from half a dozen men of apparent leisure, who could be found at Citizens headquarters any afternoon.

Democracy in Despair.

The newly appointed Democratic city executive committee held a meeting yesterday afternoon. The epidemic of desertion to Haymaker is still spreading among the more prominent members of the party. Consequently, the meeting was not a joyous and festive occasion. In addition the fact that Boss Bigelow was ill was taken quite seriously by some of his Democratic allies.

They have sacrificed themselves politically to bring about the indorsement of Hays in the city convention and are already feeling lonely. Consequently the notice that George H. Stengel, Wesley G. Guffey and the entire Twentieth ward Democratic committee had declared for Haymaker had much the same effect as a bombshell in the already funereal camp—there was a shaking of dry bones.

The plan outlined yesterday by City Chairman James A. Clark for districting and assigning the city to members of the executive committee was adopted, but no assignments have yet been made. Chairman Clark says he will have his finance committee ready for the meeting of the executive body at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Desperate Tactics of Bigelow's Machine.

The Bigelow machine's desperate effort to find something to attack in the record of John C. Haymaker, finally unearthed a letter warning taxpayers that they must not attempt to vote unless they had in person paid their taxes as specified by law, supposed to bear Mr. Haymaker's signature.

The weakness of the machine story is shown by Mr. Haymaker's reply to the charge, as follows:

"That letter with my name attached to it was sent out without my knowledge or approval, and I repudiated it the next day in the newspapers, and the files of the papers will show this. The letter was gotten up by an over-zealous friend of one of the Republican candidates."

Attorney Robert H. Douglas' appointment, as attorney for the state department in the matter of the collection of funds due the state from revenues collected by the county treasurer, places him in the office of County Treasurer David Collingwood, and not in Register Stengel's office, as erroneously reported in dispatches from Harrisburg. The position pays $5,000 a year, the same salary paid to attorneys who represent the auditor general in the collection of collateral inheritance taxes.

Attorney Douglas has not yet decided whether he will accept the position. He refuses to talk on the subject and says when he is ready he will announce his stand in the matter.

Baseball Peace Is Likely to Come Today

PEACE NOW LOOKS VERY PROBABLE

John T. Brush Is Still Kicking, but Will Be Voted Down.

READY FOR REPORT

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 20.—The ratification of the peace compact will in all probability be accomplished by the National league at the Grand hotel tomorrow. It is hardly possible, however, that the measure will be adopted unanimously, though there is a good chance of the vote being seven to one with the New York club voting in the negative.

The committee of the whole concluded its business today and by a vote of six to two will recommend that the peace agreement be adopted. The Brooklyn and New York clubs voted against this. The object in having the league meet as a committee of the whole was to give the Pittsburgh and Philadelphia clubs a chance to vote on the compact without violating the injunction which the New York club secured against them. Barney Dreyfuss did the voting for both clubs.

Herrmann Is Hopeful.

President Herrmann said after the close of the meeting, which was about 7 o'clock tonight: "We have adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, when the National league proper goes into session. The peace compact will be taken up and I don't think there is any question about its ratification. This may be accomplished by a unanimous vote, a vote of seven to one, six to two or five to three, but it will be ratified, of that I am positive. The New York and Brooklyn clubs, it has developed, misunderstood portions of the agreement, and I think when everything is explained to the satisfaction of the gentlemen who represent these clubs the measure will carry unanimously."

One of the first things to be done by the league was to have the injunction proceedings in Philadelphia postponed until Friday. This was only accomplished after a protracted struggle, for at that time the two factions were not so near to each other as they were when the meeting adjourned last evening.

All representatives of the defendant clubs, as well as those of the plaintiff, were ready at one time during the morning to board the train for Philadelphia to attend the hearing in court, but after a conference with Mr. Shibe it was made plain to Messrs. Brush and Ebbitts that they did not have the slightest chance to have that restraining order made permanent. Col. John I. Rodgers of Philadelphia was communicated with by long distance telephone and he gave his side, which is the Herrmann faction, the assurance that the injunction would be dissolved within a few moments after the court took up the matter.

Hurried Trip Held Over.

There was hurrying to and fro, and finally all efforts ceased after it would be best to postpone the Philadelphia hearing until Friday. It is incidentally most probable that the plaintiffs will ask to have the injunction dissolved. That at least seemed to be the opinion of some of the magnates in the corridor of the hotel.

After section by section had been voted on, and while the Brooklyn and New York clubs opposed all of these principally because every section is dependent on something else, to which these clubs were practically opposed, it was found that the only hitch perhaps to a unanimous ratification of the peace compact was the wording of section 5. This section gives the circuits of the two leagues, and in the American circuit the word New York is mentioned. This is construed by the New York and Brooklyn clubs to be ambiguous. The contention is made that the American league might be willing to place a club in some remote spot of New York and not on Manhattan island and then expect to share in the holdings of the New York club. It was then it came that an amalgamation was thought feasible.

The understanding of the peace committee was that the American league had secured ground on Manhattan island and would place a club there, but in drawing up the agreement it was not specified as Manhattan borough, but only New York was mentioned. An effort was made to communicate with President Ban Johnson, and have him give his consent to have the word New York stricken out of the section and borough of Manhattan substituted. Should he agree to this, four of these men are outfielders and it will be necessary to develop men for a battery and also for several of the most important infield positions. However, from the interest shown in baseball at this early date there is no doubt that good men will be found for the vacant positions and that this year's team will uphold the record made last year. Games will be arranged with all local scholastic teams.

THE BANKERS SEVEN EASY FOR VICTORIA

It wasn't a very difficult trick for the Victoria seven to defeat the Bankers team 4 to 1 out at Duquesne garden last night. It was simply a case of victory for the best team and the large crowd present appreciated the fact and cheered the winners loyally.

The game was on the rough house order, but the roughness was not the kind calculated to fit players for subjects for the care of physicians, and the spectators, therefore, enjoyed the lively tilts. The play might have been a good deal rougher had it not been for the prompt action of Referee Russell, who checked the very first exhibition by sending the offenders, A. Sixsmith of Victoria and Hod Stuart of Bankers, to the bench for roughing it.

This lesson seemed to have its effect in the first half, but in the second the players seemed to forget the warning served them, and they went at it for fair. The hockey sticks were used to trip up opponents and many a player was sent headlong into the benches. The referee had his own troubles watching the offenders, but he generally managed to get them, and no less than five of the contestants were punished by being sent to the bench. These players were Duvall, Henry, Lifleton, Phymister and G. Sixsmith.

So far as the game was concerned it was practically a walkover for Victoria, who outskated the Bankers, beat them out in team work, and in fact played all around them. The Victoria back field, consisting of Duvall, Steen and Mackaye, seemed like a stonewall to the other side, and it was almost impossible to get past that trio with the puck. Duvall was particularly aggressive and many a nice run by Banker players was nipped when Duvall's territory was reached. The forward line of the Victorias also showed fine work in both speed and the handling of the rubber.

The first half had hardly got a good start when Stuart sent the puck home after getting it on a pass from G. Sixsmith. After this the playing was very lively and the chasing up and down the ice brought enthusiastic cheers from the spectators. The Victoria's second point was made by Henry, who carried the rubber all the way and his shot for goal proved a true one.

The second half was on the battle royal order and there was some blood spilled when Hod Stuart jabbed the point of his stick against A. Sixsmith's nose. Bruce Stuart also got a wallop on the side of the nose that made him see stars, and time had to be called until he could get his bearings as he was unable to see the puck. The Victoria goals in this half were scored by G. Sixsmith and Henry, while the Banker's solitary point was made by Howard Philadelphia was communicated with by long distance telephone and he gave his side, which is the Herrmann faction, the assurance that the injunction would be dissolved within a few moments after the court took up the matter.

Mackaye ..... Goal ..... Richardson
Steen ..... Point ..... Morphy
Duvall ..... Cover ..... Lowe
A. Sixsmith ..... Center ..... Carmichael
B. Stuart ..... Forward ..... H. Stuart
G. Sixsmith ..... Right wing ..... Lefleton
Henry ..... Left wing ..... Howard

Goals—G. Sixsmith 2, Henry 2, Howard.
Referee—Bert Russell. Time—20 minute halves.

Between the halves of the hockey contest, W. E. Zimm, the champion stake high jumper, gave a very clever and pleasing exhibition. He made an effort to break the world's high jump record on skates of 4 feet 3 inches, which is held by himself, but failed by an inch. His other jumping feats were fully appreciated by the spectators.

Last night's victory places the Victoria seven in the lead in the local hockey race, with P. A. C. second, Bankers third and Keystone, last year's champions, last.

GETTING AN EARLY START.

Allegheny High School Will Have a Good Baseball Team.

On last Friday in the chapel of the Allegheny high school the boys chose Charles Reese for manager of the baseball team for the coming season.

The members of last year's team have nearly all left school and it will be a difficult task to fill these positions. Of the old team Thompson, Rebele, Burgess, Hunter, Chalfant and Peterson are left and the majority of these men are outfielders and it will be necessary to develop men for a battery and also for several of the most important infield positions. However, from the interest shown in baseball at this early date there is no doubt that good men will be found for the vacant positions and that this year's team will uphold the record made last year. Games will be arranged with all local scholastic teams.

M'LEOD'S CLOSE CALL.

Milwaukee Wrestler Proved to Be Very Clever.

The second bout was Graeco-Roman and McMillan downed McLeod with combined half-Nelson and English cross locks in 28 minutes and 55 seconds. The winner of the shortest fall had the choice of styles for the third bout and McLeod chose catch-as-catch-can. After a hard struggle he managed to down McMillan in 14 minutes and 55 seconds.

Bowling Teams Will Meet Again.

The coming match grows out of the defeat by the Keystone men of the New Castle bowling team here last night. The All-Stars and New Castle teams are rivals for first honors here and the former with achieves a decisive victory if it defeats the Keystone club after the latter defeated the New Castle team.

Governor Prevents Fight

DAVENPORT, IA., Jan. 20.—The fight between Joe Flaherty of Lowell, Mass., and Hayes Muhs of Durnat, Ia., set for tonight at this place, was called off on receipt of word from Gov. Cummins that the fight would not be allowed.

BASKET BALL NOTES.

The fur will fly in Carnegie on the 24th. Everyone in town is talking about the game.

The North Sides will play the Lincoln A. C. tonight at Glendrew hall. It will be a preliminary to the National-Sharpsburg Junior league game.

The Liberty five would like to hear from Company F or any other strong 14 or 15-year-old teams. For games address M. Eber, 711 Chestnut street, Allegheny.

The Mt. Oliver Juniors will play the Jones & Laughlin Structural workers basketball team this evening at the Mt. Oliver Turner hall and a good game is looked for.

The Hillside's basketball team will play the Standards of Allegheny at their hall. The following players will report at shooting gallery: Nieman, Keafer, Smitt, Eberlien, Bormath, Stien, G. Hamilton, on Friday, January 30.

The Tiger Junior Basketball club of Allegheny have organized for 1903 with the following players: Taylor, H. Burton, Smith, Cummings, Falkner, Reinecke, Workmaster, Rovegno, Freese, E. Burton, Roenle and Lanigan.

The North Sides defeated the Quaker A. C. at Glendrew hall 17-13. From the time the game started until it closed the game was fast, but the result was never in doubt, for the Red and Black's team work pulled them out on top. Apple was doing all the work for the Quakers and he kept them in the game. Some of the North Side's field goals were the result of clever passing. Fielding in particular was good in bringing the ball down the floor and passing for goal.

The Nationals of the Junior league defeated the Watson A. C. at Glendrew hall 29 to 7. Although much lighter the Nationals played all around the big fellows. The Nationals' forwards played a good game, each securing four goals. Stern, the Nationals' guard, played a fine game against Fielding, the Watson's star guard, not allowing him a goal, while he secured two for himself. Chatham and Flicks played a good game for the Watsons.

CREDIT MEN MEET.

Pittsburgh Association Holds Annual Meeting and Dinner at Seventh Avenue.

The Pittsburgh Association of Credit Men held their regular monthly meeting at the Seventh Avenue hotel last night. The affair was attended by 55 members of the organization who sat down to dinner shortly after 7 o'clock in the private dining room of the hostelry. Before the banquet at the business session it was decided that two additional vice presidents will be elected at the next meeting in February. One of the new officers will be a banker.

The report of the National association was read and proved highly interesting to the members. It stated the bulk law bill had been upheld by the highest court of the state of Washington. This law was framed to prevent fraud in the sale or purchase of merchandise. Two addresses of interest were made at last night's meeting. Joseph A. Langfitt, president of the Federal National bank, spoke on "The Relation of the Banker to the Merchant," and a response was made by D. C. Shaw, his subject being "The Relation of the Merchant to the Banker."

President W. A. Given presided at the meeting last night. The other officers of the organization are: Vice president, A. R. Darragh; treasurer, W. H. Cochrane, and secretary, W. L. Danahey.

WILLING TO FIGHT OVER IN ENGLAND

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—After an absence of almost two months, Young Corbett returned to town today from Hot Springs. The featherweight champion appears to be in good health. As to his condition, he does not speak boastingly, and admits that he will have to do some good work in order to get into proper trim. Corbett's remarks about Terry McGovern did not convey the impression that the Denver boy expects to meet his late foeman again in the ring, at least for some time to come. "I've tried everything I knew to meet him again," said Corbett, "but at the last moment something always cropped up to prevent us from meeting. I guess we'll have to bide our time, that's all."

"How about your proposed trip to England? Will you fight McGovern over there if they give you a purse?" was asked.

"Certainly," replied the champion, without hesitation. "Why not? England is all right and there is no chance of the police stepping in at the last moment."

There is a revival of talk about holding a contest between McGovern and Young Corbett in the east. But like all the other yarns to this effect, there is nothing likely to come of it. The latest is that the Scituate A. C. of Scituate, R. I., wants the tilt, and K. Robinson, matchmaker of the club, who is in town, says that he can hold the fight without molestation, and is willing to post $5,000 as an assurance that he can hold the mill. He suggests the date as March 17, and the time during the afternoon. The club, which is a few hours' ride from Providence, has been holding a number of scraps lately. But the tilts were of the kind not to attract more than passing attention.

DEL. LOSES $1,000.

DETROIT, MICH., Jan. 20.—(Special.)—President Fred Postal of the Washington American league club today worked a surprise on Delehanty. About a week before Delehanty signed his contract with New York he asked Mr. Postal for $800 advance money. The club president sent him $900 immediately and followed this with a check for $1,000.

Today Postal made an investigation and he found that while his first check had been cashed, Delehanty still has the $1,000 paper. Postal decided that he might as well save the $1,000, stopped payment on the check and informed Delehanty by wire.

HARD TRAINING WORK.

Eddie Kennedy, the hard-hitting local boy who meets Mull Bowser in a 10-round contest on next Monday night, put in a hard day's training yesterday. There were at least 100 local lovers of boxing at Corcoran's, on Wood street, to see him, going through his stunts. After stripping off the ball and sparring for an hour he finished up sparring with several local boxers, and his friends are pleased with his condition and the improvement shown.

Bowser's manager writes that there will be at least 300 people at the show from up the Allegheny valley, friends of Bowser with money to back their man. From the way that Bowser is training he wants to win over an local man. He has Fred Broad, Walter Burgo and Joe Young of Buffalo assisting him in his training.

FAMOUS SHOT DEAD.

YONKERS, Jan. 20.—Louis M. Ballard died today after an illness of four months. Mr. Ballard was a member of the famous All-American rifle team which in 1874, 1875 and 1876 defeated all comers at Dollymount, Ireland. After personally outshooting all competitors at Wimbledon, he was awarded a medal, which was presented to him by Princess Louise of England. Mr. Ballard also won the first bicycle race ever ridden in this country in 1869. He was 66 years of age.

Will Meet Young Corbett.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—John Hertz, manager of Benny Yanger, tonight announced that he would accept the offer of the Yosemite club of San Francisco for a fight between Yanger and Young Corbett.

Yanger's manager posted $1,000 forfeit and declared that he would allow Corbett to make all the conditions of the match. The weight insisted upon by Corbett in his negotiations with Jimmy Britt of 130 pounds at the ringside are acceptable to Yanger's manager, who offers to make a side bet of $2,500 or fight without a side bet as Corbett may prefer.

MARCONI'S CURRENTS SCARE TELEPHONE GIRLS

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

WELLFLEET, MASS., Jan. 20.—Sig. Marconi leaves tomorrow afternoon for New York, where, after conferring with some financiers, he embarks for Liverpool. He will at once proceed to Poulhu, where he will perfect his apparatus there and make ready for the direct transmission of messages to Wellfleet.

This is his plan as given out by himself. Local electricians and some from New York and Boston are growing pronouncedly skeptical as to Marconi's achievement, and whether inspired by professional jealousy or not, declare that his attentions to the financial end of the wireless proposition have been fully as marked as those to the scientific end. In other words they claim that the performances have been exaggerated. The projectors of similar schemes say that Marconi is elaborating their thunder and point to his whooping up the publicity end for all it is worth.

The fact that his apparatus here is not particularly heavy causes a derisive smile when the generative current sufficient to carry a bolt across the Atlantic is discussed. Marconi claims that the apparatus is one grand success. As a matter of fact, the currents received on the lofty poles here have caused a great scare to the telephone operators. Great bolts resembling lightning have played about the tops, reverberating with a great report. Marconi thus explains the failure of the Wellfleet plant to receive direct from England when he claims to have sent signals across:

"The apparatus at the Cornwall station receives all right, but in the matter of sending it is now somewhat obsolete. My purpose is to sail for England as soon as possible to perfect the sending apparatus over there. It is possible, of course, for messages to be sent from Cornwall to this station, but at present this is not advisable."

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(Special.)—There was an enthusiastic meeting of the directors of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America this afternoon. Afterward John Bottomley, general manager, announced that "within a short time stations will be established at prominent points all over the earth. The Pacific coast will be the next objective point. Like the stations on each side of the Atlantic, the Pacific shores will be equipped, and then, with relays, it will be possible to girdle this earth with wireless messages."

MINERS ARE NOT ALL HARMONIOUS

Secretary Wilson Said to Have a Dispute With President Mitchell to Be Setfled.

ONE DAY OF REPORTS

More Than Two Millions Disbursed Last Year and One Million in Bank—West Virginia Delegates Demand Advance.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Jan. 20.—Delegates to the United Mine Workers tonight are interested in the rumor that affairs in the West Virginia field are to be aired before the convention in an executive session. It was intimated that Vice President Lewis, who has practically had charge of the strike and the organization of the miners in the Virginia field, is not at all satisfied with the orders that President Mitchell instructed him to carry out.

It is asserted on high authority that there is considerable friction between the two officials as a result of the orders issued by President Mitchell. Although it is not possible to learn on what basis Vice President Lewis' objection and grievance are founded, it is understood that the vice president objected to carrying into effect orders which President Mitchell at one time himself refused to execute.

These orders were at first issued to Lewis in a verbal form, but the latter refused to obey the instructions until they were put in writing. President Mitchell, it is said, refused to comply with Lewis' request and the matter dropped there.

It is understood, however, that Lewis, who holds the Ohio delegation solidly at his back, may through its members, insist upon an airing of the disagreement. It was given out tonight that this probably will occur late in the session.

Annual Reports Read.

The reports of the national officers were read at this morning's session of the convention, the first being that of President Mitchell.

Touching conditions in Virginia and West Virginia, President Mitchell said the effort to secure for the miners the same conditions that obtained in the districts covered by the interstate agreement, had not met with the degree of success that had been hoped for, although a larger number of local unions had been established during the past year than during any other period in the mining history of those states. The effect of the injunction was demoralizing to the miners in the Fairmont region.

The strike in West Virginia, though not a complete success, had resulted in an improvement in the conditions of employment and an increase of 10 per cent in wages in the Fairmont district and on the Norfolk & Western railroad.

The fact that strikes were becoming less numerous, Mr. Mitchell said, was due to the operation of the joint agreements.

Local and general strikes, he said, occurred more often in districts where the operators refused to recognize the organization or treat with its accredited officers. Mr. Mitchell continued:

"With each succeeding year the relations become more cordial between the operators and miners in those districts where trade agreements exist, and the bond of mutual confidence and respect perceptibly increases."

Government by Injunction.

Referring to injunctions Mr. Mitchell said:

"Government by injunction is one of the most insidious, harassing and dangerous methods resorted to by the enemies of the workingmen to destroy labor again and to circumvent the constitutional right of trial by jury. The whole system of government by injunction grows from the distrust of the ultra-capitalist for democratic institutions.

"The reasons given for the issuing of injunctions are always misleading and generally false. So far as these injunctions issued in labor cases they are never issued, excepting in such cases as call for the exercise of the criminal law.

"Government by injunction is not only hostile to organized labor, but it is hostile to constitutional liberty. If the American people do not check this arbitrary power it will result in the annihilation of labor unions and then of all other forms of associations disliked by capitalists."

In closing Mr. Mitchell said:

"I desire to thank each official colleague, each officer and member of our union for his assistance and support during the past year, and to ask the indulgence of our delegates in the conduct of the convention."

Figures for the Year.

Secretary Wilson discussed the finances of the year, showing that the total income was $3,050,877 82, and expenditures $2,080,805 44. Balance in hand, $1,027,-120 29.

Vice President Lewis paid particular attention to injunctions, and suggested that congress be asked to pass a law classifying cases that are subjects for the jurisdiction of federal courts when issuing injunctions affecting the rights of members of labor organizations when engaged in a strike.

The afternoon session lasted less than an hour, and Frank Thomas of Minersville, Pa., presented President Mitchell with a gavel made from wood taken from the house and tomb of Patrick Henry, in Charlotte county, Va.

The West Virginia delegates will make a strenuous fight before the committee for an increase in wages. A demand will be made for an increase of 25 per cent. If it is not possible to have that demand complied with the delegates may be satisfied with an increase of 20 per cent. Nothing less than that will be accepted without a bitter fight.

LAKE VESSEL OWNERS ORGANIZING COMBINE

Company With $10,000,000 Capital to Be Chartered Under Laws of Ohio.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

DETROIT, Jan. 20.—A transportation company with a capital stock of $10,000,000 will be incorporated in Ohio during the next week or 10 days, and next to the fleet of the Pittsburgh Steamship Company it will operate the largest fleet of vessels on fresh water.

The new organization will be known as the Gilchrist Transportation Company, with J. C. Gilchrist of Cleveland at the head of it. A meeting of the stockholders of the Lake Shore Transit Company, Globe Steamship Company, Steel Steamship Company, Inland Star Transit Company, Vega Steamship Company, Lorain Steamship Company, Tyron Transit Company and the Merida Steamship Company, which now operate the vessels of the proposed Gilchrist fleet, was held at Vermillion, O., today, and it was decided to merge the companies.

The plan of organization has been agreed to. The new company will have upward of 80 freight carriers, 10 of which are large steel steamers now being built.

SUDDEN CHANGES IN A HOSPITAL

NURSES MADE PROTEST

A sudden change took place last week among the executive officers of the South Side hospital, the full meaning of which is not yet made entirely clear. John L. Lewis, the head of the Lewis Foundry and Machine Company, who has been president of the institution for a long number of years, and who has been associated with the hospital as a director from its very inception, resigned. His place as president has been filled by Charles Schwarm of the Fourteenth ward, formerly a druggist, and who now conducts a small printing establishment on the South Side.

Clara MacWilliams, formerly assistant superintendent of nurses at the Allegheny General hospital, who was made head nurse at the South Side hospital about nine months ago, has also handed in her resignation.

Excuses for the Resignations.

Mr. Lewis' resignation was acted upon last week, but the matter was carefully kept from the ears of the public. It was stated that Mr. Lewis thought he had held the position long enough, and believed in passing the office to another man. The excuse for Miss MacWilliams' leaving attributes bad health as the cause. There is an air of mystery about the changes which gives rise to the supposition that there is something more behind it all, and that affairs at the hospital are not running as smoothly as they should.

There are rumors, in fact, which indicate that other changes may occur. It is said there has been considerable friction among members of the staff of late, and that some hard names have been called. It is known that dissatisfaction among the nurses resulted in some of them holding a meeting in the office of a member of the staff; he is also a member of the board of directors.

Protest of the Nurses.

The holding of such a meeting and at such a place is said to have been contrary to all hospital and professional etiquette. The meeting of nurses was one of protest, they charging that the instruction given was insufficient, considering the scope of the prescribed course. Much of this instruction is supposed to be given by members of the staff in the form of lectures. It is rumored that, as one result of the dissension existing among members of the staff, the lectures have been few and far between.

It is further rumored that the protest the nurses formulated did not reach the directors in the shape they had intended it should, and that the nurses who took part in the meeting have since been assuring those at whom the protest seems to be directed that it was not intended for them.

The election of Mr. Schwarm occurred on Thursday, January 13. Mr. Lewis' resignation was given to the board a few days before. He asked for immediate action, and no unnecessary preliminaries were allowed to stand in the way of a prompt acceptance. Mr. Schwarm was vice president of the hospital association. William E. Sankey, one of the directors, was elected vice president.

Mr. Lewis' Action a Surprise.

Mr. Lewis has always been one of the principal patrons of the hospital and expression has often been given by other supporters of the institution to the expectation that Mr. Lewis would at some time build a Lewis annex to the hospital.

"I have been resigning for the last two or three years," said Mr. Lewis last night. "I was elected president of the board while traveling in Europe. Lately I have been away from the city a large portion of my time, and my last resignation was accepted. I do not know why Miss MacWilliams left the hospital."

Mr. Lewis professed to know nothing about the meeting of the nurses, and Mr. Schwarm declared that everything was serene. A. D. Lloyd, superintendent of the hospital, is acting in the capacity of head nurse until a successor to Miss MacWilliams is appointed. He said that it would be some time until a new head nurse would be named. Miss MacWilliams is a woman who has had great experience in her profession. She has gone to her home outside the city.

BODY OF MR. GOCZALES NOW RESTS IN GRAVE

Two Thousand People Pay Respect to Memory of Assassinated Editor.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 20.—About 2,000 people attended the funeral of Editor N. G. Gonzales, who died yesterday from a pistol wound inflicted by Lieut. Gov. Tillman, at Trinity Episcopal church at 4 o'clock this afternoon. About 500, unable to find standing room within, remained outside, braving a cold, misty rain, which froze as it fell.

With the single exception of the funeral of Gen. Wade Hampton, held in the same church last April, the assemblage was the largest and most representative seen in South Carolina in the last quarter of a century. Gov. McSweeney, ex-Governor and President Pro Tem Shephard of the state senate, now presiding in the absence of the lieutenant governor, most of the members of the general assembly and state officers and scores of leading men from every part of the state were present.

All business places in Columbia were closed. The honorary pall-bearers included ex-Associate Justice A. C. Haskell, Dr. J. W. Babcock, superintendent of the state hospital for the insane; Prof. R. Means Davis of the South Carolina college, and State Senator and ex-Secretary of State J. Q. Marshall.

Old Officers Re-elected.

At the annual meeting of the Homewood board of trade Monday night, it was reported that the Pennsylvania railroad had decided to put two extra trains on to accommodate the heavy travel, between 5 and 6 o'clock to that section. The old officers were re-elected as follows: President, James M. Clark; vice president, N. F. Savage; secretary, Homer E. Leslie; treasurer, Joseph Sutizer; directors, S. L. Rutledge, A. W. Lloyd, C. H. Bergman, W. F. Angermeyer, H. L. Wunderlich, J. H. Cyphers, Gordon Montgomery, Frank H. Fulmer, William B. McFall, F. A. Schmitz and John Taylor.

COMMITTEE NOW ACTS

Meeting Called for Today and Determined Effort Is to Be Made to Improve Present Distressing Conditions.

"In these days, when even horses ride in palace cars, the people of Pittsburgh are compelled to ride in street cars like common cattle in a freight car. The residents of this city are subjected to inhuman treatment by the street car monopoly."

This statement was made yesterday by Albert M. Hanauer, who introduced a resolution in the chamber of commerce Monday afternoon, which was adopted unanimously, calling for an investigation into the disgraceful conditions attending the crowding of trolley cars in this city, especially so during the rush hours. Mr. Hanauer was appointed chairman of a committee of five to make an investigation and report.

A meeting of the committee will be held this afternoon and an effort will be made to have a joint meeting arranged for the committee and street car officials early next week.

"If cattle or dogs were treated as Pittsburgh people are, in placing them in such crowded cars, the Humane society would take up the matter immediately and there would be an awful wail," continued Mr. Hanauer. "It is a fact that there are men in Pittsburgh who refuse to allow their wives or children to travel anywhere on street cars, simply because they know they will get their clothing torn and soiled, will have no comfort or pleasure in riding, and will possibly have to wait in the street for from 10 minutes to half an hour for a car, and because they are taking a great chance of bodily injury from being crowded and crushed by the great jams.

"Many prominent persons have spoken to me today regarding the resolution, and every one insisted that the conditions existing on the line of street cars running to and from his home was the worst possible, and urged that immediate steps be taken to remedy the present state of affairs.

"The time is coming when this city must have subways and elevated lines, but that is in the future. We must have something done now, for immediate relief, and to that end the chamber of commerce committee of which I am chairman will work faithfully.

"We will have many suggestions to make to the street car officials which may not meet with their favor, but they certainly look to be the only way out of the difficulty. In the first place, the company should have greater power on its lines. The present force seems entirely inadequate. Then, additional street cars should be put on all the lines. Possibly the last suggestion we will be able to offer is that the street car officials run trains of cars on all lines where it is possible. In Chicago and in New York this system has been tried, and it has been successful in both places. Instead of running one car with a trailer, the main cars should be equipped with enough power to haul at least three trailers, and five would not be any too many at present."

ANOTHER COAL COMPANY

Pittsburghers and Ohio Men Engage in an Enterprise With a New Jersey Charter.

Another new coal company, to be called the Pennsylvania and Ohio Consumers Coal Company, has been formed in Pittsburgh, and an application has been made in New Jersey for a charter. J. M. Wanner, a local real estate man, and H. L. Duncan are the leaders in the project, and have associated with them a number of men from this city an Ohio. It is the intention to mine coal in this state and Ohio. The company has valuable holdings in Ohio and intends to equip its mines with the latest machinery, so as to give a capacity of 1,000 tons a day.

The Ohio land has on it seams Nos. 5, 6, 7 and 8, running from 3.6 feet in thickness to 5.6 feet. Three veins show outcroppings, but one will have to be shafted about 40 feet. The company has been offered $2 50 a ton for a year's contract, and as high as $3 a ton for a shorter time. The market for the Ohio coal will be at Cleveland and in the west.

JEALOUSY CAUSED IT

Italian Cut His Lady Love When She Refused to Speak to Him.

Maggie Liano, an Italian, 20 years old, was stabbed by Anthony Roach in the home of her sister at No. 1215 Webster avenue yesterday morning. After cutting the girl Roach made an attempt to escape. He was chased by a mob of several hundred and finally captured in Penn avenue by Fireman John Snyder of engine house No. 15 and placed under arrest.

The cutting was the outcome of a lovers' quarrel. Roach had been living with Maggie Liano's sister. Recently he decided to leave and board in Bedford avenue. Yesterday morning he packed his things and when about to leave the house spoke to the girl.

She refused to speak to him and Roach is alleged to have drawn a razor, and, taking the girl by the hair, slashed her about the neck. The injuries are slight and the physicians say the girl will recover. Roach was locked up in No. 3 police station.

"Soldiers of Fortune."

One of the chief factors in the success of "Soldiers of Fortune," to be presented by Robert Edeson and company at the Alvin theater next week, is the picture it offers of the political life in one of those little South American republics where they make a revolution while you wait. Mr. Edeson's engagement will be for one week only, and those desirous of getting an idea of the revolutions as they really occur, and are occurring in these little Latin republics, could not do better than to witness the performance of 'Soldiers of Fortune." Sale of seats opens tomorrow morning ait 9 o'clock.

Evidence Said to be Weak.

The trial of President Charles E. Voitle and Vice President Thomas W. Rowe of the American Flint Glass Workers' union is still on behind closed doors at the headquarters of the organization in the Bissell block, Seventh avenue and Smithfield street. All entering to the trial is being strictly guarded, but it is said that the evidence so far presented against the officials, has been so weak that the whole trial will likely end in a fizzle.

TENDENCY OF VALUES WAS DOWNWARD

In Wall Street Prices Again Closed at the Lowest. Slump in American Trust and Decline in Pittsburgh Coal Local Features.

By JOHN O. BAGLIN, Financial Editor.

The volume of business in the eastern stock market yesterday fell considerably below 500,000 shares. At times speculation was stagnant, and at the close the whole list became heavy, closing prices being the lowest of the day. The only time at which any strength appeared was in the initial dealings. This was on the announcement that the New York court had declared the Ford franchise tax unconstitutional. This decision relieves traction and other public-service corporations in that state from back taxes amounting in the aggregate to several million dollars. On the announcement Manhattan, Brooklyn Rapid Transit and Metropolitan all advanced slightly, and Consolidated Gas rose 2 points to 219. Later all the gain was lost and something besides, Consolidated Gas closing at 216. London was a seller at the opening, and when traders observed that the public did not come into the market, and that the strength of the tractions was being used as a cloak to liquidate other stock, all the professionals became bearish and sold, the market presenting little or no resistance. The industrials were quite dull and showed less decline than the leading railway shares. There was no news whatever to account for the prevailing bearish sentiment. Call money ruled unchanged at 4@4½ per cent, and the banks continued to gain from the sub-treasury. Railroad gross earnings continue to show increases over the corresponding period last year, but the business is evidently conducted at a large increase in cost, and net results are not likely to be so gratifying. Sentiment at the close of the market was bearish.

The inability of the railroads to meet the demands of the public become more apparent every day. Conditions in the Pittsburgh coal and coke territory yesterday were the worst for a year. On the heels of the announcement of the embargo placed upon shipments of merchandise west, comes the report from Chicago of notices issued by leading lines refusing to receive any more grain for shipments to the seaboard. Roads with eastbound traffic are blocked throughout their entire systems, according to the Chicago reports. As illustrating the completeness of the congestion, a leading grain shipper of Toledo reported that he had received a carload of wheat over the Pennsylvania lines on Saturday which had been shipped by an Indiana farmer last October. Railroads are not getting the mileage out of their cars, not because of a shortage of cars, but because of a shortage of motive power. One day last week, within a stretch of less than 20 miles on the Fort Wayne road, nine "dead" engines were counted. The motive power has been pressed to its utmost capacity, there has been no time for repairs, and the breakdowns are all coming at once, adding to the demoralization. This condition of affairs is increasing the operating cost of handling traffic, and despite the higher rates, a decrease in net earnings is inevitable. This is the loss of the stockholders, but it is not the most important factor in the situation. The delay in forwarding grain to the seaboard cannot but diminish our exports, and this at a time when it is desirable that shipments should be large if the country is not to be drawn upon for gold exports. The bad effects of the freight congestion, however, do not stop here. The inability to move coal and coke promptly is the main thing that keeps up the price of fuel, and this increased cost is adding to the cost of manufactured products. If these conditions last much longer they must inevitably reduce building operations, and once the prospective builder "gets out of the notion" of carrying forward a new enterprise he is likely to continue the delay indefinitely. A number of manufacturing establishments have been compelled to close down, either from a lack of fuel or inability to obtain other raw material and ship finished products. Many workmen have thus been thrown out of employment. The purchasing power of the idle workmen has been reduced to the amount of the wages they received while employed. Merchants in the locality where such suspension has occurred feel the effects in the diminished demand, or in the strain upon credit where the demand is maintained and a new debt created. This necessarily touches the wholesaler, and will inevitably reach the producer. Thus the circle continually enlarges until it embraces many interests not at first directly affected. Bad times have their small beginnings, just as good times have their small beginnings. The importance of prompt and adequate transportation facilities is vital to business prosperity. It will be a curious thing if the incapacity of one of the agencies of commerce should prove to be the direct cause of a prolonged reaction in business prosperity.

In the Pittsburgh stock market yesterday the course of American Trust demonstrated the speculative character of recent dealings. The stock opened at 190, as compared with 200 the previous day, and the next sale was at 175, the closing quotations being 175 bid, 185 asked. At the annual meeting of the company the announced intention of reducing the number of the directorate from 15 to 9 was carried out, but there were no additional developments throwing light upon the rumored deals that have been responsible for the recent upward movement in the stock. The remainder of this group was dull and rather heavy. German American Savings & Trust declined 2¼ to 162½, Iron City Trust declined to 129½, and a small lot of Merchants Savings & Trust sold at 61, a decline of a point. Safe Deposit sold unchanged at 127.

In the remainder of the list the principal feature was the active dealings in Pittsburgh Coal common, nearly 3,000 shares changing hands. The bulk of the selling was by one firm of brokers, and most of the sales were at 28½. The preferred stock was firmer at 88¾. There was nothing done in River Coal common and only a small lot of the preferred changed hands at 39¼, a fractional advance. The annual meeting of the River Coal will be held today. The steel stocks were irregular. Crucible common advanced to 19½ and the preferred remained steady and unchanged at 85. There was little doing in the Westinghouse stocks and prices remained nominally unchanged. Window Glass declined to 55 in the late dealings and closed at 54½ bid. Fire Proofing common was unchanged at 28¾, and the preferred a shade lower at 36¼. Philadelphia Company sold at 45½, a decline of ⅝. The report of the company for December and for the calendar year 1902 is published in another column. The net earnings from operations for 1902 show an increase of a little more than $500,000 over 1901. For the month of December the increase in the same item was $104,000.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

A statement of the earnings and expenses of the Philadelphia Company for the month of December and for the calendar year 1902 was mailed to shareholders last night. It is of particular interest because it covers the first calendar year in which the company had control of all the street railways embraced in the system. For the month of December the net from operations increased $104,000, and the surplus after charges and taxes increased $55,500. The gross earnings for 1902 were $13,795,065, an increase of $1,686,000 over 1901. The net from operations increased a little more than $500,000. The greatest change in any item was in the income derived from dividends on stocks owned by the corporation. This amounted to $1,097,649, an increase over 1901 of $1,135,829. During 1902 dividends were declared for the first time on Union Traction common and on Consolidated Traction common, and the deferred dividend of 8% a share on Consolidated Traction preferred was declared, but as these were not payable until January, it is inferred that they were not included in the calendar year reported. Another large change was in the item of fixed charges, which rose to $4,020,632, an increase of $840,000, due to the issue of capital stock and bonds in payment of the stocks of underlying companies acquired. The amount of the Philadelphia Company's interest in the total surplus applicable to dividends on the common stock was $2,450,000, which is equivalent to about 8½ per cent on the $20,000,000 common stock outstanding. During the year 6 per cent on the common was paid, and if this was on the entire outstanding issue of $29,000,000, there would remain an apparent surplus of about $710,000 after all charges and dividends on the capital. Following are the comparative figures:

J. W. Gates and his associates have demanded a hearing before the Interstate commerce commissioners so that they may reply to the testimony given before the commission in New York last week by J. P. Morgan and George Perkins in connection with the investigation of the alleged merger of the Southern Railway system.

Sprout & Co. figured on the selling side of nearly all the Pittsburgh Coal common that changed hands on the local board yesterday. One block of 1,100 shares at 28⅝ went to Darr, Luke & Moore, and Marlin bought about 1,000 shares at the same price.

Pittsburgh & Charleroi 5s were quoted at 105¼ bid.

The annual meeting of the River Coal Company will be held today. It is said the net earnings will not compare favorably with the previous year, mainly for the reason that early in the year the company met with considerable loss in the sinking of craft, and expenses were also increased on account of the pilots' strike. In addition to this, the company has, it is said, charged off a large sum for depreciation of plant. The bulk of the company's business for the past fiscal year was on the basis of the relatively low prices made in 1901, when the large contracts were placed. In the current fiscal year profits should be larger because of the higher prices at which the large contracts have been placed. Both the common and preferred stocks yesterday were dull and nominally unchanged.

Closing quotations on unlisted stocks were as follows: Colonial Trust, 515 asked; Iron City Trust, 129@130; Republic National Bank, 170 bid; Mortage Banking, 104 bid; North American Savings, 124 asked; German American Savings and Trust, 162½ bid.

The gross earnings of Southern Railway for the second week in January increased $10,250.

Commenting upon Secretary Shaw's action in requiring a substitution of government bonds for other bonds pledged as security for government deposits, a local bank cashier said: "The change was to be expected, because everybody knew that the Constitution of the law permitting the substitution was an emergency measure. Nevertheless, it will work some hardship to bankers who accepted deposits on the terms granted. When they listed their government bonds and substituted other securities it was with the express understanding that the government bonds were to be used for the purpose of taking out new circulation. Now the bank must either go into the bond market and buy governments, which will inevitably result in bidding up the price of the same, or they must retire circulation in order to use the bonds thus released as security for deposits. They have no assurance that the latter will be allowed to remain undisturbed, even after they have made the substitution, so that their position is a perplexing one. The total amount involved does not much exceed $15,000,000, and this is pretty well distributed. The large eastern banks may be able to make the substitution without inconvenience, but smaller banks who have from $100,000 to $500,000 public deposits will probably figure a loss on the transaction."

A Wall street house wired after the close of the market that the selling during the final hour had been quite aggressive, and looked as though some one had news that would become public later.

The annual report of the Allemannia Fire Insurance Company shows gross income, $624,765 00; total expenditures, $592,226 59; surplus, $32,538 50; out of which $16,000 was paid in dividends.

The boom in Chesapeake & Ohio was sidetracked yesterday and the stock closed heavy at the decline.

Insiders in Corn Products are quoted as saying that the outlook is good for dividends on the common stock, although as yet no decision has been reached on that point.

The annual report of the Teutonic Insurance Company shows gross receipts of $190,589 13; total disbursements, including $15,000 paid in dividends, $146,993 03; surplus, $43,606 10.

The stock of the Light, Fuel and Power Company of West Virginia, sold on the New York exchange at times quite active at about 27½. This is a new security. The property represented consists of large belts of natural gas lands in West Virginia. The new company has taken over the Liberty Oil and Gas Company and the Braxton County Gas Company, as well as the franchises and rights of the Southern Electric Light Company. The company will supply in commercial forms gas, oil, coal and electricity. The capital of the company is $2,500,000, divided into 25,000 shares common stock of the par value of $100 each, full paid and non-assessable.

Directors of the National Carbon Company have declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent on the preferred stock, payable February 15.

Cambria Steel dividend to be declared today will be at the same rate as that declared six months ago.

The Consolidated Car Heating directors have declared the regular semi-annual dividend of 1½ per cent and an extra dividend of 1½ per cent, payable January 31. This continues the stock as a 6 per cent dividend payer this year, which is the rate paid in 1902.

Sun Life Insurance Company of Louisville has declared the regular quarterly dividend of 200 per cent. The stock will ultimately pay 500 per cent on $200,000 capital.

MONEY MARKET.

There is little change to note in the local money market. Offerings of time funds at 6 per cent are a little more liberal, and it was reported that this rate is being shaded on desirable loans to 5½ per cent. Clearing house comparisons:

BUSINESS PROPERTY SOLD IN WILKINSBURG

Many Deals Going On in the Suburbs--Braddock Hotel Building Changes Hands--Doings in the Real Estate Market.

There has been a good deal of activity in real estate in Wilkinsburg of late, and of the many deals under way in that neighborhood the last good one was closed yesterday. Olivia Love sold to the Realty Corporation of Pittsburgh, through George Bros., a property on the west side of Wood street, near Ross, right in the heart of the business section of Wilkinsburg. The lot is 25x132 feet and contains a two-story frame store building. The price, $18,360, is at the rate of $735 a foot front.

Another sale of a property partly in Wilkinsburg shows that the money-making quick turns are not all confined to downtown property. The Pittsburgh Insurance Company sold to Daniel Mitchell the lot on the west side of Brushton avenue, improved, near Council alley, partly in Wilkinsburg and partly in the Twenty-first ward, this city, for $5,686. Mitchell has sold the piece to John A. Wilson for $4,500.

Mrs. Lydia Messner sold to Josephine Adams, through W. J. Tener & Co., a 10-room brick house on a lot 40x170, on the west side of Ash street, near Jolin, in the Singer plan, Wilkinsburg, for $7,000. The purchaser will occupy the place as a residence.

Braddock Hotel Transferred.

C. C. Hamilton sold for James H. Hodgegen the latter's hotel property in Braddock avenue, Braddock, to R. S. Petty and K. T. Friend. The hotel is on a lot 60x150 feet and contains 35 rooms. Petty and Friend in exchange transferred to Hodgegen a piece of ground fronting 232 feet in Elba street, Thirteenth ward by 100 feet deep. The hotel was valued at $25,000 in the deal and the Thirteenth ward land at $15,000.

G. L. Peck purchased from H. H. Clark, through the Commonwealth Real Estate & Trust Co., lot on the west side of Dallas avenue, near Reynolds street, adjoining Mr. Hogg residence. The property is 87.56x150, is vacant and cost $12,000. Mr. Peck, who is general manager of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg, will erect a residence on the property to cost about $25,000 or $30,000.

Elmer E. Fullmer has bought a lot, 50x100, improved, on the northwest side of Third street, Thirty-eighth ward, from I. W. Brownlee for $3,400.

Dr. J. F. Shafer, who bought, through the Commonwealth Real Estate & Trust Company, the property at 418 Fulton avenue, will erect a new building on the property, but not likely immediately. He will put in foundations for a 10-story structure.

A dwelling, improved, on the north side of Sarah street, near South Twenty-third, Twenty-fifth ward, was sold y Henry H. Dougherty to Alice Myers for $4,500.

Walter J. Lincoln has purchased from John R. Truell the property 18x100, improved, on the east lade of Dauphin street, near Fitch, Nineteenth ward, for $800.

The deed was delivered yesterday to the Pittsburgh Printing Company for the P. R. Kelly property, at Seventh avenue and Fountain street. The four-story brick warehouse on the 40x100 feet, will be remodeled to suit the new owners. The Pittsburgh Mirror Company, the former occupant, was given $5,-000 to vacate one year before its lease expired.

W. L. Woods has sold for O. Springer to Huffman & Mallisee the property at the northwest corner of Walnut street and Shady avenue, Twentieth ward, having on it a three-story brick apartment house, for $6,750. Mr. Woods, the agent who closed the deal, was formerly the manager of the real estate department of the East End Savings & Trust Company, and is in business for himself at No. 6106 Penn avenue.

J. W. Baker sold to Jesse E. Worcester, through the Hazelwood Savings & Trust Company, a two-story brick dwelling at No. 220 North Elizabeth street, Twenty-third ward, for $3,650. The lot is 24x110.

Mansions to be Built.

Architects yesterday were awarded contracts for two elegant houses to be built in Woodlawn road, Murray Hill. The house of William Metcalfe, Jr., will be built after the plans of Golden & Crick, while W. S. Wilson will draw up specifications for the mansion of G. M. Laughlin, Jr. Each house will cost about $50,000.

The Aronson Realty Company has sold for Attorney Marcus Stoner a five-room brick house at No. 16 Crawford street, corner Gilmore alley, to Moses Jacobs. The lot is 15x69 feet.

W. L. Scott & Co., Allegheny, sold for C. L. Saxton to R. M. Burnham lot, No. 55 in the Wood, Harmon & Co. plan at West Ingram, 25x100 feet to an alley, for $500. The purchaser will improve with a dwelling.

Drygoods Market.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Tone of market for general run of cotton goods is strengthening. Business shows a slight improvement in volume on jobbers' account but export buying slow. Print cloths unchanged in price, but very difficult to buy.

BRAN AND MIDDLINGS ARE HIGHER IN PRICE

Navy Bean Situation Firmly Held—Flour Market Very Strong.

While very firm conditions continue to prevail in the hay market, no change in quotations was made yesterday, although there were some offerings for which figures in excess of list prices were asked. Receipts are light, especially of top grade timothy hay, while No. 2 grade offered on Change was not very attractive to buyers. Corn is firm, but only on account of conditions surrounding receipts, as demand is not particularly active. Oats are strong, and offerings for five days' arrivals were at 46c for No. 2 white. Millfeed is gaining strength, quotations for middlings and bran all being advanced yesterday, with supplies light and hard to get. Rye is holding firmly to quotations, with top figures easily maintained.

The active demand and gradually advancing prices for best spring wheat last week gave a very firm feeling to the flour market, which is still maintained. Prices for wheat are yet lower than they were a year ago, and dealers in flour argue from this, with reason, that there is nothing approximating a bulge coming, but a firm flour market for some time to come. Jobbers are not anticipating and violent changes in quotations, and believe flour is and will remain good property, subject only to such slight fluctuations as may be caused by temporary changes in the wheat market, which are always to be expected.

Navy beans are very strong, and dealers are exhibiting an extreme degree of firmness when making sales. Quotations for fancy handpicked are not deviated from in the least degree, good round lots commanding the top notation of $2 40, while choice range down but lower. There is a very large consumption of navy beans just now, and the limited supplies preclude the possibility of weakness in the market while demand continues heavy.

Jobbers are advising the trade to be careful not to allow stocks of canned goods to run low, as the season of active consumption is at hand, and indications favor higher prices in some lines, at least with the coming of spring days. The fact that quotations have been so firmly held during the dull season of the past few weeks is an indication of the firm conditions ruling the market.

Produce was a little more active yesterday than on Monday, but trade is quiet, and quotations, while firm, show no changes. Potatoes are still held at the increased figures which became effective last week.

Poultry receipts are moving out slowly at quoted prices, with top figures hard to realize, although paid by some buyers for fanciest select stock. While sellers have been holding stock a little firmer since the weather changed from warm to cold last week, there is no real difference in prices. Butter is slow, and will not be much more active unless there is a period of much colder weather than prevails now. Eggs are in fair demand, and the market is declining, as it has been for two weeks. Elgin people profess to believe in a reaction in favor of higher figures in the near future, but this will depend largely upon weather conditions.

HORSE MARKET

Conditions were less encouraging in the horse market yesterday, as a week ago, as very little trade was going, and prices were unable to hold up to the level of last week. At the auction sale last Tuesday a better tone was observed, and figures secured for stock were at least $10 a head higher than they had been at the first of the year. This gain was lost yesterday, when about 100 horses were sold at prices no better than figures ruling before last week's advance. Conditions in the retail situation are just about as they have been for some time, with very little selling, and that only where horses are needed for immediate use.

IN THE OIL FIELDS.

It has been more than a year since the deep sand territory in Wetzel county, W. Va., presented a gusher such as the South Penn Oil Company has struck on the Jesse Talkington farm, south of the Folsom district. The well was drilled into the Gordon last Saturday and showed a strong gas pressure. Drilling was suspended, but Sunday afternoon the well drilled itself in and began to flow at a terrific rate. Tankage was hurriedly put up and the pipe line connected, but this was not accomplished till after several hundred barrels of oil had gone on the ground. The well produced 350 barrels from 7 a. m. to 2 p. m. yesterday, or at the rate of 1,200 barrels a day. None of the wells in the Folsom district produced more than 700 barrels a day.

The location of this well is on direct line between the Folsom district and the old development, near Wallace, Harrison county, and makes the prospects for the intervening territory look very promising.

North of the gusher one and one-half miles the Delmar Oil Company is drilling a test on the E. Pigrott farm. The South Penn Company is going after more gushers in the vicinity of its new strike. It has made six locations on the Jesse Talkington and adjoining farms.

In the Burning Springs district, in Wirt county, D. A. Kreps & Co. have completed No. 5 on the Rathborn tract and have a 5-barrel pumper in the second Cow Run sand at a depth of 1515 feet.

On Camp run, Murphy district, Ritchie county, near the Wirt county line, McCormick & Co. have drilled in a test on the Beckwith farm that is reported flowing on the ground from the Big Injun sand.

On the east side of the Folsom district, the South Penn Oil Company has completed its No. 2 on the William Price farm and has a 50-barrel producer in the Gordon. The same company has drilled in its test on the Fox-Robinson farm and the well produced 25 barrels the first 24 hours from the top of the Gordon.

In the Rinards Mills district, Washington county, O., the Associated Producers Company has completed its test on the R. W. Platt farm, drilling through all sands, and has a duster.

North of Marietta Charles S. Cameron has completed a second test on the H. H. Greenlee farm and has a duster in the Gordon sand. In the same district Hannan & Co. have drilled their No. 16 on the Holmes heirs' farm through the Reppert sand and have a show for a 20-barrel producer.

Buckley, Blasantz & Co. have now drilled their No. 18 on the Charles Reynolds farm, in the Reppert sand, through the stray above the salt sand, and had no better luck.

In the Center Hill district, Morgan county, Eachel, Ritchie & Co. have completed their No. 43 on the E. Bowman farm and have a 5-barrel pumper. The Knickerbocker Oil Production Company has completed No. 21 on the Bowman farm and will have the same kind of a pumper. North and in advance of the development, Morris Forst & Co. have completed No. 2 on the M. White farm and have a 5-barrel pumper. The Cumberland Oil Company has completed its test on the Henry Wagoner farm and has a very small pumper.

On Wolf creek Zimm & Co. have completed its test on the E. Ferguson farm and have a duster. In the same district Montgomery & Co. have the rig completed for a second test on the Effie M. Burt farm. Charles S. Cameron's No. 1 on the Frank Ford farm is holding up at 225 barrels a day.

In the Plum Run district, Harrison county, T. W. Phillips, Sons & Co. have completed test wells on the Barrickiow heirs, Macadoo and Dickey farms and all are dusters. The Southern Oil Company has completed No. 6 on the J. Q. Law farm and has a 10-barrel pumper. In the same district the Ohio Consolidated Oil Company has completed No. 4 Isaac Miller and a test on the I. T. Ralnsberg farms and has two 10-barrel pumpers.

At Imperial, on the Montour branch of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad, Allegheny county, A. M. Scully & Co. have struck, testing secured another good producer. The new strike is his No. 1 on the Imperial Coal Company's property and has a natural producer, good for 15 barrels a day in the 30-foot. A little drilling will increase its production to 25 barrels a day.

In the Mt. Morris district, Greene county, the Union Natural Gas & Water Company has completed a test on the John Gump farm and has a gasser.

RIVER-RAILROAD FIGHT ON AGAIN

Representatives of Transportation Methods Talk to Engineers' Society.

BRIDGES ARE DEFENDED

Ortes Snyder Tells of Traffic to Be Hindered by Proposed Elevation of River Crossings—Wabash Has Bold Champion.

"Pittsburgh has reached her zenith, unless there be provided additional transportation facilities," was the slogan of the meeting of the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania last evening at its club rooms, No. 419 Penn avenue. This subject gave rise to an animated discussion between the representatives of the railroad and the river interests. Antes Snyder, engineer of rights of way of the Pennsylvania railroad at Pittsburgh, represented the railroad's side of the case. Under the caption of "Pittsburgh: Her Waterways and Her Railways" he recounted the history of the development of transportation in this district and pleaded for the far greater usefulness of the steam railroads as contrasted with rivers in transportation.

Rodgers Pleads for Rivers.

Capt. William B. Rodgers answered in a paper on "Improved Waterways Necessary for Commercial Outlet," in which the rivers' advantages were shown, as compared with the railroads, and inferences were allowed that the railroads seek to throttle the development of the rivers because of the fear of competition.

The last formal paper was read by Walter C. Herron of the Westinghouse Machine Company, who ended his paper with a strong plea for the admission of the Wabash. The general topic he discussed was "Freight Congestion."

The society adopted a resolution expressing its appreciation of Andrew Carnegie's offer of a technical school, and appointed a committee to confer with the plan and scope committee of the school, express the willingness of the society in every way to advance the interests of the school and report to the society the present status of the school plan. The committee is Charles F. Scott, chairman; William Glyde Wilkins and Chester B. Albree.

Bridge Raising Opposed.

Strong points against the changing of bridges over the Allegheny river, to suit the desires of the river interests, were made by Antes Snyder in his exhaustive paper. "The small part of the public who use the waterways, kept at public expense and without any compensation for their use, would, if they could, deny the railroads the right to cross this public highway," he declared. "Not directly, but by fixing such onerous conditions to the right to cross, as would not only prevent the railroad in many cases from building bridges over these navigable rivers, but would also prevent the populous communities on their banks from building such bridges. When made to conform with the requirements of the rivermen, these bridges would do greater damage to the vast commerce which crosses over them than their continuance as at present constructed would damage the comparatively insignificant commerce which passes under them.

"The rivermen censure the railways for their one failure in 50 years of successful service, and in the same breath invoke the law to compel a lot of innocent stockholders to expend millions of dolars in raising their bridges in Pittsburgh harbor, in order to give the river interests additional facilities for holding an always congested traffic," he said.

He stated that to make all the river improvements asked for would result in the industrial downfall of this section through the cheapening of the cost of fuel to other locations, not favored with coal by nature. On the Allegheny river it would mean, he said, the sending of the coal from Pittsburgh up the Allegheny, to replace the inferior fuel found there. "Why should those who claim this right to occupy these channels lengthwise have any preference over those who desire to occupy them crosswise?" he asked.

Capt. William B. Rodgers, the well known riverman who answered Mr. Snyder, told of the river improvements. He compared the river with the rail rates for the various classes of freight between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, and found the difference ran from $3 20 to 60 cents a ton. He told of the wrecking of the steamer Margaret in the harbor, and defended strongly the raising of the Allegheny river bridge.

Strong Plea for Wabash.

Walter C. Herron of the Westinghouse Machine Company, whose paper treated of "Freight Congestion," said in part in concluding his paper:

Are the manufacturers of Pittsburgh, with the vast tonnage of their mills, foundries and machine shops, going to be tied hand and foot by the influence brought to bear on councilmen whose conscience of right has been smothered with greed and lulled to sleep by the soft lullabies of an annual pass or present perhaps, from the railroad whose influence is felt, even in the highest court of the land. "Greed" in letters as high as Mt. Washington is all that is keeping the Gould interests out of Pittsburgh. Selfishness, envy, jealousy, and all the attributes of a mean and base character is back of it.

The Vanderbilts did not ask Pittsburgh for one penny, when they made their improvements on the South Side, and they erected the finest depot in Pittsburgh with good accommodations, neither have the Goulds asked for one cent. President Ramsey plainly told council what his road wanted. Yet our councils bountifully helped the Cassatt interests to valuable property, condemning same, handed over hundreds of thousands of dollars, closed up the Grant boulevard, Liberty avenue and assessed the already overburdened taxpayers with a load, that would have made old Sinbad, the sailor, blush, to even name the "old man of the sea."

This is all because they have our interests at "stake," and now they want to give away some more franchises for nothing, and when appropriation ordinances are up for action, they have only a depleted treasury to look at. Our manufacturers are strong enough to show their power in councils in a manner that will be felt, and show those gentlemen that their dilly-dallying must be stopped and crossed-in $10,000,000 improvements immediately, or know the reason why, and after the committee that is responsible and get quick action. Do not expand your views in the newspapers or in petitions, but do some personal aggressive work with the right men.

JULIAN RALPH DEAD.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—Julian Ralph, author and war correspondent, died tonight at his residence here. Dr. Calvin S May, who attended Mr. Ralph, gave the cause of death as dropsy, complicated with ulcer of the stomach and enlargement of the liver. Mr. Ralph was stricken by a hemorrhage while he was acting as correspondent with the British army during the Boer war. A second hemorrhage occurred at St. Louis immediately after he had received his appointment as eastern representative for the Louisiana Purchase exposition.

Mr. Ralph was born in New York on May 27, 1853 and served on the staffs of several of the New York papers. He became attached to the London Daily Mail in 1899. He leaves a widow and five children.

T. Ashton McClain, the famous baritone, had four encores with "Ashamed of the Old Folks," at Denver last week. This song with next Sunday's Gazette.

SAYS MASTER ERRED IN KERR DIVORCE CASE

Respondent Files Exceptions Holding Decision Relative to Anti-Nuptial Agreement Was Wrong. Rules of Catholic Church Involved.

Exceptions were filed to the report of the master, Attorney Charles Reamer, recommending that a decree be granted in the divorce case of William A. Kerr against Rose C. Kerr. For the respondent it is claimed the master erred in not finding that the libellant ill treated the respondent; that the libellant is a gambler and confirmed poker player; that he attended a football game at the time of the birth of the last child, and that he frequently came home under the influence of liquor.

It is claimed the master erred in not finding that Kerr knocked the respondent down, that he kicked her in the abdomen, that while on the floor he stuffed one of the children's coats in his wife's mouth and that he blackened her eye. It is averred that the master erred in not finding Kerr was mean and close in the expenditure of money for his family; that he taught the respondent to drink liquor, and in not finding that the respondent believed her husband was buying diamonds for actresses.

It is also alleged that the master erred in finding that the ante-nuptial agreement as required by the Roman Catholic church does not estop libellant from prosecuting an action for divorce, under the civil laws of Pennsylvania, and that the agreement was not a bar to such divorce. This agreement, originating from religious views, was made previous to the marriage of the couple, and was to the effect that no divorce proceedings should be instituted, and that the marriage was indissoluble save by death.

The master held, as exclusively published in The Gazette, that the state was as much interested as the individual, and that such an agreement could not stand. The whole practice of the Catholic church in granting dispensations is involved in this case, which will probably go to the supreme court.

RAILROAD TAKES APPEAL.

Pittsburgh, Shawmut and Northern Refuses to Abide by Injunction Proceedings.

In the United States circuit court, in the case of Irving L. Fiske against the Pittsburgh, Shawmut & Northern railroad, an appeal was taken from Judge Joseph Buffington's ruling in granting an injunction against the defendant company. The appeal does not act as a stay in the injunction proceedings.

A petition in involuntary bankruptcy was filed against the Keystone Pattern and Foundry Company of Evans City, Pa. The officers of the company filed a petition admitting the company's insolvency and asking the court to appoint a receiver.

Henry S. Thayer of Pittsburgh was discharged from bankruptcy. Petitions in bankruptcy were filed by David Lubic, a merchant of Braddock, who gives his debts as $1,272, with $730 assets, and John Depinet, an insurance agent of Erie, who schedules his liabilities as $22,291 and his assets as $300, which he claims are exempt.

Cleveland Company Enters Suit Against Structural Iron Workers.

A bill in equity was filed by the Brown Hoisting Machinery Company of Cleveland against local No. 3, International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, to restrain it, its officers and members from interfering with the plaintiff's workmen at the Isabella furnaces, Etna. Aside from the officers, the following are named as defendants: H. W. Gillen, Patrick Fahey, William Finnegan, Hawey Hermes, Mike McGraw, William Waggoner, Frank Hughes, Thomas Kane, P. M. Kelly, Charles Henn and Charles Shook.

The plaintiff company has the contract for erecting bridges at the furnaces named and brought a number of its workmen from Cleveland. It is alleged that the defendants, by threats and force, have tried to drive the workmen away. The employes of the plaintiff company, it is said, are willing to go to work if permitted by the defendants.

NASH NOT GUILTY.

In criminal court William Nash was acquitted of a charge of embezzlement made by Robert McKenzie, but was ordered to pay the costs. He was accused of having collected $98 belonging to McKenzie.

The following entered pleas of no defense: Annie Duff, larceny of a book and watch from Boggs & Buhl, sentence suspended; Daniel O'Leary, aggravated assault and battery in using a lantern on the head of William Kimball; George Labinski, fraudulently making and uttering a check for $5 purporting to have been signed by Z. A. Chirzawowski.

M. Mortabjew, the proprietor of a Polish boarding house, was on trial charged with larceny by bailee. He was accused of taking money entrusted to him by two boarders and representing it had been taken by burglars.

WILL ABATE NUISANCE.

Judge Rodgers Sustained Appeal of Railroad Company in Blockade Case.

Judge Elliott Rodgers sustained the appeal of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, operating the Pittsburgh, Virginia & Charleston railroad, from a decision of Justice G. W. Jiles of Mifflin township, in imposing a fine of $25 for the blockading of a crossing at Dravosburg station by freight cars.

It was contended that the justice only had authority in cases resulting from the arrest of the trainmen. The court sustained the appeal because the suit was not brought in the name of the commonwealth and against the station agent.

The lawyers for the plaintiff threatened to enter another suit in accordance with the views of the court, but the matter was settled by the promise to abolish the nuisance and the company pay the costs.

Superior Court Adjourns.

The superior court adjourned its sessions at Scranton yesterday, to meet at Williamsport in February. Among the decisions handed down was the affirmation of the Allegheny county court in upholding the will of Mary Sneathen, in which a contest was brought by children of the testatrix against a stepfather, who inherited the estate. The lower court held that the will was valid.

REQUISITIONS FOR THREE.

Officials of a Banking Company Must Face Charge of Conspiracy.

Requisition papers were prepared yesterday in the clerk of court's office for the return of Charles K. Bolen, J. S. Starbuck and A. C. Zinn, who are under arrest in Columbus, O., charged with conspiracy, by Mary Jane Ingram. Bolen is also charged with false pretenses with C. L. Drake and Eugene F. Stoddard, and a requisition will also be issued for him on that charge.

The charges are the outgrowth of an alleged investment of $7,000 made by the prosecutrix with the five defendants, who are the official representatives of the Investment Banking Company of Columbus, O. Mrs. Ingram charges the men with representing the banking company to have assets amounting to $100,000, in securing her investment in securities of the King Fortune Mine Company.

COURT GRANTED NON-SUIT.

Maguire, Graver and Hopkins Lost $170,000 Claim Involving a Railroad.

A compulsory non-suit was granted yesterday in the $170,000 damage suit of Edward J. Maguire, John A. Graver and Andrew Hopkins against William D. Johnston and Thomas W. Watkins. The plaintiff sought to recover for damages sustained by the alleged failure of the defendants to carry out an agreement for the formation of the Salem & Ohio Railroad Company.

The case was called for trial a week ago and has been on since. The non-suit was granted on the ground that the plaintiffs did not have sufficient evidence to sustain their claim. Their attorneys, Davis & Galbraith, gave notice that application will be made to take off the non-suit and the matter will then go to the argument list.

Took Judgment for $60,000.

Henry Stamm, for the use of Louis Hazelbarth, took judgment in the name of the commonwealth against the Pittsburgh, St. Clair & Knoxville Street Railway Company, with notice to the Pittsburgh & Birmingham Traction Company and the Pittsburgh Railways Company, for $60,000. The judgment follows a claim against the old incline that ran from South Thirteenth street to the outer limits of Knoxville. In the operation of the road it became necessary to issue bonds, of which Stamm was one of the holders. The company failed to meet the bonds and suit was entered. No affidavit of defense being filed by the defendants, judgment was taken in default thereof.

CUTICURA OINTMENT

The Most Wonderful Curative of All Time.

For Torturing, Disfiguring Humors.

Cuticura Ointment is beyond question the most successful curative for torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin and scalp, including loss of hair, ever compounded, in proof of which a single anointing with it, preceded by a hot bath with Cuticura Soap, and followed in the severer cases by a dose of Cuticura Resolvent Pills, is often sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing forms of itching, burning and scaly humors, permits rest and sleep and points to a speedy cure when all other remedies fail. It is especially so in the treatment of infants and children, cleansing, soothing and healing the most distressing of infantile humors and preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp and hair.

Cuticura Ointment possesses, at the same time, the charm of satisfying the simple wants of the toilet in caring for the skin, scalp, hair and hands from infancy to age, far more effectually, agreeably and economically than the most expensive of toilet emollients. Its "Instant stant relief for skin-tortured babies," or "Sanative, antiseptic cleansing," or "One-night treatment of the hands," or "Single treatment of the hair," or "Use after athletics," cycling, golf, tennis, riding, sparring, or any sport, each in connection with the use of Cuticura Soap, is sufficient evidence of this.

Millions now rely on Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening and soothing red, rough and sore hands, for baby rashes, itchings and chafings, as well as for all purposes of the toilet, bath and nursery.

We beg to inform the public and our customers that, beginning MONDAY, FEBRUARY 2nd, this store will close at 5:30 P. M.

Fat Purses vs. Little Prices.

It is generally accepted, indeed it is a proven fact, that the purses of all classes of people in Pittsburgh are well lined with the article called money. Never was there a better demonstration of how far money will go than in the great special sale held in this store yesterday. Never did so many people undertake to prove, individually, what excellent goods could be bought for small sums.

We countenance no buncombe, we hold up nothing simply for effect, but we do believe, when the time comes—that is an occasion for forced selling—in making the very smallest prices possible; in losing all sight of profit; in many cases entirely losing sight of the cost of the goods offered. These are methods that win business regardless of conditions.

And there will be another Remnant Day next Tuesday!

The Fancy Yarn Suitings, 65c a Yard.

Sold marvelously fast throughout the season for $1.25 and $1.50 a yard.

There are a good many thousands of dollars' worth of Dress Goods passing through this store away under value. And we can find no better illustration of this fact than in this late purchase of these handsome all-wool fancy Yarn Suitings that went on sale Monday for 65c a yard, and being picked up so rapidly.

There was not much said about them yesterday because most every one was after remnants, and yet the sale of these dress goods was quite liberal. They are novelly pretty, and are just as effective for the separate skirt or the blouse as they are for the full suit. Besides, and this is important, they are 46 inches wide. The association of colors is light and dark gray mixed with black, different shades of blue, brown and green mixed with white and gray. We verily believe there never was such another fine Dress Goods bargain offered anywhere.

And here is a piece of good news that we must also give you. We received another shipment yesterday, only about 600 yards, however, of all-wool Plaid Suitings—46 inches wide—that go on our counters today for 30c a yard, although the regular price heretofore has been 50c a yard.
